C. I. O. Calls Thousands to March on Steel Mill After Police Rout Pickets; Mayor Asks Troops

Middle-Aged Pair Sought by G-Men

Agents Heed Plea, Leave Home Unguarded; Clews Lacking.

By the Associated Press.

Stony Brook, N. Y., June 10.—Abandoning efforts to comply with instructions in a $25,000 ransom note found after the mysterious disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, 38, socially prominent Long Island heiress, her husband waited in his home tonight for new directions for obtaining his wife's release.

The crudely printed ransom demand which emerged as the principal clew to Mrs. Parsons' whereabouts, instructed the husband, William H. Parsons, to keep a rendezvous at a Jamaica bus terminal—but he failed to do so because of crowds gathered at the terminal.

After police and Federal agents cleared the road to the Parsons estate, he announced his willingness to comply with any demand of the supposed kidnapers, and asked for new instructions.

Suspects Lacking.

Heeding Parsons' plea that their presence in the home might jeopardize the chance of his wife's safe return, authorities headed by half a dozen Federal agents left the home tonight to establish headquarters in the village.

"We cleared out of Parsons' house at Parsons' request," said Rhea Whitley, agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York, who directed the work of the squad of G-men.

Asked if he had a clew to the heiress' disapeparance, Whitley said "there is only one thing that we know—that it was a kidnaping. That is why we are here. No one is being held, and we have no suspect."

Earlier Parsons' movements had been shielded by 50 State, county and Federal investigators who set up emergency headquarters on his secluded 11-acre farm, situated in the Gold Coast region of Long Island's north shore. They had begun to converge on the scene before the ransom note was found tucked away in the upholstery of the family car, parked outside the white Colonial house.

Testifies of Couple.

Two other possible clews, a blood-stained hatchet and an ax, were discarded when police toxicologists in New York City found the stains on the hatchet were animal's blood. No stains of any kind were found on the ax.

The weapons were found on the Parsons' farm, Long Meadows. After receiving the toxicologist's report, investigators expressed the opinion the hatchet had been used to kill chickens and squabs on the farm.

The possibility of murder was further discounted when Mrs. Leona

Windsor Will Join U.S.Firm,Cornelius Vanderbilt Asserts

New York, June 10 (AP).—Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., who took an automobile and trailer abroad to "cover" the coronation for a news syndicate, returned on the liner Manhattan today.

Vanderbilt talked with the Duke of Windsor, with other newspapermen, after the Duke's wedding to Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

As to the Duke's plans for the future, Vanderbilt said he understood he would become foreign representative "for an American firm" within a year. Next February, he said, the Duke and Duchess will spend two months in Palm Beach, Fla., and then they will visit in California over Easter.

Amelia Earhart On Niger River

Gao, French West Africa, June 10 (AP).—Amelia Earhart dropped her light monoplane down to a perfect landing at this African outpost along the Niger River today to complete another span on her leisurely flight around the world.

She had flown 1,140 miles from Dakar, French Senegal, skirting Timbuctu. With her was her navigator, Capt. Fred Noonan, who announced they would take off tomorrow for Khartoum in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—2,200 miles across African desert and jungle.

Wage-Hour Bill Attacks Stir Wrath of Senate Committee

Committee Acts as Unit to Blast Testimony of Owner-Witnesses; Charges Manufacturers Never Backed Any Progressive Laws.

By Sidney Olson.

Chairman Hugo Black and three members of the joint Congressional Labor committees, apparently irked by the constant repetition of industry's numerous objections to the Black-Connery wage-hour bill, rose in wrath yesterday afternoon to smite every argument hip and thigh.

Maintaining a deadly and smiling politeness, Senator Black, of Alabama; Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida; Representative Reuben T. Wood, of Missouri, and Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, working together with the smoothness and precision of a vaudeville chorus, separately and jointly attacked each argument advanced against the bill.

A series of witnesses from the National Manufacturers Association, who testified that the bill was "worse than the NRA," that it "tends to Fascism, Bolshevism and Nazlism," that it is "completely unworkable," and who begged that "industry be let alone to work out its own problems," brought on the onslaught.

These were James A. Emery, general counsel; Robert B. Dresser, acting chairman of the N. A. M.'s commitee on relation of Government to industry; Noel Sargent, secretary and economist, and L. N. Bent, vice president of the Hercules Powder Co. and chairman of the N. A. M.'s employment relations committee.

Bent alone, whose statement was brief and mostly noncontroversial,

Army Awards Huge Contract For 177 Planes

Douglas Co. Gets Record Peace-Time Order of $11,651,948.

The Army's greatest peace-time airplane contract, for $11,651,948.11, for 177 fast bombers, was awarded yesterday to the Douglas Aircraft Co. of California.

Deliveries on the planes are expected to start immediately, since the bombers were accepted some time ago after tests at Wright Field, Ohio. The last of the 177 planes probably will be delivered within a year.

The planes are two-engined Douglases, capable of speeds better than 225 miles an hour. The planes can carry substantially larger bomb loads than the present small Army bombers, and are equipped with conventional two-way radio equipment and machine guns. They are powered by the latest type Wright "Cyclone" engines.

The planes also are to be equipped with de-icing apapratus along the leading edge of each wing. Although recent tests on commercial de-icing equipment have demonstrated the apparatus is far from perfect, Army Air Corps engineers apparently have developed new materials capable of withstanding high speeds and wind pressure.

In announcing the purchase of the planes, the War Department em-

Secret Session Studies Revised Reorganization

Roosevelt Power Increase Again Assailed Despite New Exemptions.

Carrying special exemptions for independent Government commissions, and proposing only one new executive department, a greatly modified draft of the Administration's omnibus reorganization bill made its appearance at the Capitol yesterday.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson exhibited a confidential print of the measure to his Senate Reorganization Committee in an unheralded secret session. Despite modifications, the measure drew strong protests from minority members, who insist it vests unprecedented powers in the President.

Robinson has been working on the omnibus draft ever since House and Senate Reorganization Committees took two separate paths to comply with the President's request for action this session. The House group is breaking down the bill into four separate measures. Senate leaders are taking the one-bill route to enactment.

The Senate bill would guarantee such quasi-judicial commissions as the I. C. C. against interference and subordination. This change followed strong opposition to original proposals to embrace even these

Russia to Try 8 Army Heads For Treason

Charged With Furnishing Military Secrets to Nazis or Japanese.

Guilty Pleas Reported; All Face Death if Convicted.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow (Friday), June 11.—Eight of the highest officers of the Soviet army, including Marshal Michail Nikolaevitch Tukhachevsky, vice commissar of war until just a month ago, will be tried for their lives today on charges of treason.

An official communique issued this morning announced the trial will begin today before a secret military tribunal.

Gen. Kazimirovitch V. Putna, former military attache in London, arrested in August, 1936.

Gen. A. I. Kork, former commandant of the Frunze Military Academy, the "West Point" of the Soviet Union.

Gen. I. E. Yakir, displaced June 9 as commander of the Leningrad district garrison.

Gen. I. P. Uborevitch, removed June 9 as commander in White Russia.

Gen. Robert P. Eideman, former head of the important Osoaviakhim, organization for training reserves and civilian training in aviation and gas defense.

Gen. B. M. Feldman, chief of the personnel section of the general staff.

Gen. V. M. Primakoff.

Guilty Pleas Reported.

The communique said all pleaded full guilt. Under laws governing the trial this means certain and immediate execution on conviction, without right of appeal.

The communique said they were leagued with a foreign government, which was understood to point to Germany or Japan.

It announced the charges were:

Violation of military oath, treason to the fatherland, treason to the people of the U. S. S. R., and treason to the workers, peasants and the red army.

It added:

"Investigation established the participation of the defendants, as well as Gen. Jan Gamarnik, in antistate connections with leading military circles of one of the foreign countries which is carrying on an unfriendly policy toward the U. S. S. R.

"The accused were in the service of the military intelligence service of this country.

Third Treason Trial.

"The defendants systematically supplied secret information about the position of the red army to military circles of this country; they carried on wrecking activity for weakening the red army, tried to prepare for the defeat of the red army in case of an attack on the Soviet Union and aimed to contribute to the restoration of landowners and capitalists in the U. S. S. R."

The trial will be the Soviet Union's third great treason trial in less than a year. The others were in July, 1936, and January, 1937. This differs from the preceding trials, however, in that it will be held in secret and that most of the accused fell from grace only a few days before being haled before the judges.

In the July and January trials the defendants had been out of favor with the Kremlin for a long time. Sixteen men were shot after the July trial, 13 after that of January.

Gamarnik died June 1. The government announced he killed himself after having been exposed as a traitor.

Cities Must Pay 40% of WPA, Senate Decides

By Robert C. Albright.

A requirement that local communities put up 40 per cent of the cost of WPA relief projects yesterday was written into the President's $1,500,000,000 relief bill by a Senate Appropriations sub-committee.

By a 5 to 3 vote, the group refused to trim $500,000,000 from Administration relief estimates, but denied WPA access to some $223,000,000 in unobligated, unexpended balances from former relief appropriations.

Virtually rewriting the House relief draft, the sub-committee swung to support of the relief "matching" amendment of Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, by a 7 to 3 ballot.

Byrnes Sought Slash.

It was Byrnes who sought vainly to slash the relief appropriation to $1,000,000,000. But the South Carolinian waged his principal fight on the 40 per cent relief sharing proviso. He insists the full $1,500,000,000 never will be spent if States and local subdivisions are required to pay two-fifths of the cost.

Communities fiscally unable to meet the requirement may be exempted, if they so certify in writing. In that event the President would order an investigation into the tax-paying capacity and credit of the applicant. On the basis of findings, "the maximum amount possible for such applicant to supply" would be substituted.

The sub-committee agreement followed on the heels of Senate action to investigate unemployment and relief policies, looking to formulation of long-time legislative policy.

Relief Inquiry Approved.

By a voice vote, the Senate approved $10,000 to finance the relief inquiry by a special committee of five Senators, to be named by Vice President Garner. The committee would assemble all available facts to aid Congress in enacting corrective legislation.

The investigation was proposed by Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico. His resolution calls for a study of the "problems of unemployment and relief, including an estimate of the number of persons now unemployed by

Jamming the glittering ballroom of the Willard Hotel in the monster mass meeting—which was the cause of the disruption in the A. F. G. E.—the crowd, men and women, unanimously adopted the resolution, which said in part:

Daily Survey Shows Small Trading 20 Per Cent of Market Total.

By Franklyn Waltman.

As a result of a new daily survey inaugurated this week by the Securities and Exchange Commission the country hereafter will have available prompt and accurate tabulations of the extent to which run-of-mine investors or "little fellows" are participating in the New York stock market.

The first figures in this new survey made public yesterday by the SEC indicate that in the dull trading on Monday and Tuesday of this week the "little fellows" accounted for approximately 20 per cent of the stock transactions on the New York Stock Exchange. As trading again hums upward in volume this survey will have the value of indicating to what extent the general public is participating.

The SEC tabulation comprises the volume of "off-lot transactions of odd-lot dealers and specialists in stocks, rights and warrants on the New York Stock Exchange." An Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—Medicine, federalized for part of the American population, the thing the medical profession has fought, was placed before the American Medical Association here today by President Roosevelt and United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois.

Senator Lewis explained that this meant Government aid for those too poor to pay the cost of adequate medical care.

Troops Asked.

By the Associated Press.

Monroe, Mich. (Friday), June 11. Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs dispatched another request for troops to Gov. Frank Murphy early today to defend the city against a sympathy march of Pontiac members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

The mayor ordered uniformed police, on duty at the Newton Steel Co.'s plant since a clash with pickets that marked the plant's reopening last night, to return to the city in preparation for the invasion. They reinforced American Legion members who had been patrolling the streets during the emergency.

Lights on Approaches.

Mayor Knaggs was informed by telephone that several hundred unionists had left Pontiac at 11 p. m. (Eastern standard time) in automobiles. The Pontiac local of the U. A. W. A. declared a city-wide industrial holiday and was said to be providing gasoline for the trip to motorists who could show membership cards.

Union leaders in Pontiac estimated more than 15,000 workers would participate in the invasion.

Nearly 200 special policemen remained at the plant, armed with clubs and tear gas. Heavy trucks barricaded every road to the property of the Newton Co., and lookouts were posted in the surrounding marshland.

Added illumination, a precaution against surprise invasion, made the principal approaches as bright as day.

The Fisher body plant at Pontiac was the first to close down in preparaton for the demonstration here. A union leader said the strike was effective there at 10:45 p. m.

Picket Line Broken.

The Yellow Truck & Coach Co., another General Motors affiliate, suspended operations at midnight. Union leaders said employes of the Pontiac Motor Car Corporation would walk out at 3 a. m.

Dorr Mitchell, president of the local, said the union planned a "peaceful demonstration."

"We're not going down there to fight anybody," he said. "Our men will be in disciplined groups, each in charge of a shop steward. The shop stewards will answer in turn to chief shop stewards. These leaders have orders to tolerate no disorder and no drinking."

The demonstration was planned after 800 non-striking workers, protected by a barrage of gas and the

'Cherchez la Femme,' Says Officer as Bees, Thousands of 'Em, Menace Fourteenth Street

Apparently 100,000 bees—each indignant and with a sting—did tail spins, inside loops, outside loops, barrel rolls and nose dives at the corner of Fourteenth and Harvard streets yesterday noon while citizens gave way.

Nearest the swarm was Policeman B. R. Torrance, of the Sixth Precinct—the bee man, they call him. He wore no protective mask and scattered by-standers could predict the conclusion.

Although Torrance had a solution, results were accomplished by a member of another school of bee culture, Lieut. Walter Weber, of the Fire Department.

Torrance was first on the scene and said with authority: "The queen, she is the cause."

He let the by-standers in on his theory. He deduced that the bees, queen and all, had swarmed to the low-hanging limb of the tree that shades the intersection. Then a man, who, he speculated, wore long whiskers and carried a gleam in his eye, removed a part of the branch on which the bees had settled. In this manner the queen had been kidnaped, Torrence said.

That settled one phase of the case. It accounted for the gleam in the bees' eyes. It accounted for the crowd that had gathered.

But the problem that remained in Torrance's campaign—the problem of how to quell the swarm—was taken in stride by the second expert, a man who said that he had lived with bees "as long as he could remember." He worked on the "honey" theory.

Lieut. Weber came upon the scene after Torrance had shrugged his shoulders and muttered something about "If I had a queen, I probably could get them settled," and driven off in his car to the station house. Forty-five minutes had elapsed and the bees were still soaring. Citizens were covering their faces, and some took smacks at the bees, which both bee experts agreed was bad policy.

Lieut. Weber began work with a long pair of pruning shears, cautiously clipping the lower branches of the tree. He was stung once, twice, but he said he didn't mind a little thing like that. As he worked bees swarmed about his face and hands. He said that as long as bees were "sporting" their honey, which is a four-day affair, they won't hurt you. Most of these were "honeying."

As spectators marveled, Lieut. Weber slowly brushed the quick-tempered bees into a gunny sack.

"I certainly am glad that I could save these poor insects from death. I will take them to a friend's bee farm in Maryland. I haven't had an active farm in several years. This is a healthy looking swarm."

It was the second bee job Weber has done in less than a week besides his regular duties at the firehouse. Yesterday was his day off, too, but he said rescuing bees does not come under the heading of work.

Eyes From Dead Grafted on Living By Russian Doctor

London, June 10 (AP).—A Russian doctor reported today the successful transplanting of the cornea from eyes of human corpses to the eyes of the living.

He has conducted 95 such operations to benefit those with eye afflictions, Dr. V. P. Filatov, of Odessa, wrote in the British medical magazine Lancet. The operations were performed between 1932 and 1936.

The articles sets forth that results apparently are not inferior to those obtained by grafts from living eyes. The Cornea removed from a corpse is preserved in temperature of 4 to 6 degrees centigrade until ready to be transplanted.

2 Vanish Off Ship After Scout Goes to See 'Beautiful Blonde'

By the Associated Press.

Le Havre, France, June 10.—The disappearance of a Rumanian doctor and a Brazilian Boy Scout representative from the liner Raul Soarez provided the French Surete Nationale with a baffling mystery tonight.

The Raul Soarez, bound for Hamburg, was out of Rio de Janeiro when the first in a strange s as of events occurred.

Dr. R. Dadiani, who described himself as the son of Prince Jean Dadia and Princess Marie Elvire, of Rumania, told the captain Pedro Peroni, the Boy Scout chief, was missing.

While the Raul Soarez steamed north up the coast of Portugal, the ship was searched and Dadiani told his story.

He said he owed Peroni 600,000 francs ($26,400) and that they were traveling together to Warsaw, where Dadiani was to collect a legacy of 3,000,000 francs ($132,000) and pay the debt.

Peroni, he said, was unable to sleep the night before and left his bunk with the explanation:

"I'm going on deck to find that beautiful blonde German girl."

The doctor said he became worried t dawn when Peroni did not re n and advised the captain.

When the boat reached here the master reported Peroni missing, and Dadiani told his story again to Le Havre police. Then he returned to the ship and he, too, vanished.

Police, checking Dadiani's story, questioned the "beautiful blonde German girl." She said no one made an attempt to waken her on the night Peroni disappeared, and that she slept soundly throughout the night.

Cities Must Pay 40% of WPA, Senate Decides

Sub-committee changes in the $1,500,000,000 relief bill will be laid before the full Senate Appropriations Committee this morning for final action. The committee has Senate permission to file its report over the week-end, preparatory to Senate action early next week.

Among major sub-committee alterations in the huge relief measure were:

Harry L. Hopkins' Works Progress Administration must limit its administrative costs to 5 per cent of the total fund. Exceptions were made on relief funds expended through the Treasury, the General Accounting Office, the Resettlement Administration and the Compensation board.

The PWA is authorized to spend up to $300,000,000 obtained from sale of securities to the RFC, for construction projects. This amendment, offered by Senator Carl Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, also extends the life of PWA for two years—a provision already approved by the House in a separate bill.

All obligated but unexpended relief funds were reappropriated, but unobligated relief balances from former years will not be available for use in the next fiscal year.

Senator Alva B. Adams (Democrat), Colorado, chairman of the sub-committee, said no attempt at earmarking was made, other than the broad break-downs for specific purposes contained in the original bill.

Significant House amendments were continued in the bill. One requires Hopkins to spread his relief fund over the entire fiscal year, in an effort to avoid another deficiency. Another would deny WPA aid to rural relief workers who refuse to take temporary private employment at a similar wage, while such employment is available.

Senator Byrnes, author of the amendment placing a larger relief burden on local communities, won a preliminary victory in his fight for economy, despite defeat of his proposed slash of one-third in relief funds. He recently estimated not more than $750,000,000 would be spent, if local subdivisions were required to bear 40 per cent of relief costs.

Hopkins has been requiring local contributions of from 13 to 17 per cent, and had proposed to increase this to 22 per cent in the next fiscal year. The Byrnes amendment would virtually double that requirement. Byrnes has still another card up his sleeve in his economy campaign—a proposed horizontal cut of 10 per cent in all 1938 appropriations, with exception of certain irreducible items.

Even with $1,500,000,000, Hopkins has said he will have to cut more than 500,000 off relief rolls, bringing them down to an average of from 1,600,000 to 1,700,000.

Reorganization Bill Is Studied Secretly

The draft completely discards the President's original proposal for a new Department of Public Works, but it sets up a Department of Public Welfare, as originally proposed, and changes the name of the Interior Department to the Department of Conservation.

Broad powers of reorganization, to shift, merge and eliminate bureaus, will be vested in the President on a permanent basis. Under the new draft, the language follows largely the wording of the old Hoover reorganization act, with a Congressional check before changes become effective. But opponents contend the President's power would be almost absolute—that it would take a two-thirds vote of Congress, over a veto by the President, to stop any controversial merger.

Special exemptions from shifts or mergers would be granted the Forest Service, which would be permitted to remain under the Agriculture Department, and the Corps of Army Engineers, which would continue under the War Department. This was a concession to protests by individual members of Congress.

Drastic changes in the General Accounting Office setup are continued in the new bill with few alterations. An "Auditor General," instead of a Comptroller General, would have only powers to post-audit. He would be appointed by the President and subject to removal by him. Congressional opponents have insisted he should be responsible only to Congress, and have pre-auditing powers.

As under the President's original proposals, the Civil Service would be administered by a single official, appointed by the White House. The Civil Service Commission would be abolished, and an advisory board of citizens set up to meet occasionally, but with no actual powers.

The new confidential draft also would deprive the Senate of the right of confirmation of a long list of appointive officials.

New Faces in Congress

REPRESENTATIVE J. PARNELL THOMAS.

New Jerseyite Talks of World War, Boxing, Bonds, Unruly Horses; Likes to Recall Tackling Hamilton Fish in Football Game.

A talk with Representative J. Parnell Thomas (Republican), of New Jersey's Seventh District, is a talk of the World War, the Civil War, boxing, the bond business, unruly horses—and all of this interwoven with a reminiscence of the gridiron technique he used once in tackling Hamilton Fish.

Thomas is a businessman and he goes about an interview in a brisk, business-like way. He starts at the beginning—there's no interweaving of themes—and he winds up at the ending—although, in this instance he did save for the last a story of how an army horse once embarrassed him.

Stocky, athletic-looking still and with a reasonably uncompromising face, the Representative said that he was born in Jersey City on January 16, 1895; that he has resided in Allendale, N. J., since 1900; that he attended the University of Pennsylvania; served in the front lines during the World War; was associated with a New York bond house since 1924; served as a member of the Allendale Borough Council; as mayor of Allendale; served in the New Jersey House of Assembly, and then was elected to the Seventy-fifth Congress by an approximate plurality of 4,000 votes.

Tackled Hamilton Fish.

The Representative displayed a commendable modesty when he recalled tackling Hamilton Fish, who was a fast and famous football player at Harvard. Fish was not to be tackled easily. But Thomas recalled downing him, during a game played by two opposing Army camp teams. It is one of the Representative's sweetest war-time recollections, much more mellow, in these after times, than are in his thoughts of the Army horse that embarrassed him.

He was in France then and he was a captain, on the staff of a general officer. He was told that a big review was imminent and to hasten and get a horse. There was a hush in his voice when he told the stable sergeant that he never had ridden a horse. There are some embarrassment in his tone when he confided that he didn't even know how to mount. The sergeant instructed him for a while.

Came the review. The horse had been carefully chosen. "He looked as big and as slow as an elephant," recalled the Representative. "I thought that he would behave."

Music Rouses Horse.

The general sat in front, astride his horse. The colonels were out in front astride their mounts. In proper station was Capt. Thomas, astride his nag. But temperament, in a horse, is an unpredictable thing. That horse had spirit. Maybe it slumbered much; but it could be roused to march like an army with flags.

The captain found this out when the band began to play. At first his horse did what seemed a two-step; then sidled into a waltz, then swung into a fast fox-trot. The horse edged, dancing-like, clear out of his place and got, somehow, alongside a colonel's horse. This was out of form and embarrassing. It seemed presumptuous on the captain's part But the nag swung and sidled alongside the general's horse. This was a crimson blush for all. Then the nag started to run away. "And didn't that break up the review?" the Representative was asked. "It broke it up for me," he replied.

The Representative has been popular in his district and in his home town. Eighteen times his name has appeared on a ballot, and 18 times he has won. He likes hard-headed business in the practice of statesmanship and this has given him his motto:

"Less politics in business and more business in politics."

3 Passengers Injured In Bus-Truck Collision

Three passengers in a Peninsular Line bus were slightly hurt yesterday in a collision with a heavy lumber truck on the wet pavement of Marlboro pike near Upper Marlboro, Md. The truck was thrown against an embankment and knocked down an electric light pole.

James R. Fish, 22, of Willow Springs, N. C., suffered cuts of the head and hands. Mrs. T. R. Coppedge, 40, of Lilian, Va., and W. B. Newman, 67, of Portsmouth, Va., were shaken and slightly cut. All three continued their journey after receiving first aid treatment at the Upper Marlboro fire station.

Bond of $10,000 Is Set For Gas Station Holdup

Accused of robbing a filling station of $35, Russell Yates, 22, of 622 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday under $10,000

Police Court Judge Walter J. Casey ordered the high bond set after police testified Yates had been picked from a police line-up by Onsly Martin, 18, 1100 block Abbey place northeast, the victim. Yates pleaded not guilty to the charge, which grew out of a holdup in the 800 block Twelfth street northwest June 2.

Norris to Ask New Note Issue Backed by Gold

Senator Wants U. S. to Pay Current Debts and Balance Budget.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, said yesterday he would suggest to Secretary Morgenthau that currency be issued against the Treasury's $1,216,000,000 of unobligated gold. The money, Norris added, should be used to pay current Government debts and help balance the budget next year.

The new gold notes would not be redeemable in gold, Norris said, but would have the backing of impounded gold and could be used in payment of both public and private debts.

"There would be no sounder currency in the world," he added.

The Nebraskan said he favored the Government policy of buying gold at $35 an ounce, provided the metal did not become "inactive."

"I would take all the gold in the world," he said, "if the Treasury would make it pay for itself instead of borrowing to buy it. * * *

Norris said excess bank reserves (which now total around $930,000,000) are not being increased materially because of the gold sterilization program.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma advocate of monetary expansion, announced to the Senate during the day introduction of legislation authorizing issuance of currency against the Treasury's "sterilized" gold cache, which he put at $800,000,000. Metal to this amount, he said, had been removed from circulation to discourage inflation.

Thomas said the Treasury's hoard of gold and silver totaled $13,432,311,965, adding "yet all the kinds of actual money in circultaion does not amount to half that sum."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, took the floor to say the Government "can't continue indefinitely to purchase all the loose gold in the world at an artificial price." And "something must intervene to save us from a Frankenstein," he said.

Visiting Japanese Economic Mission Greeted by Roper

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Roper extended yesterday "the most cordial greetings" on behalf of the Government to a Japanese economic mission visiting this country.

Accompanied by American business representatives, members of the mission exchanged pleasantries with Roper prior to a call on Secretary Hull.

Roper urged the Japanese delegates to take advantage of any services the Commerce Department could provide.

Chokyuro Kadono, executive director of the Japan economic federation and head of the mission, expressed appreciation for the group's hospitable reception in this country.

Spokesmen for the mission said its members would be received at the White House today by President Roosevelt.

Kiwanians View Bull Fighting Film

Thrills of Mexican bull fighting were enjoyed by the Washington Kiwanis Club at its luncheon yesterday, when they viewed sound and color motion pictures taken by their fellow member, Dr. Roy L. Sexton.

Preceding the showing, Dr. Sexton made an explanatory talk in which he expelled the popular belief that Mexicans support bullfighting for its blood-thirsty aspects. On the contrary, he said, they are enthusiastic over the agility and ability of their matadors.

A. L. Schoenthal 3d Member Of D. C. Minimum Wage Board

Agent for Stone, Marble Union Is Representative of 'Labor.'

Arthur L. Schoenthal, vice president of the Washington Building Trades Council and a member of its executive board, was named yesterday by the Commissioners to represent labor on the three-man District minimum wage board. His appointment completes the personnel of the board, representatives of employers and the public having been selected Wednesday.

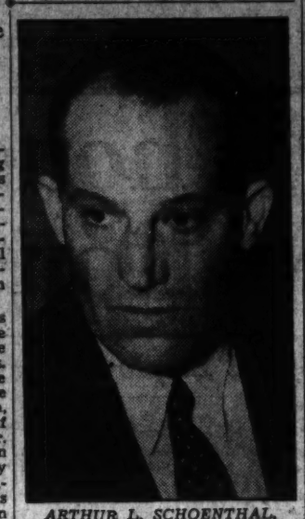
The new board member is 37. His father was a cabinetmaker and he was born in the District, where he attended public and high schools. He worked in the Navy Yard before he became business agent for the Stone and Marble Masons Union, District Local 2. He is a member of the American Federation of Labor.

The board will start to function July 1. Some delay, however, may be encountered, as an item of $14,320 for administrative expenses is tied up in the District appropriation bill, now in conference at the Capitol.

John H. Hanna and Mrs. William Kittle are the other two members, representing employers and the public, respectively.

No salary is attached to membership on the board.

It is estimated 25,000 persons will be affected by the new setup. These include 2,375 employed minors, 13,000 women in occupations most likely to come under the act, and about 10,000 women out of a total of 40,000 in clerical and professional jobs.



ARTHUR L. SCHOENTHAL.

Summer Heat Causes Acid Blast Fatal to 5

Halle, Germany, June 10 (AP).—Unprecedented summer heat exploded acids in a freight car and started the fire which destroyed a freight depot, killed five persons and injured four, fire department officials decided tonight. The fire last night also destroyed 165 freight cars. The temperature was up to 95 today, highest June recording in Germany in eight years.

Army Awards Huge Contract For 177 Planes

phasized that the size of the contract meant a considerably lower cost per plane compared with the former plan of making frequent, but comparatively small purchases.

Reich to Launch Big Plane.

Berlin, June 10 (AP).—Germany will launch the newest of her giant flying ships June 17 to enter the race with England, France and the United States for supremacy in commercial air service across the North Atlantic.

The ship Nordmeer will be catapulted from the carrier Friesenland at Stettin, ready to begin regular schedule to New York as soon as shakedown tests are completed.

The Nordwind, sister ship of the 16-ton craft with average speed of 160 miles and hour and cruising range of 3,215 miles, also is to be put into transatlantic service.

Thus Germany may be the first in commercial airship service to the United States. The German ships, however, will carry only mail.

Television Cast Wearing Shorts Barred by Cafe

London, June 9 (AP).—Television—probably for the first time—ran afoul of the shorts problem today. The Women's League for Health and Beauty solved it for the nonce by apologizing to the British Broadcasting Co. because four Canadian girls appeared in the BBC Restaurant yesterday, minus stockings, wearing shorts. They had been rehearsing a television program. Asked to leave the restaurant, they did; then returned in skirts and ate.

College of Law Graduates 105, Largest Class

Sen. Walsh Stresses Need for Continual Study in Practice.

The largest class in the history of Washington College of Law was graduated last night at ceremonies at Memorial Continental Hall, when bachelor of law degrees were awarded to 91, and master of law degrees were conferred on 14 others.

Bachelor's degrees were presented by Dean Grace Hays Riley. Dr. Edwin C. Dutton, president of the board of trustees, presented hoods and diplomas to candidates for the advanced degree.

Principal speaker at the ceremonies, attended by more than 800, was Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts.

The Senator said he wanted to speak "heart to heart," and as a "big brother" to the graduates, on the subject "Am I Prepared?" He stressed the need for continual preparation, concluding by asserting that "Certainly no profession needs just, dependable, honest men and women more than our's (the legal profession), because we are dealing with the most sacred thing there is, human rights."

List of Winners.

Barrage Blasts Bilbao Defense For Final Drive

Bombers Rake 'Iron Ring;' Troops Concentrated With Supplies.

Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

With the Insurgents Besieging Bilbao, June 10.—Insurgent airmen and artillery rained tons of explosives on the main defense system of Bilbao today as a break in the rains provided the first favorable conditions for bombardment in several days.

From the top of Lemona Peak, less than 8 miles from the Basque capital, I saw squadrons of Generalissimo Franco's bombers raking the narrow strip of territory between the insurgent forces and their goal.

The airmen and gunners paid chief attention to Bilbao's "iron ring," the defense system that still holds back the insurgent tide after more than two months of siege.

Behind Lemona Peak and at other points I saw the insurgent infantry poised for what their command hopes will be the final dash. With them were great quantities of mobile equipment and supplies.

Rebels Surprised in Raid.

Madrid, June 10 (AP).—Government militia launched a new offensive today on the Guadalajara front northeast of Madrid, adopting surprise tactics in a swift raid.

The action was carried out before dawn after careful preparation, and many of the insurgent troops were caught still asleep. A relief insurgent battalion came up shortly, but was driven off, government officers said. They reported 150 insurgents killed and wounded.

The newly captured position sweeps a wide expanse of territory formerly held by the insurgents near the Aragon highway north of Las Invernes.

Reich, Italy Near Agreement.

London, June 10 (AP).—Germany and Italy are expected to return next week to the 27-nation nonintervention committee and to its patrol of warships seeking to prevent foreign armament shipments to Spain.

Informed British opinion contended tonight the two nations with Britain and France will have agreed by that time on measures to protect the patrol ships. Germany and Italy had made such guarantees for safety the basis of their return to the committee. They withdrew May 31 in protest against Spanish government attacks on their ships.

Taxi Men Picket District Building

Placard-bearing taxicab drivers, a dozen strong, began a picket line march around the District Building yesterday demanding "better working conditions" for Washington's hack drivers.

Demands, according to the placards, include: More hack stands throughout the city; a taxicab control board to limit the number of cabs licensed in Washington; a reduction in number of licenses and identification cards issued hack drivers in the District; more just zone rates; the elimination of drivers who have other regular jobs and who only drive cabs before and after office hours; a "decent living" for all.

Richmond B. Keech, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia, said his office had received no petition stating demands. Commenting on them, however, he said the P. U. C. favors more hack stands, limitation of cabs, reduction in the number of licenses and identification cards, and elimination of those who have other regular jobs.

Dr. Elliott Is Shifted.

Hagerstown, Md., June 10.—Dr. David C. Elliott, acting health officer of Hagerstown and Washington County for the last eight months while Dr. W. Ross Cameron took a post-graduate course and did research work at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, was today ordered to report to Springfield, Ill., by the United States Public Health Service.

Keeper of Secrets For 8 Presidents Given Law Degree

Portland, Oreg., June 10 (AP).—Rudolph Forster, a White House secretary in whose safekeeping secrets of state have reposed more than a quarter-century, received a degree of doctor of laws from Reed College today.

Prevented by ill health from accepting personally, Forster, a member of the White House secretariat 40 years, received the degree with the plaudits of two Presidents.

Said President Roosevelt in a "suggested citation":

"Rudolph Forster—trusted confidant and assistant to eight Presidents of the United States—he has sought in vain permanently to hide his light under a bushel. His important contribution of loyal and able service to the Nation, like that of thousands of men and women whose names have been unsung, is appreciated and honored by his fellow citizens."

Said former rPesident Hoover:

"I am indeed glad to join with the many friends at Reed College in paying tribute to Mr. Rudolph Forster. Those who have occupied the White House can appreciate the extraordinary service that he has been to his country through these many Administrations."

U. S. Denies License For Va. Power Project

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Power Commission yesterday dismissed an application by the Smith Mountain Power Co., of Alexandria, Va., for a license for a power project on the Roanoke River in Bedford, Franklin and Pittsylvania Counties, Va.

The commission held the company failed to furnish the commission with all necessary information within a reasonable time. The proposed project called for a dam, reservoir, intake works and power house with a total proposed installed capacity of 30,000 horsepower. The application was filed December 31, 1935.

Marriage of Filipinos, Whites Legal in Utah

Salt Lake City, June 10 (AP).—Utah's doors were ruled open today to Filipino-white marriages, illegal in California, Arizona and Nevada. Officials of Washington County, on the main highway to the Pacific Coast, anticipated an influx of license-seekers from Southern California's Filipino-farmer thousands.

State Attorney General Joseph Chez ruled, after delving into history and ethnologists' findings, that Filipinos are Malayans—not Mongolians. Utah's statutes bar only Negro-white and Mongolian-white nuptials.

Free State Vote On Constitution Is Set for July

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 10 (AP).—The Irish Free State will vote early in July on President Eamon de Valera's proposed constitution which declares it a "sovereign, independent state," the Dail (Parliament) was told today.

De Valera said elections under which the people will express opinions on the document will be held either July 1 or 5.

Two issues, primarily, confront the people: (1) Adoption or rejection of the constitution, which proposes a new chief of state or president who will be responsible only to the people. (2) A fresh mandate or defeat for the De Valera ministry.

Attorney to Keep Keene Case Open

The Keene case will continue to be actively investigated by Maryland authorities, despite the recommendations in a report to be submitted tomorrow by Maryland State police, F. Kirk Maddrix, State's attorney of Somerset County, indicated last night.

In revealing that the case likely will be kept open, Maddrix added he had recently sent a letter to Charles F. Keene, jr., son of the dead man, asking for more information on several angles. This information, the State's attorney implied, may have a substantial bearing on the case and on the decision as to its disposition.

The only development yesterday in Washington was an examination by Inspector Bernard W. Thompson of a duplicate of Keene's insurance policy. The policy, which expires in July, called for payment of $1,500 in event of death by accident on a common carrier.

Anchor Drowning Is Termed Suicide

Claiborne, Md., June 10 (AP).—The drowning of Mrs. James Kelly in the Chesapeake Bay near her home was described by a coroner's jury today as suicide. Magistrate Edward Tyler Miller conducted the inquest.

Mrs. Kelly's body, with a 50-pound anchor tied to her neck, was found in 12 feet of water beside a dock near her home yesterday.

Mrs. Kelly had talked with her two sons when they returned home about midnight Tuesday. They started a search when she was missing the following morning. One of the sons found her body.

$10,000,000 Tenancy Plan Goes to Senate

C. of C. Group Condemns Policy of Buying, Reselling Land.

By Russell Smith

The Senate yesterday received from its Agriculture Committee the farm tenant bill, authorizing establishment of a Farmers Home Corporation and giving it $10,000,000 to spend.

Administration experts on the sharecropper-tenancy problem have said in the past that $50,000,000 would be "only a drop in the bucket" in conduct of such a program.

The new bill, bearing the name of Senator John Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, provides, however, for expenditure of $25,000,000 in 1938 and of $50,000,000 in 1939.

These funds mostly are to be used to buy land for resale to selected tenants, a procedure which failed of approval in the House Agriculture Committee on a tie vote. Such purchases and resales also were condemned by indirection yesterday by a committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Local Loans Favored.

"In any plans for facilitating the transition from tenancy to farm ownership," said the chamber committee, "provisions should be made to the largest practicable degree for the most careful selection of applicants, for the greatest exercise of individual initiative, and for local financial participation in the execution of such plans.

"In order to achieve these ends, a loan system should be adopted whereby the Federal Government would guarantee a liberal percentage of the loans to be made by local institutions."

Although the chamber declared itself sympathetic, it minimized increase in tenants, asserting there was a 2 per cent rise between 1920 and 1935.

The provision whereby the Government would retain title to farms until tenants had paid for them in full is regarded as the principal obstacle to agreement between House and Senate on this legislation.

House Bill Differs.

The House bill, tied up in the Rules Committee for a month, would appropriate $50,000,000 for loans.

Expenditure of $145,000,000 within four years for land retirement and rehabilitation loans is included also in the House bill, but agreement to allot relief funds to the Resettlement Administration for these purposes has eliminated difficulty of agreement on that phase.

Senate leaders are confident, they said yesterday, that a compromise can be reached.

The corporation which the Bankhead bill would set up would buy land after appraisal, then sell or lease to tenants chosen by local committees. Tenants would be required to pay for the land over a 60-year period at an interest rate of 3 per cent.

Britain Prepares To Claim Lands Near South Pole

London, June 10 (AP).—Great Britain took the first step today toward expanding claims to territories of the South Pole, a step that might involve dispute with American explorers' claims to vast territories.

The imperial conference in a surprise move adopted a Polar committee report to expand British sovereignty in the Antarctic, rich in raw materials, especially coal.

(Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, of Virginia, who spent four years in the Antarctic on two expeditions, said, in Boston, there was no reason for "controversy."

(The principal British exploration, he said, has been west of the land claimed in the name of the United States.

(He said enough coal to "supply the world" was found in the Antarctic, "coal that no one else has ever seen, but the British have enough in territory they have covered.")

R. L. Jarnagin Heads Veteran Appeal Board

Col. Stacomb Is Appointed as Vice Chairman, Sears Associate.

The appointment of Robert L. Jarnagin as chairman of the board of veterans' appeals has been approved by President Roosevelt, it was announced yesterday by Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

At the same time Hines announced the appointment of Col. William B. Stacomb as vice chairman of the board and that of William J. Sears as associate member.

Jarnagin, who has been vice-chairman since the board was organized in 1933, has been with the Veterans' Administration since 1921. Educated at the University of Illinois, he practiced law at Shelbyville, Ill., until he enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1917.

He served 15 months in France and was discharged with the rank of first lieutenant. He afterward served for a time as assistant State's attorney at Shelbyville. Since entering the Veterans' Administration he has been sub-district manager, regional manager, chief of the investigation division and chief of the appeals division.

Col. Stacomb, who comes from New York City, is also a World War veteran. He was a major of infantry from 1917 to 1919 and took part in the St. Mihiel and Meuse Argonne actions. A graduate of the New York College of Pharmacy, he was active in the retail drug business for 25 years.

Sears is a former Representative from Florida, having first been elected to the Sixty-fourth Congress. Upon the expiration of his service at the end of the Seventy-fourth Congress, he was appointed to the Federal Tariff Commission. His service there ended June 1.

Robinson Hints At Extensions Of Security Act

By the Associated Press.

A statement yesterday by Senator Robinson, the majority leader, that Federal spending for social welfare probably will be increased set other legislators to speculating about new projects the Administration may have in mind.

Some suggested an expansion of activities under the social security act probably is included. A revision of the bill has been expected for the next session of Songress.

In addition to providing for unemployment insurance and old age pensions through funds built up by taxation, the social security act calls for immediate assistance to the needy aged, to mothers and dependent children and to the needy blind.

Robinson's assertion was made in an interview with a delegation from the People's Lobby, headed by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Methodist Church.

300 Pupils to Join In Dance Revue

More than 300 pupils of the Phil Hayden Dance Studios will take part in a revue to be given by the school Sunday night in the National Theater.

Music for several of the selections has been especially written for the show, Hayden announced yesterday, although part of the program will be interpretations of works by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Grieg and Borodin.

Phil Lampkin's Band will accompany the revue, with George Goldberg as director. Henry Evans collaborated with Hayden in composing the new music.

Thief Bites Way Out When Caught in Home

Using his teeth as weapons, a colored thief escaped from the home of Walter J. Dick, 2812 Adams Mill road, early yesterday after biting the home owner on the leg.

Dick told police he surprised the man leaving his house and when he grappled with him, the thief bit him on the leg. The wound was dressed by a surgeon from Garfield Hospital.

The colored man in the struggle dropped several pieces of stolen clothing. Police issued an alarm for him.

THE STORY BEHIND THE RUM

Soon after the U. S. bought the Virgin Islands in 1917, prohibition cut off the Islands' income from their 200-year-old art of making fine rum. Low point was 1930. Destitution was widespread. Something had to be done. It was. The Federal emergency relief organization stepped in to put the Islands on a self-supporting basis, formed the Virgin Islands Company. Idea was to stop the need for growing Federal subsidies and give work instead of charity. Private capital was invited to set up a large scale distillery—was invited for 3 years—wasn't interested. Out of necessity, a distillery was bought, started operations in 1934. The idle of the Islands were called off relief rolls onto payrolls at honest work. The rum they've been making is called Government House, as fine a rum as distilling science can produce.

Senate Smith Denies Hint He 'Buried' Report on Farms

Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, took the Senate floor on a question of "personal privilege" yesterday and challenged the truth of statements published about him by a syndicate column, The Washington Merry-Go-Round.

Smith said the statements contained "false insinuations."

The story he denied said the chairman of the Agriculture Committee had buried in committee files a report from the Federal Trade Commission on farm income and charging some companies with making large profits.

Smith told the Senate the report, prepared in response to a Senate resolution of August 15, 1935, was submitted to his committee last March 2 and since has "always been open to the public."

Smith was supported by two other committee members, Senators McGill (Democrat), Kansas, and Gillette (Democrat), Iowa.

$25,000 Asked As Ransom for Missing Heiress

Rendezvous Set; Middle-Aged Couple Sought as Kidnapers.

Newton, a former postmistress, reported seeing Mrs. Parsons drive through the village yesterday about two hours after she left her home with an unidentified, middle-aged couple who ostensibly were interested in renting or buying some property owned by the missing woman.

Before Mrs. Newton, the last person to see the comely gray-haired matron, who led a quiet, unpretentious life although she was reputed to be worth some $200,000, was Mrs. Anna Kupryonova, described by police as the daughter of a minor Russian nobleman executed during the Bolshevik revolution.

Mrs. Kupryonova, who has been employed by the Parsons family for about four years as household manager and companion, told Assistant District Attorney Joseph S. Arata, of Suffolk County, that a middle-aged couple drove into the grounds about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, shortly afterward, she said, Mrs. Parsons called out she was going "over to the Sammis place."

Arata said he understood this to refer to an estate near Huntington in which Mrs. Parsons had an interest.

No alarm was felt until her husband, William H. Parsons, returned last night from a trip to New York's lower East Side, where he had gone to obtain a Russian recipe for squab paste from friends of Mrs. Kupryonova. Worried by his wife's failure to meet him with the car at the railroad station, as usual, he finally called the police at about 9 p. m.

Two hours later the ransom note was found by Bert Walker, an investigator from the district attorney's office.

Police Chief Edward Bridges, of Brookhaven township, tonight disclosed a widespread search was under way for the middle-aged couple.

James Allen, of Port Jefferson, a few miles east of here, reported seeing a couple answering the description furnished by Mrs. Kupryonova sitting in a parked automobile on the pier of a ferryboat line operating between Port Jefferson and Bridgeport, Conn.

He first noticed them about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, Allen said. His attention was drawn to them because the license plates of their car bore the key letter of some county other than Suffolk and because they remained on the pier for two hours. Chief Bridges did not say whether Allen recalled their license number.

Allen said the woman got out of the car once and made a telephone call from a hotel opposite the pier. A waitress at the hotel, Bessie Kelly, who directed her to the telephone booth, described her as between 48 and 50 years old. She wore expensive clothing.

Efforts were being made to check on the telephone call.

Two bloodhounds brought from the State police barracks at Hawthorne sought to pick up the missing woman's scent in the rolling countryside 56 miles from New York City, which has been the locale of numerous fictional mystery stories.

The ransom note, printed on cheap ruled paper, was reported by a reliable source to read substantially as follows:

"Bill Parsons: We have your wife. Bring $25,000 to the Jamaica bus terminal within the next 24 hours and my men will meet you and call you by name. Do not bring any cops. If you do, Alice will never speak to you again."

The use of first names and the statement that Parsons would be recognizable on sight was viewed by investigators as indicating the kidnapers were familiar with the family.

Although they are listed in the New York social register and are connected with several well-to-do families, they were said by townspeople to prefer rustic pursuits to social activities.

The amount of the ransom demand also was considered significant, since Mrs. Parsons was in line to inherit approximately $25,000 from the estate of her aunt, widow of Col. Timithy S. Williams, a former president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. Three years ago she received the principal of a $30,000 trust fund left her by Col. Williams.

State tax records also showed her husband last December received about $18,000 from the estate of his father, William, sr., who was a paper manufacturer and at one time served as treasurer of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice.

Their home, where they had lived since Parsons retired from business in New York ten years ago, was a two-story white frame house, set about 200 feet back from Gould road, with a red barn and several other outbuildings. They raised pheasants, chickens and squabs. They also kept a few sheep and goats.

The only child on the place was the 11-year-old son of Mrs. Kupryonova, whose father was killed in a motor accident in France several years ago.

A.F.G.E. Rebels Desert A.F. of L. In Wild Session

U. S. Workers Flock to C.I.O.; Condemn 'Inactivity' of Green Union.

Committee Against False Economy; the other condemned the executive councils of the A. F. G. E. and the A. F. of L. for their "inactivity in the face of the drive against the welfare of Government employes." The meeting, through the same resolution, condemned "the arbitrary suspension (from the A. F. G. E.) of the lodges comprising the Committee Against False Economy as an undemocratic and anti-union act."

Paul Olson, of the Library of Congress and chairman of the mass meeting, read telegrams from a number of A. F. G. E. lodges in various sections of the country, indorsing the program of the Committee Against False Economy and inquiring how they might affiliate. Among these were messages from Lodge 314, Philadelphia; 229, Seattle; 232, New Orleans, and 238, New York.

Henry Rhine, of WPA Lodge 139, one of the seven suspended for independent action against the economy measures, said the committee had definitely decided not to appear Saturday before the special investigating committee, which will air the charges, unless an open hearing is granted. He denied the committee ever had criticized Congress, as was charged by A. F. G. E. President Charles I. Stengle in suspending the lodges. He insinuated that out of the mass meeting would grow an organization which would have "the welfare of the employes at heart."

Representative Keller Speaks.

Earlier, the committee heard Representative Kent E. Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, say that he didn't belong to "a scrimp and pinch club. * * *I'm not for cutting your salaries. * * *It's good economy to pay good wages; it's humanitarian; it's decent * * * If it were between cutting or increasing your salaries 10 per cent, I'd be for increasing it," he said. He suggested they visit their Congressmen and line up support.

Behind them, too, was Representative R. G. Allen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania. Speaking of the pending economy measures, he said that so long as he had a vote, never would he sit by and see such a thing happen. He said men and women could not give their best to their jobs when they were wondering how they would make ends meet at home. "That's a simple truism," he said, and one which he couldn't understand why the Congressmen on the Hill had not seen.

Representative John Main Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, spoke briefly on the side of the employes.

Other lodges indorsing the committee program and expressing support of the actions taken so far were Social Security Board Union, Baltimore; Social Security Board Union, Denver; National Research Union, New York; San Francisco (A. F. G. E.) 339; Technical and Research Employes Union, Chicago; A. F. of L. Federal local; Philadelphia Central Labor Union, Baltimore Marine, Firemen, Boilers and Watertenders Union of the Atlantic and Gulf Coast, Allegheny Trades Council, Cumberland, Md., which represents 30,000 people, including both C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unions.

Program Adopted.

The meeting unanimously adopted the program of the Committee Against False Economy, which seeks:

"The Committee Against False Economy opposes any blanket reductions in departmental or relief appropriations which would curtail necessary functions of Government. We therefore protest reductions such as those proposed by Senator Byrnes and Representative Cannon, which must result in mass dismissals and pay cuts.

"As opposed to these false economy measures, we stand for the development of a career civil service. Therefore we support: 1—A minimum salary, adequate to maintain a decent standard of living, and automatic promotions; 2—Extension of civil service by non-competitive examinations without application of State apportion; 3—An adequate transfer system and preferential re-employment for those dismissed through no fault of their own; 4—Repeal of section 213 of the 1932 economy act."

The seven lodges which called the mass meeting several weeks ago began agitation for an active fight by the A. F. G. E. national headquarters against the economy measures. The national leaders urged a quiet course. After persisting in activity and banding themselves in the Committee Against False Economy—and principally through calling the mass meeting over the wishes of the national officers—the lodges were suspended. A hearing of the charges is scheduled for Saturday morning in the Hamilton Hotel.

The New Negro Alliance, Inc., a civic and betterment organization in Washington, last night also went on record as endorsing the Committee Against False Economy.

Marketing Racket Curb Is Promised

By the Associated Press.

Congressional leaders promised prompt attention tonight to recommendations of the Federal Trade Commission that "racketeering" and other injurious practices in the marketing of fruit and vegetables be eliminated.

Chairman Lea (Democrat, California) said the House Interstate Commerce Committee will "give consideration to whatever legislation may be deemed necessary" as soon as members have a chance to read the commission's report.

The commission proposed an extensive inspection service by the Department of Agriculture to improve terminal market facilities and to curb "racketeers." It also suggested additional powers to enable the Interstate Commerce Commission to prevent rings of claim agents for preying on railroads.

Anti-Wage Bill Charges Rouse Ire of Senators

Members of Committee Attack All Testimony of Owner-Witnesses.

Black, through his questioning, definitely indicated that industry had better decide to co-operate with, instead of battling against, wage-and-hour legislation. He virtually served notice on employers to prepare themselves for an omnibus measure of this sort.

Dresser, who admitted he had been a member of the association for only the last year, and who admitted Sargent and others had written the statement he presented, fared badly on the stand in an hour's grilling, so much so that he returned to his seat visibly shaken, although smiling.

The tall, white-haired Rhode Island lawyer had said: "We who have seen NRA fail cannot believe that success can be found by going further in the wrong direction. . . . The decision you make on this bill will be one of the most historic in United States history.

Wood Grills Dresser.

"If we embark upon a program of virtually eliminating State lines and creating enormous powers in the hands of a centralized Government, then we have altered drastically the course of the Nation."

Then, after a discourse on the world "trend toward Bolshevism or Communism, Socialism, Fascism, Naziism—all blood brothers under the skin," he said:

"This bill . . . certainly would be a step in this direction. . . . NRA's delegated powers were small compared with those contemplated in the new legislation. . . . There is no crisis that justifies another hastily drawn piece of legislation through which industry will have to wallow while proving the costliness of such legislative experimentation."

Representative Wood took Dresser on first, and Dresser outlined to the Missourian his own view that "low costs and low wages lead to prosperity." Dresser said "industry should be let alone to put men back to work," "Federal legislation is a mistake," and "States can control sweatshops by State legislation."

Wood asked: "Why, if business is operated in the interest of the general welfare, and while business had complete control of itself for 12 years, did the businessmen of the country ask for the NRA in 1935? How do you account for the fact that the NRA was a dismal failure when manufacturers drew their own codes and were in sole control of their own industries?"

Dresser had no answer. Black then said dryly: "I note one argument left out of your statement. I wonder why you did not state that recovery actually began under Hoover in 1932 and was arrested by the Democratic New Deal?"

Gave to G. O. P.

Dresser smiled. Black then drew from him the statement he had contributed to the Republican Party last year. Black then said: "Have you ever heard of the National Association of Manufacturers backing any State laws or Federal laws in the interests of labor?"

Dresser said he couldn't recall such instances.

Senator Pepper then questioned Dresser on his objections to the inclusion of a ban on child labor in the act. Dresser revealed the N. A. M. had fought the adoption of the child labor amendment to the Constitution on the grounds it meant "youth control."

Pepper, indignant, pressed Dresser: "What is the manufacturers' concern over youth control? What has the association ever done about education? What about public health legislation? Delinquent children?"

Dresser knew of no "progressive" legislation backed by the association.

Wood asked what Dresser had meant by saying the present bill "tended to fascism and bolshevism." Dresser said, "The bill tends to put Government control over industry."

Wood asked: "Do you call that fascism?"

Sargent for "Little Fellow."

Sargent, bald, spectacled and goateed, previously had endured the same type of grilling. Ramspeck had begun it by asking him, "When has the N. A. M. ever favored any legislation or tried to help out Congress? You never propose anything—you always object. * * *

Sargent admitted this.

Ramspeck next asserted, "You're too intelligent a man, Mr. Sargent, to tell this committee you can regulate sweat shops by State legislation. You must admit it can't be done."

Sargent then said, "It's not true our association represents big business. We take just as much interest in the little fellow."

Rockefeller Scion Pardons Kidnap Hoax

Nurse Confesses 'Plot' Because She Suspected 'Other Woman.'

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 10.—A sobbing young nurse confessed today she "framed the whole story" of a plot against John Rockefeller Prentice because she fancied he was losing interest in her.

Her statement, announced by Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan, ended a serio-comic episode involving the 27-year-old brunette, Miss Margaret Montgomery, the grandson of the late oil tycoon, John D. Rockefeller, sr., and suspicions of a sinister kdnaping scheme.

Prentice, 34, bespectacled attorney, confronted the tearful girl and said:

"Well, I'm surprised, Peg."

He declined to prosecute. The slender nurse was released. As she left the prosecutor's office, Prentice shook hands and observed:

"I'll see you later, probably."

The double-time drama began early today. Miss Montgomery was picked up by a police squad at an Ashland avenue restaurant, after she had called Prentice and asked him to meet her there. The gist of her account to officials was this:

She was seized by two men, bundled into a car, instructed to summon Prentice by telephone and let out near the cafe.

"One of them said he had been watching for Mr. Prentice for several years because he had disappointed his sister," officials quoted her. "They said they were using me to convey a message to him to settle down."

Prentice, upon receiving the call, telephoned Miss Montgomery's roommate, Kathryn Harris. She called police.

Miss Montgomery was subjected to an extensive interrogation. She related she had enjoyed dates with Prentice for a year, but became suspicious that "there was another woman."

"I became frantic," she was quoted by Moynihan concerning the motive for the hoax. "I thought he was losing interest in me."

"And that's why you concocted the whole story?" queried Moynihan.

The reply was a tremulous "yes."

"I wanted," she said, "to be a martyr."

Financial Troubles Blamed in Suicide

Despondent over financial reverses, John Noble Hoover, 60, shot and killed himself in his apartment at 1346 Park road northwest yesterday.

Hoover was found in a chair in the kitchen by his wife, Minerva T. Hoover, who was awakened by the report. She told police a 32-caliber revolver was on the floor nearby.

Mrs. Hoover told police her husband, who had been operating a meat stand in the Arcade Market for a number of years, recently was depressed because of business troubles.

A Strategic Blunder.

Slightly more than 100 employes of an electric power company in Flint, Mich., went on strike Wednesday, pulled a few switches and deprived the people of numerous communities in 13 different counties of electricity for 16 hours. During that brief period they gave the public an opportunity to learn the extent and variety of the damage that can be wrought by an irresponsible group who place attainment of their own ends above the welfare of the community. It is a demonstration that no astute labor leader would condone. Indeed, the strikers were promptly and effectively rebuked by John L. Lewis.

Everybody knows that in highly integrated modern industrial States, a few workers in key positions can, if they choose, throw the whole complicated mechanism of production, exchange and distribution out of gear. When industrial conflicts arise involving large numbers of men, the loss and inconvenience due to strikes, lockouts and labor disturbances are to some extent excused. But when a mere handful of individuals attempt to extort concessions by resorting to tactics more familiar to holdup men than to labor unions, public tolerance is short-lived.

Furthermore, the Flint episode brings a salutary reminder that the people injured by irresponsible labor tactics are not simply a few obdurate employers. They are also workers who learn by painful experience the cost of reckless strikes and arbitrary leadership.

Excellent Selections.

The Lazarus of the District code—the minimum wage law recently revived by a Supreme Court decision after having been considered dead for 14 years—requires an administrative board composed of representatives of the public, employers and labor. The board serves without pay, which means that only public-spirited as well as highly competent citizens can be considered for it. As yet, the labor representative has not been announced by the Commissioners, but if they choose as wisely as they have in filling the employer and consumer positions, the community will be well pleased.

John H. Hanna will represent the employers of the city. As an officer of the Capital Transit Co. he is eminently qualified to speak for those hiring labor in Washington. The street car company, of course, is one of the Capital's largest employers.

To represent the general public, the Commissioners have chosen Mrs. William Kittle. Admirably equipped for the responsibility by a broad public service experience in progressive Wisconsin as well as the District, she is a particularly appropriate choice. Because the minimum wage law applies principally to women's pay, the city fathers were well advised to select a feminine member of the board. Even if all wages were to come before the board, however, Mrs. Kittle would still have been an excellent selection.

District Civil Service.

District employes in nonpolicy-making positions today are drawn generally from the lists of the Federal Civil Service Commission. This is provided for by an arrangement, with nothing official or compulsory about it, concluded between the commission and local authorities. And though it works with fair satisfaction, it is obviously no desirable foundation on which the personnel program of a city of 600,000 inhabitants should be built. The District needs a regularized civil service system.

After long delay the Commissioners are attempting to provide Washington with a merit system of its own. Corporation Counsel Seal is now drafting a bill which will be introduced at this session of Congress by Chairman King of the Senate District Committee. The Federation of Citizens Associations and other civic groups will rejoice at the news, for they have long argued that District residents should have first call on positions in the municipal government, a privilege they do not enjoy under the existing arrangement. The point is entirely well taken. But whether a separate District civil service organization is needed is not so certain. One considerable objection is that it would mean another expense for the District at a time when the city is already faced with a deficit of more than $6,000,000.

Moreover, a separate civil service office for the District would be superfluous. All that is needed is a civil service act for Washington that would be administered by the Federal Civil Service Commission. For standard positions, the Federal commission would merely prepare special lists containing the names of only Washington applicants. For special positions, local examinations could be easily arranged at a trifling expense to the District.

The important consideration is a real merit system for Washington and not a special body to operate it.

If The Income Tax Fails.

If it were not fraught with dangers of gross discrimination against permanent District residents, the revolt in the House District Committee against the proposed local income tax would be very amusing.

For years the House has applauded the idea that the District should be self-sustaining. In accord with that theory, the Federal contribution toward maintenance of the Capital City has been gradually chiseled down to the present minimum. Congressmen have complained that taxes here are inadequate and that local residents are a favored group. Yet when a subcommittee attempts to balance Washington's budget by the enactment of new taxes, even members of the House District Committee attempt to riddle that program by exempting Congressmen, their secretaries and another favored group of local residents who retain the privilege of voting in their home States.

As the bill came out of committee, it is in a state of confusion. But the purpose of the Congressmen who forced amendment of the income tax provision is entirely clear. They wish to exempt from taxation in the District a large group who may be politically powerful, as well as to safeguard their own salaries against local revenue collectors.

Of course, this amendment, if it should place 70,000 to 100,000 local residents beyond reach of the bill, would eliminate the income tax as a practical means of raising revenue. To tax one group of citizens while exempting another group equally able to pay would be too arbitrary for serious consideration. The disfranchisement of Washingtonians is in itself bad enough, but to levy heavier taxes upon those residents who can vote nowhere would be well nigh intolerable.

When the bill comes up in the House that body ought to realize that its policy toward the District as well as the income tax is at stake. If the House should deny the local community the means of effective and equitable taxation, it will acquire a heavy responsibility to increase Washington's allowance from Federal funds. The Capital City has a positive claim upon the Federal Government for its extraordinary expenses in any circumstances. But if Congress is not willing to permit taxation of all incomes derived from the District, the Federal obligation to supplement local revenues will be greatly accentuated.

The issue becomes the more pointed because of the previous unsuccessful attempts to find other sources of revenue. The committee properly turned its back on the sales tax. The present bill includes virtually every source of revenue that was found practicable. Indeed, it even retains the indefensible levy on savings and other intangible property. Failure of the income tax would doubtless result in a heavier tax burden for home owners, despite the almost unanimous agreement that they are already paying a disproportionate share of the District's expenses.

A larger Federal contribution, therefore, seems to be the only practical alternative to retention of the income tax in its original form. The House cannot consistently reject this modest levy upon the salaries of its own members, along with those of other District residents, unless it is prepared to boost the so-called lump sum by several million dollars.

Outlook For Crime.

Washington has received two indications during the week that its fight against crime will be strengthened. On Monday, Superintendent of Police Brown responded in commendable spirit to suggestions recently made by the Washington Criminal Justice Association. On Wednesday, Commissioner Hazen announced plans to increase the efficiency of the police.

Discrepancies between reported crimes and convictions, Maj. Brown declared, arise from a custom of arresting persons on several charges and then prosecuting them on only one or two. This so-called "Willie Pye" system has now been discontinued. Under an agreement with the district attorney's office, evidence in all cases charged against a suspect will be presented to the grand jury. Obviously, that is the desirable procedure.

Criminals operating in the District can be expected to take notice of this change in routine and curb their activities accordingly. For it means that a more thorough administration of justice has been established here and that offenders are likely to receive stiffer jail sentences when caught. The implication is that they will have to serve in full the time their various crimes deserve. The city's unenviable reputation as an "easy town" should decline appreciably as a result.

Commissioner Hazen is especially concerned over the high number of holdups and housebreakings in Washington. In respect to the last, Maj. Brown says that this city's high record can be partly explained by the fact that the definition of "housebreaking" used on police blotters here is far broader than that used in other cities with which the Capital is compared. Even allowing for this, however, there is no question as to the urgent need for more stringent measures in dealing with crimes of this sort.

Commissioner Hazen proposes that the Police Department be equipped with highly trained law-enforcement squads to suppress this lawlessness. That is indeed a welcome prospect. The city will await with interest specific recommendations from the Commissioner as to how these squads can best be organized.

First Aid To Tax Dodgers.

The President's recent message enumerating various devices employed by a wealthy minority to reduce their income taxes has quite naturally called to mind an extremely important legal avenue of escape which he neglected to mention—that afforded by tax-exempt Federal, State and municipal issues. It is estimated that the volume of wholly or partially tax-exempt public securities now amounts to the huge sum of $55,000,000,000, of which $20,000,000,000 are issues of State and local governments. There are also many thousands of State and municipal employes whose incomes are exempt from Federal taxation.

President Roosevelt has pointed out that a constitutional amendment would be required to enable Congress to tax the obligations of local governments or the incomes of local officials. There is nothing, however, to prevent the Federal Government from abolishing tax-exemption privileges for its own issues. Instead of following that course, the Administration has been adding at a rapid rate to the volume of wholly tax-exempt notes and bills during recent years. Undoubtedly the Treasury would be reluctant to surrender this privilege so long as deficit financing continues and the States are in a position to escape similar impositions.

It seems futile to make a major issue of tax dodging by a minority of wealthy individuals while the Government itself offers to people in this class opportunities to invest in a rapidly expanding volume of tax-exempt issues. It is much easier, of course, to concentrate upon a few conspicuous instances of evasion and avoidance of taxes than to drive steadily toward elimination of a system that is made to accommodate tax dodgers. But if Congress intends to attack the problem realistically, it will take time to study this more important source of revenue losses. The constitutional obstacles in the way of complete elimination of these exemptions are not insuperable and do not excuse the Administration's present defeatist attitude.

Since the power to tax carries with it the power to destroy, it is very important to retain safeguards against abuse of the taxing privilege in the relations of the Federal Government and the States. Given proper safeguards, however, removal of tax-exemption privileges which enable individuals to escape their fair share of income taxes is a much needed reform.

The amount of revenue immediately derivable from such a change probably would not be great, since taxes could not be applied to outstanding tax-exempt issues without gross breach of contract. But any long-time constructive program for reforming our income-tax laws to make them more equitable and effective calls for removal of tax-exemption privileges.

Slicing The Imagination.

In a world that makes psychiatrists rich and puts in the best-seller lists overnight a book extolling neuroticism, news of a surgical technique that offers an easy cure for sick minds is particularly welcome. "Psychosurgery" is the name given the operation by three doctors of the George Washington University Medical School who are demonstrating its possibilities before the annual assembly of the American Medical Association. A Portuguese surgeon first reported the discovery last year in France.

The operation appears to hold out hope for recovery to persons suffering from mental disabilities ranging from crying spells to schizophrenia. It consists of inserting into the brain under a local anesthetic an instrument which cuts through most of the links connecting the sensory areas with those where the processes of thinking are believed to operate. By so doing, impulses of apprehension, anxiety, depression and agitation are minimized.

When tried on a score of patients on whom other treatments had failed, this comparatively simple operation effected an encouraging number of recoveries. Earlier the operation had been performed on one of two wild monkeys. While the untouched beast remained wild and ferocious, the other became almost instantaneously calm and affectionate and has remained so to date.

The doctors explain this reaction by the fact that their operation slows down the intuitional processes of the brain; that, in effect, the imagination is sliced down to a point where emotional upsets are impossible. To manipulate thus anything so intangible as an imagination is, to the layman, well-nigh miraculous. But apparently modern science knows not the impossible. That being the case its next goal might be a technique for stimulating the mental process. Sluggish minds and inability to think or act originally are a much greater handicap to our civilization than overstimulated imaginations.

"Glamour" In The News.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The communication from Mr. Morley, Editor of The Post, in the issue of June 9, in which in his summary of the Edward VIII episode he says there is not the "romantic glamour" thrown over him in England which is noticeable in America, bids fair to give us other revealing views of Europe from a practiced and unbiased writer.

The same issue of The Post tells of a conflict in Germany, which a discerning writer says is "not a conflict between Dr. Goebbels and an American cardinal, but a conflict between two systems of philosophy." When the Nazi government declares that Germany must decide whether to obey Adolph Hitler or a church government, which is purely secular, there is a challenge to the church to show that its "Thus saith the Lord" is authentic. This challenge is not confined to the German situation. The time seems not far distant when every religion must answer at the bar of unbiased reason this question. For years, much has gone on unquestioned and unrebuked because representatives of the church have said: "I have God's word and command for the course I am pursuing."

We know the horrible cruelties which have resulted from this supposed authority. That chapter in Jewish history which tells of the conquest of Canaan with its unparalleled butchering of innocent peoples; the inquisition with its blood-curdling agencies; the torturing of supposed witches by "godly men" who are called our "exiled fathers," who had fled from religious persecution in England—each and all make us pause in this day when any organization says, in a conflict between two philosophies of government, "I have the Lord on my side."

Germany is being ruled today by two men who were reared in the very church organization which they find they must now antagonize. And they are antagonizing it, not as they say, because they are antagonizing religion, but because the church organization which would take over the education of the country's youth, is purely political in its aims and ends. The German government of today challenges the church to prove that its philosophy and its authority are of God, by exhibiting a purer life and culture than paganism exhibited. This is not a new challenge. It applies to every religion and religious body on earth.

This is written, not to condone what is wrong in the actions of Hitler, Mussolini or in any church of whatever name. Our newspapers in America are prone to "take sides," and as a result we have much "glamour" as well as much prejudice when speaking of matters involving European peoples.

Let us hope that Mr. Meyer and Mr. Morley will keep their heads as well as they have in giving us the real situation in Great Britain on Edward, Duke of Windsor, and "the woman he loved."

Male Clerks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reply to "Justice's" letter in The Post regarding married couples in Government service, I would like to add my bit. To me, personally, "male clerks" in Government service indicate a sort of backbone-less sort of individual. They come in the same class as male dancers, and a few others who don't have the brawn or brain to do a real man's work. If this class of man would be satisfied to be clerks, stenographers, or telephone operators, they certainly should have the jobs. Most men want "he-men" jobs. I do not refer to highly trained technical and scientific men in the service.

If a check-up were made, I feel sure that "Justice" would find comparatively few employed women whose money goes for luxuries. Most of the women who work today would rather stay home, and perhaps keep house, but their money is going for useful education, living expenses, care of parents, and many other things. I am a telephone operator, and make hardly enough to support my parents. If this "Justice" would like my job, well, here it is. Imagine a "he-man" sitting seven hours a day at a switchboard—"Number please?"

Government jobs are supposed to be awarded on merit, not on sex or marital status.

Still More Swimming Pools Needed

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I express to you my personal appreciation for the excellent editorial which appeared in The Post of June 9 under the heading "More Swimming Pools?" The splendid assistance which your newspaper has given to those of us interested in providing bathing facilities for the children of Washington is deserving of special commendation.

The opening of the new swimming pool in East Potomac Park last Saturday was intended by the Interior Department to replace the municipal swimming pools at the Monument Grounds, which were demolished last year only after a vigorous protest on the part of Southwest residents. The new pool is beautiful and ideally located for those persons sufficiently fortunate to possess automobiles or other means of transportation to the golf course. Although the site is located geographically in Southwest Washington, the Washington channel separates the residential portion of the Southwest section.

Unless facilities for transporting children from the playgrounds or homes in the Southwest are provided, it is practically impossible for them to utilize this fine new pool. It must be recognized that the distance from the Hoover Playground to the golf course on foot is about three miles, entirely too far and too dangerous a distance for young children to walk. Small tots of pre-school age could find no benefit here even if transportation were provided because no wading pool is available for them to use at this location.

It must likewise be remembered that present plans call for free utilization of bathing facilities by children during the morning hours only, Monday through Friday. This means that on hot afternoons as well as Saturdays and Sundays young boys will be tempted to test their skill against the treacherous currents of the Potomac River, which flows so close to their homes. This year has proved to be no exception to those in the past, wherein under-privileged children have needlessly lost their lives through blindness of our Government officials to the need for swimming pools conveniently located in the neighborhood where the children live.

The East Potomac swimming pool will serve a splendid purpose, I am sure, but it will never suffice as a safeguard for the protection of Southwest's indigent children's lives and health. In all of this section there is no place for little ones to wade. A tank for this purpose at Hoover Playground is an absolute necessity. An instruction pool at this location for older boys and girls is equally essential. By the time schools close this month we must find some means of transporting children to East Potomac Park, either by bus or boat. These are the three goals of the Southwest Citizens' Association with respect to the subject of your editorial. It is unnecessary for me to comment on the necessity for colored swimming facilities, as you have already indicated this deficiency in your excellent statement of the case.

You may be assured that Washington citizenry is unanimous in upholding your views.

University of Virginia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was interested in that speech of Senator James Hamilton Lewis, which appeared on the front page of your paper June 7. It seemed to be in defense of drinking among students of the University of Virginia.

No one will deny that at the time Senator Lewis was a student at the university, it ranked as one of the outstanding universities of the United States—yea of the world. But since that era it has fallen under evil control and today it ranks as a third class university. This fact should concern the Senator more than what the Harvard students did when the President of the United States visited their school. Whether they hissed or applauded the President, did not change the status of the University of Virginia. It takes more than a red herring to obscure truth.

Is drunkenness prevalent at the University of Virginia? This is the question Senator Lewis should solve. The Senator says eminent professors at Harvard represent "the old Tory order of a hundred years ago." If this is true, I congratulate Harvard. The men in public life 100 years ago were so far superior to any in public life today that it is sacrilege to mention them in terms of comparison. I seem to recall having heard men of intelligence, morality and high ethical standards called "Tories" before, but they still loom far above their traducers.

Senator Lewis is a Virginian by birth and I have felt proud of his achievements. However, I believe he is making a mistake in trying to "cover up" for drunkenness among the students of the University of Virginia. I have not seen the article in Life Magazine, to which he refers, but I have talked with the parents of young men who have attended the university in question, and I have talked with men and women in Charlottesville and who know what conditions really are. Move to correct those conditions, Senator; don't try to cover them.

Tell the other Senators why the University of Virginia has fallen from an institution second to none in the United States to a third-class institution. In doing this, you will honor yourself. You blame Life's article on "sectional prejudice" but you fail to mention the fact that it is "sectional prejudice" which has lowered the standards of our revered university and which is directing her downward movement today. The subversive interests to which the university has been delivered, are not from this section; they are descendants of the old English Roundheads who settled north of the Mason and Dixon line. Go after them Senator; defend your Alma Mater against their evil influence. Let the Harvard students hiss whom they will; let the Harvard professors be "Tories" but devote your intellect to restoring the University of Virginia to its former rank and prestige. VIRGINIAN.

The Labor Situation.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: My congratulations to Fred J. Carter for his apt summary of the labor situation. America often seems indifferent to serious crises but perhaps sooner or later she will realize the danger of permitting labor to go hog wild, for after all the consumer-public will bear the cost in the long run. If John Lewis does not approve of "wage fixing by a Federal agency," by whom does he approve it, outside of his own quasi-infallible person? What we really need is a Federal agency to regulate John Lewis et al.

Names For Drys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that a letter of the W. C. T. U. has recommended that in the future all people who do not believe in the philosophy of prohibition be designated as "alcohol defenders," and that all prohibitionists be known by the full name of the organization in which they are members.

Is it possible that the lady would be willing to be known as a "W. C. T. Ewe?" And what would a male sympathizer be called—a "W. C. T. Ram?" But what's in a name, anyway? A dry is just as dry by any other name. FARMER.

Report On Matanuska

I'M a "cream-puff" pioneer—as designated by one of the reporters sent up here to "get the facts" about this Government-financed farm colony in the Matanuska Valley. Since May, 1935, when Uncle Sam transported our little band to this Alaska scene, others have dubbed us modern pilgrims, heroic colonists, noble martyrs. Also loafers, parasites and bums. But let the first soft impeachment stand. For while our colony life is certainly no bed of roses, neither is it pioneering, in the traditional sense.

When my husband, Victor, and I first set foot on our 40-acre tract it was a wilderness of birch and spruce. Today, 16 months later, 8 of the 40 acres are cleared and in production. Our comfortably furnished cottage overlooks an excellent graveled road which connects us with the 170 other tracts of fellow colonists scattered about this 100 square miles of valley.

The tight log walls of our barn and our chicken house, built after the Government's modern plans, keep their occupants warm without stoves, even in the coldest weather. Our well is good. We have all the creatures we can feed from this year's harvest.

We have reaped our first harvest, consisting of hay and potatoes—the latter a yield of 25 sacks for every sack planted in new-turned, unfertilized soil. Our vegetable garden produced a surplus which we sold.

* * * *

Tourists are always saying, "Pretty soft for you colonists—having Uncle Sam footing all your expenses and giving you 30 years to pay your debt." Soft it would be, were Vic and I to sit down and hire our work done, without regard to expenses. But each of us has averaged 14 hours' labor a day in order to keep our debt down to the lowest possible figure.

Vic did all his own slashing and tree-cutting. He did not employ Government carpenters to build our house. Instead he and three other colonist neighbors pooled their labor and erected four dwellings, each saving about $600.

I nailed the paneling on our six rooms and did all the interior painting, papering and varnishing. At the same time, to earn some ready money, I did clerical work for others and carried on my home work—sewing, canning, cleaning, washing, chicken-raising and cooking for boarders.

Contrary to a widespread misconception, that aid is not donated by Uncle Sam. We contracted to pay—with interest. We shall do it. If sourdough farmers in the valley, unaided, can put their homesteads on a paying basis in 20 years, we cream-puff colonists, with Government aid, can do the same for our tracts in one-fifth that time.

Vic and I have begun to diminish the debt we owe Uncle Sam. That debt, to date, exclusive of the price we shall eventually pay for our land, is $1,700. Nine other colonists also have declared themselves independent.

Now for the other side of the story: Out of the 200 families sent up here, 50 have gone back to the States. Why? "Unfit" sums it up as well as one word can.

Specifically: One man, couldn't bring himself to associate with his neighbors. Another, having bought on credit a rifle for himself, one for his wife and one for each of his youngsters, demanded an additional bear gun. When the soulless corporation denied him a fifth gun on credit he flew into a rage, abandoned a comfortable home, 40 acres, a flock of chickens, a team of horses, three cows and a paying milk route and left, cursing.

Not all who left the colony, however, are quitters. Some returned reluctantly on account of diseases, which included tuberculosis, angina pectoris and other serious maladies. One man had a wooden leg. How these persons, obviously unfit in the first place, were ever passed by the inspection boards of their respective States will always remain a mystery.

* * * *

Vic and I were living in Harshaw, Wis., when we put in our application. When word came that we might sign a contract we plunged joyously into packing the 2,000 pounds of household goods we were permitted to take. My selection was a sewing machine, bedding, two stoves, kitchen utensils and my pressure cooker for canning.

On the arrival of our steamer, the St. Mihiel, at Seward, Alaska, Vic eyed the mountains without enthusiasm. "Magnificent scenery, but no soil," he muttered dubiously. "We can't farm an Alpine view." His face grew longer as our train carried us toward Palmer, our destination, 160 miles inland.

It wasn't until we passed Anchorage that he brightened. There, ahead, lay the great Matanuska Valley dreaming in the sun. When the plowed acres of early settlers came into view I could scarcely keep that farmer of mine in his seat. He did escape me finally when the train slowed down; but a moment later he rushed back into the coach, his face radiant, a gob of moist earth in his outstretched hands.

"Look!" he shouted. "Black loam! Rich! Gosh-a-mighty, honey, this soil will grow anything!"

* * * *

We and many of our colonist neighbors feel we are the most fortunate people under the Stars and Stripes. We work hard, primarily for ourselves, of course, but we believe our farm development will eventually benefit the whole of Alaska.

F. D. R. No Tax Dodger.

I AM A LITTLE SORRY to have disagreed with Mr. Roosevelt in such a pointed, personal way on the subject of tax dodging, because I admire no more than he does the financial blue-plate special in which a wealthy man divides himself into a lot of corporations to escape the payment of his honest owings.

These shorts only increase the burden of the Honest Johns who simply toss their money over the transom on doughday and walk on by without an argument, and I do not want to appear to carry the target for such. I recognize that Mr. Roosevelt is no tax dodger at heart, even though his official salary and allowances have been exempt from one or the other of the income taxes ever since he became Governor in 1929.

However, these exemptions are unjust, resting on Supreme Court decisions which flout equality, and as one who has shown little respect for certain other verdicts of the Nine Old Men he might have given a few words to this subject in his holler about exasion and avoidance by wealthy slickers. Now he points out that it will take a constitutional amendment to abolish these exemptions which protect from one tax or another more than 4,000,000 public servants and parasites—a good share of the total of employed persons in the United States.

But while he had his mouth open he didn't take advantage of an inviting opportunity to propose such an amendment or indorse one already introduced by John Cochran, the Missouri Congressman.

• • • •

NOR DID HE have anything to say about the swarm of political cooties in the seams of the taxpayer's shirt who draw big salaries for doing nothing worth while, and thus rob the Government's poor box just as certainly, and possibly to the same extent, as the dirty rich at whom he points the finger of scorn. It takes a hell of a lot of small fry taxpayers to contribute the $6,000 salary of just one deserving and busted but useless. Democrat stuck away in some office counting paper clips or cutting paper dolls. And it makes the taxpayer sore to realize that he must fill out a lot of crazy blanks, pay his money and then, month after month, take a half day off from his job to explain all in person—just for that.

A political machine has no more right to dish out the customers' money to Joe Dokes and George Spelvin just because they turned out the vote, than a grassroot royalist has to incorporate his suburban south 40 as a commercial parsley ranch and claim losses on that account. The trouble is that the custom of planting bums in appointive jobs in reward for political service has prevailed so long that your hard-shelled politician thinks you are being naive when you exclaim, "My God, can such things be!"

Maybe I am naive, then, but if it is stealing from the unemployed poor to chisel $6,000 off the tax it is stealing not a dollar less from the same victims to tap the till for the same amount to take care of some politician. And the degree of the crime is no less, either.

• • • •

IN FACT, I should say the degree was greater, because tax dodging by an individual is just one man's sin, and the man may sincerely resent some technical gyp practiced on him in a previous wrestle with the collectors. He may think he is just stealing it back. But when a Government—national, State or local—robs the poor as well as the taxpayer to take care of some scratchy political loafer in a nominal job, that's worse, because the Government is all we have to protect us from robbers. Nobody can protect us from the Government.

And while the boys are at it this time they would better eliminate the so-called twilight zone from the income tax and abolish the arbitrary power of Government employes to grant or refuse items according to their personal whims and prejudices—a defect which permits of political and personal persecution as well as graft.

There are technicalities and loopholes on the Government's side, too, and these should be plugged along with the others, because what good is a law that stammers and lisps and claims to mean boola-boola when it says osky-wow-wow? As the law stands now nobody but a lawyer can understand the damn thing, and even some lawyers have to guess, because it seems to change its mind from one paragraph to another.

Well, so I don't think Mr. Big is a tax dodger in his great, big, loving heart, but I do insist that if you and I have tried to avail ourselves of his exemptions since 1929, figuring that a Governor and a President must be the perfect example, we would have found ourselves in the can years ago.

Ladies, Please!

An oddity among women today is a lady who hasn't taken a sock at a policeman.

• • • •

You can't pick up a newspaper without seeing a page or two of photographs in which members of the weaker (how come?) sex are engaged in punching somebody's nose off.

• • • •

Boys will be boys and girls will be riot leaders.

• • • •

There was a time when the ladies took to the attic, drew the blinds and engaged in silent prayer during the nearby labor riot. The very idea of physical combat frightened her out of her petticoats. She would as soon think of joining the pro football team as going out and taking a poke at the pickets.

• • • •

No lady found engaging the thought of throwing a round-house swing at anybody, and the males of the household would have yelled for an alienist if mother had announced a determination to try out a corkscrew punch on the constabulary.

• • • •

Woman's place used to be in the home.

• • • •

Now it is in the clinches.

• • • •

The very notion of a wife, sister, or daughter romping down Main street with a section of iron pipe in each hand, murder in her eyes, was repellent.

Observer Reports "Deutschland" Bombing Revived Enthusiasm For Fuehrer; "Four Year Plan" In Effect.

By Perry Knight.

Berlin.

THE BOMBARDING of the German battleship Deutschland by Spanish loyalist planes was about the most fortunate thing that could have happened for the Nazi regime. A nation that was already, secretly, and in some cases openly, expressing dissatisfacion with the present government, now once again stands solidly behind its Fuehrer.

There is no question in the German mind about the Deutschland incident. Nothing can so ignite the fires of patriotism as the fact that the Fatherland has been attacked. and Berlin, in May, 1937, is in many respects all too similar to the Berlin of June, 1914. All Germany is bathed in red and black, with the swastika flags flying from every window as a symbol of loyalty to the Fuehrer and sorrow for the dead.

The efficient censorship of the German press kept all news of the bombardment from the public for 36 hours. The radio stations from Barcelona, Madrid, Valencia and Moscow were cut off from all German sets by interference, and it was not until Monday morning that the public received news of the catastrophe.

Public In Germany Knows Little Of War.

THE GERMAN PUBLIC knows relatively little about the events of the war in Spain. Fascist victories are headlined, and the destruction wreaked upon Guernica and other towns in the push on Bilbao is laid entirely to the loyalist troops. Great emphasis is placed upon the Russian support of the government troops—thus the bombarding of the Deutschland was described as a "bolshevist attack." And in German newspapers the rebel troops are known as the "Nationalists," while the loyalists are described as the "so-called government army."

The fact of Italian and German intervention on behalf of the Fascist troops is practically unknown. There is never a word said about Italian troops or Italian arms shipments, and to say that Germany is actively supporting the Fascist cause would be tantamount to treason. Thus it was possible to announce the bombarding of the Deutschland as an entirely unwarranted attack, and in this manner to arouse public indignation to a fever pitch.

There is little doubt that any move of the Nazi government in regard to the Spanish situation would receive the full support of the people. The propaganda of the Third Reich, the most efficient machine of its kind in existence, has always been directed toward rekindling the flame of patriotism within German breasts. The years of submission, during which the country crawled under the load of the Versailles treaty, had all but extinguished the spirit of loyalty to the flag, but the loyalist bombs have once more aroused the fervor of prewar days, and the patriotic ideal is again the highest ideal in the German mind.

"Deutschland" Affair Brings Italians Closer.

THE CONSEQUENCES of the Deutschland incident within the country will be far-reaching indeed. Already the newspaper Der Angriff has carried the news that Rome would back Germany to the hilt in any action she might take, no matter how serious. This fact is of the greatest importance for Germany, in her internal as well as external policies, for upon Italian support depends to a large degree the success of Gen. Hermann Goering's new "Four Year Plan."

The man on the street in Germany today knows the significance of the Fascist line from Berlin to Rome. Germany's policy of isolation does not extend to isolation from Italy, and the "Four Year Plan" was created with a hopeful eye cocked toward Rome. The conquest of Ethiopia, with its large undeveloped possibilities in foodstuffs and raw materials, has now extended the Fascist line to Addis Ababa, and the German hausfrau and German industries expect their share of the spoils.

Three months ago, when Goering made his last visit to Rome, the German press heralded the fact that German scientists and German industry would take a direct part in developing Ethiopia. Subsequently the second "Four Year Plan" was announced, and today it is common knowledge that, barring accidents, Germany will share the profits derived from the Italian conquest.

The new plan is being pushed with unprecedented force within the country. It has invaded every home and has become part of the private life of every citizen. Economy is the watchword in Germany today, and every German knows that the success or failure of the present regime depends on his support. Anti-Communist propaganda has steadily increased, to warn the people of the fate that awaits them should the plan fail.

German Garbage Cans Save All Usable Waste.

GERMAN KITCHENS are now equipped with two garbage cans. Notices pasted over the kitchen stoves tell just what materials are needed, and into one can the housewife puts the edible waste, while the other is used for metals, chemicals and other usable materials.

In spite of all censorship and propaganda, however, the shortages within the Reich cannot be concealed. Butter is still rationed carefully, and fats and pork are alarmingly scarce. Copper wire can be purchased only in special shops, and the shortage of iron has put a temporary stop to the fortification work on the Czechoslovakian front.

The German who lived through the terrible years following the war is fearful of another period of famine. Those years have not been forgotten, and the memory of them is to a large extent responsible for the solid support of the entire country which the "Four Year Plan" is receiving.

Congress Set To Launch Tax Dodger Inquiry

Morgenthau to Furnish Names to Committee Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

Senate action yesterday assured a sensational congressional investigation into charges of income tax evasion and avoidance.

Only President Roosevelt's signature was needed to start the inquiry after the Senate approved the House form of a resolution to create a joint congressional investigating committee.

The resolution would let the committee turn the spotlight of publicity on many of the secrets of the big income taxpayers.

Congressional leaders indicated Secretary Morgenthau would open the inquiry next week by submitting to the committee in public session the names of the income taxpayer whom the President has accused of dodging taxes.

Those named in the investigation, leaders said, would then be given a chance to appear and defend themselves.

Doughton May Lead Group.

As soon as President Roosevelt signs the resolution, probably tomorrow, Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead will appoint the members of the investigating committee—six from each house.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, which must originate the loop-hole plugging legislation the investigation is designed to provide—probably will head the committee.

The Senate gave its approval to the resolution today after a brief flurry of debate in which Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, questioned the power to make income tax returns public.

American Who Slew Nazi Held Insane by Alienist

Berlin, June 10 (AP).—John Joseph Hughes, jr., of New York, who has been held in a German prison since February 27 charged with slaying Oskar Hoffman, elderly German, was declared dangerously insane today by a state alienist who has had him under observation for eight weeks.

Consequently, it was learned, Hughes will not be brought to trial for killing but must either be put in an asylum in Germany or taken back to the United States under guard. Hughes said he shot the 82-year-old German when he believed Hoffman was about to attack him.

The Legislative Commission.

THE COMPLEXITY of modern conditions in all States of the Union calls for a displacement of the primitive type of legislature by a group of wholly different kind serving the public on a more logical basis and much more capable than the legislators of the familiar order. How to accomplish the creation of such a body, what shall be its powers and duties, its tenure of office and compensation, and by what method its members shall be selected, is the problem that confronts the student of the subject. Many suggestions have been made for the reformation and reconstitution of the present-day legislature, but these suggestions, in the main, have involved a course of procedure highly impracticable or unsuited to popular sentiment.

The change, if change is to be made, must not involve too long and complicated a campaign of reform. It must supply means readily understood for curing the evils it seeks to remedy. It must be capable of rectifying not merely one but many abuses of the present system. It must not be a temporary expedient but a permanent innovation. It must take account of other alterations in our political and economic systems likely to occur in the future and must be sufficiently elastic to adjust itself to those changes. Finally, it must conform to current trends in political belief so as to avoid the complaint of undue radicalism.

AMONG THE METHODS suggested to meet the difficulties the only plan that appears to comply with the requirements is the plan of a legislative commission. This plan is an enlargement of the idea of the municipal commission originated a few decades ago to supplant the aldermanic form of city government, so badly discredited in modern political history, and which has itself been here and there displaced by the managerial form of city government. The latter step, logical enough in municipal politics, has, as a rule, produced excellent results where tried, but is inadapted to the State governmental structure.

This latest development in the evolution of city government in America cannot, it is agreed, be successfully applied to large and scattered areas. The commission principle, however, as a happy medium, is applicable to State governments, with the restriction that its activities shall be confined to legislation and that the executive and judicial branches of the State government shall be left undisturbed.

The legislative commission, as contemplated by the proponents of this method, would be elective, either by districts or from the State at large, or partly elective and partly appointive, and the members would serve throughout the year during their terms of office. The commission would be in perpetual session and open constantly to the consideration of laws to be passed, modified, or repealed, whether upon the initiative of the commission itself or that of the citizens, and with all hearings public.

The commission would be supplied with paid experts, legal and other, whose advice and assistance should serve as a guide to a conclusion on all questions; and while the commission might be divided into sections for convenience, and for facility in the study of legislative problems, action would be by majority vote, except, perhaps, after gubernatorial veto, in which event a two-thirds vote might be required. In any case, the idea of two legislative bodies, one serving as a check upon the other, would be abandoned as needless and undesirable, and the present Senate and House of Representatives in all States would go wholly into the discard.

SUCH AN INNOVATION, needless to say, would everywhere require an amendment to the State constitution, but the amendment would merely serve to transfer to the new body the powers at present possessed by the two legislative chambers and would be sufficiently simple in phraseology. Once the new system was in effect, additional changes could be provided by further amendment, from time to time, submitted to popular vote by the commission itself, or by the Governor of the State, or possibly through initiative by popular petition. Any amendments submitted by the commission would be approved out of hand, in all likelihood, if the system should demonstrate its usefulness; and should it fail of advantageous operation, the commission would necessarily be abolished, or its powers and privileges changed by the electorate.

The legislative commission, much smaller, of course, in membership than our present State Legislature, would be adequately compensated, and its personnel would be improved with the lapse of university and college curricula. Amelioration of the evils of the primary election system, which cannot long be put off, would yield candidates for these places of a character superior to those which might now be available at general elections; but as an additional safeguard a certain proportion of the members might be subject to appointment by the Governor, who would usually exercise a higher judgment in the choice of incumbents than would the people, and who, in any event, might head a popular movement through his own candidacy for the selection of higher types of legislative commissioners. With legislative work as a life vocation and the commission open at all times to the public, it is not too much to hope that lawmaking would lose much of the reproach which now attends the process, and our statute books gradually shape themselves into coherent, logical, and a self-consistent body of enactments in contrast with the hodgepodge that now torments lawyers and citizens and plagues the courts of all States.

• • • •

THE LABORS of the legislative commission, if the system operates as planned by its advocates, would relieve the courts of much litigation, which, in no small degree, takes its origin from faulty, ill-considered legislation. In a measure little suspected by the lay public the time of our judicial tribunals, both inferior and appellate, is taken up with the consideration of problems which could never have arisen if the legislative branches of the State government had rightly performed their work. Laws determining civil rights and duties, with methods of procedure in both departments, the selection and qualifications of jurors, the competency of witnesses and the admissibility of their testimony, appeals from judgments with jurisdiction of the higher courts in question and technicalities of appellate procedure—all these, and a hundred other subjects constantly bungled by incompetent legislatures, keep our courts occupied in the effort to give significance to laws which appear to have no meaning of their own or in reconciling contradictions and remedying deficiencies.

Summer Reading

By William Lyon Phelps

There are three varieties of mystery novels I enjoy—those that are filled with action, those that are well written without losing excitement, and those that have a master mind who continuously holds my attention. Carroll Daly and Earle Gardner write good samples of the first; J. Jefferson Farjeon and R. A. J. Walling of the second, and Rex Stout, Agatha Christie, H. C. Bailey, and often Carolyn Wells, of the third.

• • • •

Mystery novels that I do not enjoy are those that are meant to puzzle the reader with false clews; they to me are dull. Others that I do not enjoy are those that are either obscene or messed up with sex; not because I am shocked, but because they bore me so, with an infinite and deadly boredom.

Good old Bulldog Drummond is my delight because there is continuous action and constant mirth; and Drummond is a master mind with the physique of James J. Jeffries in his prime. Instead of a sane mind in a sane body, he has a marvelous mind in a colossal frame. And he is never really happy except when in mortal peril. If some devil had me strapped and tied and was promising to torture me, I should be very careful not to irritate him. But in those situations Bulldog Drummond's powers of satire and insult are seen at their best. Well, three cheers, for here is a brand new book about Bulldog Drummond, called "Challenge." Read it with joy and look on the leaf facing the title-page, and if there is any other book on that list you haven't read, get it. (Published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

Senate Hearing Considers Steel Inquiry Today

Will Decide Investigation of Mails, Contracts, Other Questions.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate ordered its Postoffice Committee yesterday to consider the advisability of an inquiry into "the moral conduct of both parties" in the Midwestern steel strike which already has resulted in eight deaths and a score of injuries.

Chairman McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, promptly announced his committee will hold preliminary hearings this morning to determine whether the Senate should investigate these questions:

1. Whether the Postoffice Department has improperly refused to accept parcel post food shipments for workers living in the strike-bound plants of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and Republic and Inland Steel corporations.

2. Whether these firms have violated the national labor relations act by refusing to sign an agreement with the C. I. O. steel workers union.

3. Whether the companies are illegally using machine guns and other "paraphernalia of war" in violation of State and Federal firearms laws.

"Gunmen" Investigated.

4. Whether Republic Steel has imported "gunmen" in violation of the Byrnes act forbidding the transportation of strike-breakers across State lines.

5. Whether Republic has chartered airplanes to drop "material" on pedestrians and break up "lawful and peaceful assemblages" by swooping close to the heads of persons attending.

W. W. Howes, First Assistant Postmaster General, was scheduled to reply to charges the postoffice had closed the mails to food shipments.

The postal inquiry was asked by Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, who said he would offer evidence that union men had "censored" parcels offered at several postoffices in the strike areas.

Guffey Asks Expansion.

Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, demanded today that the proposed investigation include activities of the steel companies, asserting that he "understood" they had imported large stocks of arms for use against the strikers. Bridges said he had no objection to expanding the scope of the inquiry.

In offering his amendment to Bridges' resolution, the Pennsylvania Senator told his colleagues that "sole responsibility" for the strike rested with the three independent steel companies.

Declaring 140 other steel firms had signed union agreements, he asserted that the refusal of these corporations "smacks of an arbitrary frame of mind pretty close to dictatorship."

Slot Machine Fees Return $54,160

Annapolis, Md., June 10 (AP).—The State fund for aid to the needy was credited with $54,160 today when returns of pin ball machine and music box license fees for May were received by William Gordy, jr., State comptroller, from 11 counties and Baltimore City.

Frank C. Robey, clerk of the Baltimore Court of Common Pleas, turned in $45,134, collected for the licenses up to May 31. The payment was part of a total remittance of $418,994 made by Robey, covering all type of licenses issued in Baltimore during May.

The total pin ball and music box license fees in the 11 counties were, Allegany, $788.50; Anne Arundel, $983.25; Baltimore, $3,375.25; Calvert, $194.75; Carroll, $1,505.75; Charles, $142.50; Frederick, $14.25; Kent, $166.25; Queen Anne, $496.37; St. Marys, $39.19; Washington, $1,320.50.

State to Broaden Pension Survey

Richmond, Va., June 10 (AP).—The legislative commission which is studying the problem of old-age pensions decided today to broaden the spot survey it has conducted in Henrico, Culpeper and Brunswick counties and the City of Petersburg.

The study yielded valuable information on the number and status of indigents of 65 or over, commission members said, and, therefore, should be extended to cover not less than 10 per cent of the State.

Horace H. Edwards, Richmond commission member who headed the sub-committee that directed the survey, suggested that it include typical counties in tidewater, in the mountains and in the Shenandoah Valley.

400 Workers Overcome In French Sugar Plant

Lillie, France, June 10 (AP).—Four hundred sugar refinery employes were overcome by gas today but all were saved through quick action of physicians. Soon after work started dozens of men began to topple at the Beghin plant.

Germany Bans Jews In Business Abroad

Cologne, Germany, June 10 (AP).—The Westdeutscher Beobachter, Nazi party organ for the Rhineland, declared today that German firms should not be represented abroad by Jewish agents.

Well-informed quarters expected an order to be issued soon compelling German businessmen to dismiss their Jewish representatives abroad.

Navy Awards Contracts.

Contracts for $392,550 of construction work were let yesterday by the Navy Department. Included was one contract for $283,770, let to Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. of Pittsburgh, for radio towers at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Training Cruise Altered to Avoid Spanish Territory

The summer cruise of 1,000 Annapolis midshipmen has been altered to avoid Mediterranean waters, the Navy Department revealed last night.

Although no reason was assigned for the changed route, which originally included visits to Italy and Athens, Greece, it was obvious that the State Department had suggested the new order, to avoid possible incidents in Spanish waters.

The midshipmen, members of the new first and third classes, graduating in 1938 and 1940, left Annapolis June 4 and are due to arrive at Kiel, Germany, June 21. Thev sailed on the practice squadron, composed of the battleships U. S. S. Wyoming, New York and Arkansas.

The altered route of the squadron probably will include visits to Scandinavian ports and other northern European countries. The new route will not be announced until diplomatic arrangements have been completed.

Robert Borden Dies; Canada's War Premier

Gained Power Opposing U. S. Trade Treaty; Retired in 1920.

Ottawa, Ont., June 10 (Canadian Press).—Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war-time premier, died in his eighty-third year today and will be buried Saturday with state honors.

Stricken with a heart attack three weeks ago, Sir Robert, whose career stretched from preconfederation colonial Canada to the present dominion, died in his sleep at 7:30 this morning.

Teacher and lawyer until he suddenly entered politics when he was 42, Sir Robert succeeded Sir Wilfred Laurier as premier in 1911. He remained in office through one of the most trying periods in Canadian history until June 10, 1920 when he resigned because of poor health. He never entered the gallery of the House from the day of his retirement until he died.

A sturdy, gray-eyed Nova Scotia youth born at Grand Pre, June 26, 1854, Robert Laird Borden taught mathematics for a year or two at the Glenwood Institute in Matawan, N. J.

He entered Parliament in 1896, became Conservative leader in 1901 at the height of the Liberal Sir Wilfred Laurier's popularity and rode into power in 1911 in opposition to a proposed reciprocity trade treaty with the United States.

Patient and determined, he formed a union government in 1917 to pass a conscription law. Then when the war ended he played a leading part in the Versailles Peace Conference and insisted that Canada sign the treaty as a separate nation.

After his retirement in 1920, Sir Robert retired to the tranquillity of his colonial home. He led a philosophical life until he died, reading, puttering in his garden, playing golf.

In September, 1889, he married Laura Bond, of Halifax. They had no children

U. S. Asked to Stop Flow Of Liquor Into Georgia

Atlanta, June 10 (AP).—Defeat of repeal for the second time in two years brought demands today for rigid prohibition-law enforcement and an official request to the Federal Government to keep liquor from coming into the State.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, added a statement that "flagrant municipal insurrection" should be curbed in both Savannah and Augusta, where saloons and liquor stores operate openly. T. Grady Head, State revenue commissioner, addressed a formal request to Federal Alcohol Administrator W. S. Alexander asking for "protection" of the State under terms of the twenty-first amendment.

Majority Strike Vote Is Retained by Guild

St. Louis, June 10 (AP).—The American Newspaper Guild's fourth annual convention voted today to retain the constitutional provision that a majority of the members of a local guild may call a strike.

An amendment by Robert M. Buck, of the Washington, D. C., Guild, which would have required a two-thirds vote to authorize a strike, was defeated, 114 2-3 to 26 1-3. Buck contended "Labor's final weapon should be exercised only when support is more decisive than a majority vote."

World Turning To U.S., Chinese Envoy Declares

Leadership Sought in Economic Crisis, Says Dr. Wang.

By William V. Nesly.

The world is looking to the United States for leadership in averting the dangerous situation caused by maladjustment of economic relations, Dr. C. T. Wang, new Chinese Ambassador to this country, said yesterday.

He declared China would be "very happy" to participate with other nations in guaranteeing neutrality of the Philippines, pictured the formerly disturbing silver question as having "solved itself," and said that on general principles China would be glad to have reciprocal relations with this country for promoting trade.

Receiving newspapermen in a press conference at his country's embassy, the Ambassador stressed the need for collective security as the greatest problem facing nations since the World War.

He praised this country's individual contribution to peace, as well as her leadership in this movement, and added:

"It was the American Government that called the Washington Conference in 1921-22, which checked the race of armament and preserved the stability in the Far East. Again, it was America who took a leading part in bringing about in 1928 the conclusion of the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy. And furthermore, it was America's Secretary of State, Col. Henry L. Stimson, who expounded in 1932 the famous doctrine of nonrecognition, which has been incorporated into a League of Nations resolution and accepted by all enlightened nations."

Peace Economic Problem.

Carrying his discussion into more recent developments, he added:

"The world events since 1931 have taken a sinister turn. The collapse of the economic conference in 1933, followed by other similar instances, has clearly revealed that the problem of world peace is not only political, but also economic. The restrictions and barriers of trade placed by the governments against one another have nearly obliterated the opportunity for the interchange of goods among the nations and put the world on the verge of another great war. The world is again looking to America for her leadership, this time in the readjustment of economic problems with a view to averting the dangerous situation. The good neighbor policy launched by President Roosevelt and the reciprocal trade policy pursued by Secretary Hull have already brought a peaceful atmosphere back to the world. We have great confidence that American leadership will be crowned with success."

There is room for a reciprocal trade agreement between the two countries, Ambassador Wang said, though the subject has not been advanced. He reported China in improved economic condition because of bountiful crops last year.

He represented his country as favorable to a Pacific nonaggression pact, and expressed confidence that "such a good example" as the Inter-American Peace Conference at Buenos Aires would be followed by other powers.

Jurist Retirement Bill Hearing Set for Today

A sub-committee of the House District Committee will hold a hearing at 10:30 o'clock this morning on a bill to permit judges of the of the District Municipal Court and the Juvenile Court to retire on part pay.

The measure would permit retirement on half pay at 60 and three-quarters pay at 65. It also has a retroactive provision to apply to retired judges still living.

Duchy Coalition Quits.

Luxemburg, June 10 (AP).—The Catholic-Liberal coalition, headed by Joseph Bech, minister of state for this 999-mile square grand duchy, submitted its resignation today to Grand Duchess Charlotte, who reserved decision. The government Monday abandoned a bill sponsored to bar extremist parties after the measure had won a referendum plurality of only one-half of 1 per cent.

Bob Burns Says:

When these slick city salesmen try to sell somebody somethin', they find out what subject the prospect is most interested in and then they open up by talkin' about that just to get their confidence.

It's like the time my Uncle Alonzo Hink tried to get a job in a store down home. He knew the storekeeper was a very religious man, so Uncle Alonzo started tellin' about what a church-goer he was. He says "I never miss a Sunday at church." When he got all through, the storekeeper says "What church do you belong to?"

Uncle Alonzo looked puzzled and he started to sputter—he says "Well, er-ah-well, now, let's see." Then he looked at the storekeeper and says "Just name off a few of 'em, Brother."

Tidings from Baltimore: "As a direct result of union activity and public protest, the suspension of three prominent officials of the Social Security Board Union of Baltimore was lifted (June 8) and the men reinstated to active duty by the Baltimore administration of the board. Harry Elberg, co-chairman of the membership committee; Abraham Kotelchuck, member of the executive board, and Max Roffman, assistant editor of the Union Bulletin and member of the adjustment committee—all of whom have been under threat of dismissal and whose cases have been investigated by the union and found to demonstrate anti-union discrimination—were informed that they had been approved for permanent appointment. They have returned to work.

Now, something of a less rambunctious nature: A pleasant time is in the offing for South Carolinians. The National Democratic Club of South Carolina, composed of South Carolininas residing in the Nation's Capitol, will have its big June ball Thursday night, June 17, from 10 to 1, at Almas Shrine Temple, 1315 K street northwest. Garland E. Taylor, the club president, has appointed Tom Wright as general chairman for the dance. The following committees have been appointed: Dance, Mr. and Mrs. Larkin Jennings, Henry G. Bone, jr., Miss Lucille Vereen, Brooks C. Preacher, Arthur Cornwall, John O. Woods, Miss Muriel Euliss, W. B. Sams, jr., Miss Sarah Neal, M. L. Rivers, Harry Stone and Ira F. The honorary degree of doctor of science was conferred this month on Willis R. Gregg, chief of the Weather Bureau, by Norwich University, Northfield, Vt. Col. Porter H. Adams, the university president, conferred the degree and offered the following citation: "To Willis Ray Gregg, meteorologist and executive; chief of the United States Weather Bureau; pioneer in the study of the meteorological problems of aeronautics, who justly is acclaimed as a distinguished contributor to the advancement of the science of meteorology."

Dr. Gregg was graduated with the Cornell class of 1903 and has served in the Weather Bureau since March 1, 1904, for several years as chief of the Aerological Division. He organized the weather service in aid of commercial aviation, under the provisions of the air commerce act of 1926. His appointment as chief of the Bureau came on January 31, 1934.

Dr. Leonard D. White, retiring member of the Civil Service Commission, will be a guest participant on the "Education-In-the-News" program, which the Office of Education, Department of the Interior, will present through radio tonight. During the program Dr. White will make his last public appearance before returning to the faculty of Chicago University. His subject will be "Government Apprenticeship and Internship." On the program with him will be Undersecretary of the Interior Charles West and Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, chairman of the Institute of Public Affairs at Washington. This brings together, for the first time on the air, three of the Nation's foremost authorities on public administration.

Mathew J. Faerber, president of General Accounting Office Lodge, No. 8, writes us: "When the executive committee of the A. F. G. E. suspended Lodge No. 8 last week for its activities in attempting to protect the jobs and salaries of its members, I was desirous of learning the opinion of a pioneer in the organization as to whether or not our stand was correct. I wrote Harry G. Ritner, organizer of Lodge 8 (back in 1932) and asked him to state his reaction. Inclosed is a copy of his reply:

"I have received your letter informing me of the suspension of Lodge No. 8 and requesting an expression of opinion. If the action taken by you to date has been to protect the membership of Lodge No. 8 (and it appears from the evidence at hand that such is the case) and because of such activity your lodge has been suspended, then I am compelled to stand behind you 100 per cent. After all, Mr. Faerber, the members from whom you have collected monthly dues are entitled to your every consideration in protecting their jobs and pay. Such was one of the reasons for organizing Lodge No. 8. You have, in my opinion, worked hard without any consideration but to help your fellow employe. This you have done. Be brave and, regardless of the outcome, many will join me in having the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing a good job under the circumstances. The member must be protected. This is supposed to be the reason for any organization."

Income Tax Exemptions Are in Doubt

Dirksen Believes Clause on D. C. Salaries Will Take Effect.

Amendment Supporters Think Sections Are Contradictory.

By James D. Secrest.

The question of whether the local income tax exempts or excludes members of Congress yesterday was a major topic of conversation on Capitol Hill.

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, chief defender of the proposal to tax members along with Federal employes, uncovered a provision in the bill overlooked Wednesday by both supporters and opponents of the levy.

Under the section of the income tax title headed "imposition of tax" is a paragraph which reads:

"A like tax is hereby imposed and shall be levied, collected and paid annually at the rate specified in this section upon and with respect to the entire net income as herein provided, from all property owned and from every business, trade, or profession carried on and salaries and wages received for services rendered in the District of Columbia by persons not residents of the District.

Dirksen Gleeful.

"If the first provisions doesn't catch members of Congress, that will," Dirksen commented gleefully.

Upon motion of Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin, the House District Committee on Wednesday amended the income tax section so as to limit the resident tax to "legal residents."

Supporters of the Hull amendment yesterday admitted the nonresident section is far-reaching, but were inclined to believe that the two sections are now contradictory.

The issue is expected, however, to come to a head on the House floor Monday, when the bill will be called up.

Members of the Kennedy subcommittee said they will insist upon a roll call so that members will be on record as to whether or not they favor taxing others but not themselves.

Movement to Recommit.

The omnibus bill appeared headed for a stormy voyage, however, as members of the District Committee prepared to join in a movement to sabotage it by having it recommitted for further hearings.

The revolt was being incited by members who were seeking to substitute a substantial increase in the real estate tax for the income levy.

By having the measure recommitted they hoped to delay its passage and thus force the commissioners to meet the deficit, or a large part of it, by raising the realty tax on July 1.

As Chairman Mary T. Norton has indicated a sympathy with this movement, sponsors of the income tax feared that she may not resist it while handling the bill on the floor.

Should the omnibus tax bill be thus sabotaged, members of the Kennedy sub-committee pointed out, the commissioners would have to raise the realty tax rate from $1.50 to probably $2.10.

National U. Seniors To Hear Thomas

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, will deliver the commencement address at the National University graduation exercises in Memorial Continental Hall at 8:15 tonight. Degrees will be awarded to 284 persons.

Chancellor Charles S. Hatfield will preside and the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, will deliver the invocation.

Candidates for degrees in the law school will be presented by Dean Charles Pergler, while Dean Eugene Carusi will present the candidates from the School of Economics and Government. Justice Jennings Bailey, of the United States District Court, will award medals and prizes. The valedictory address will be delivered by James Edward Fallon.

17 Lorton Convicts Ask Parole Today

The case of 17 Lorton Reformatory convicts, eligible for parole, will come before the Parloe Board today.

Among them is Frank E. (Frankie) Crandall, alleged henchman of Morris E. (Dutch) Irwin, who was convicted of violating the District gambling laws and sentenced, February 9, to serve from four months to a year and a day, along with Irwin and several others.

Among the other cases are those of Pearl Ross, Laura Gaither, William O. Turner, Frank Royce, Joseph J. Luizzi, Floyd J. Robinson, Melvin S. Quigley, James B. Lee, Clarence Butler, Charles Jackson, James H. Mills, James E. Smallwood, Joseph B. Harris, Armand Macon, Robert J. Paul and Alphonso.

Bank Robber-Editor at Lorton Campaigns For Rehabilitation of Paroled Convicts

Inmate With Detainer Hanging Over Him 'Made' Paper.

The editor of Time and Tied, official publication of Lorton Reformatory, said, "I'm a journalist," when they took him there to serve from three to seven years for bank robbery. They put him to work, at first, in the business office, but later transferred him to the printing shop, and it was he who got the publication, Time and Tied, on a going basis, although he didn't originate the significant name.

"I originated it," said Col. W. L. Peak, the reformatory superintendent. "They had several names under consideration, and then the idea came to me—Time, such an element here, and tied?" which he offered in question form to see if his brainchild was registering.

He said this as he walked toward the printing shop, to see if the editor might be interviewed. The editor was out, taking a midday bath. Several inmate printers worked at job presses, or beside the cases of type. They worked without talking. There was a sign on the wall that indicated you couldn't work and talk at the same time and that the good habits men form remain with them a long time in life.

Like Country Weekly.

The editor's desk was in a corner of the room, a corner that had the same bulging look and the same musty smell of any country weekly newspaper. Windows were high above the desk. You couldn't see through them, they were so high, but you had the feeling that on the outside the green fields of Lorton were deep in June.

Then the editor came in briskly, as if he had a top-notch story rather than just a bath. He thought it was curious that anyone should come to interview the editor; it's the editor who should do the interviewing. But he sat down. And it was when he was sitting, rather than when he was walking, that you got the sense of a tremendous animation in him. He seemed restless under it, in the repose of the chair. And he muttered some little apologies; a restless hand went out to smooth the ruffled papers on the desk.

The hand brushed by the signs on the desk: "Miscellaneous poisonal;" "Do-Hickey to A-Gadget;" "Thing-A-Ma-Jigs," and "Lay-Overs." The editor uses the vernacular of gangland as a showwindow for himself; but he is very precise, a stickler for grammatical form, when he talks to you.

"You're out," he said to a photographer, and there he strayed for once into slang. "No pictures of me!" He turned and said: "And don't give any clew to who I am. It wouldn't do anyone any good. Even the inmates here don't know who the editor is. They know that I work in the printing shop, but I've kept myself in the background. Suppose you just refer to me as the Old Yegg. I write under that name."

He said he was 45 years old. His face hardly showed that much age. It did only when he put on a pair of steel-rimmed spectacles. He fixed these at a funny pitch on his nose, the same sort of pitch at which thousands of country editors must have fixed steel-rimmed spectacles on their nose when bending over copy from their correspondents.

Just then the editor was bending over some correspondence submitted for publication by an inmate. "I hated to reject this," he said to Col. Peak. "For one thing, it was too lengthy, and then, it doesn't tell anything."

"Maybe I just like the blue pencil too much. I've never had any outside (he embroidered 'outside' with a fluffy mockery) experience as a journalist. You people out there know exactly what you're doing. But I do think that I've got a sense for news. He handed over some badly scribbled copy and said that was what he had to work from. His blue pencil had chastened it mightily.

Prison News Sources.

Now, the editor himself covers all the general assignments in the reformatory. He covers the religious meetings and the baseball games and reports the remarks of visiting speakers, does interviews with the visitors.

He pointed out an editorial he had titled "Headlines." This was a rebuke to the Nation's press for giving flaming headlines to the fall from grace of a paroled convict.

"Daily," he wrote, "in almost every community in these United States, thousands of men pursue the almost impossible task of rehabilitation. If those same newspapers were to run resumes of those making good they would have to run extras when they mentioned paroled convicts. The lay public is never told of the man making good because that is not news."

He didn't point this one out.

"A Time and Tied booster finds himself on the spot regarding a fountain pen he lost. Seems he borrowed it from another inmate, who values it greatly for sentimental reasons, and Time and Tied wishes to assist in retrieving it if possible. This pen was not stolen; it was lost. So if anyone has found it, please return either to Time and Tied office or to 5226."

This pen was not stolen—it was lost, remember.

The editor is eternally on the quest for talent in the reformatory. He tries to develop those who want to write. He hates to reject, sometimes, their offerings—but there's his sense of news and he likes to finger the blue pencil. He is pleased, right now, about the prospects of a guest writer who will do a piece in the next edition, next month.

He will tell you how he covers his assignments; how he makes up the paper, and how, on frequent occasions, he pitches in and helps set the type. And he will give reminiscences of cities he has visited. But once you ask him about his past, he swings the subject and his face gets hard.

At the end, he said it was good to have someone come to interview the editor. "Tell them about the Old Yegg," he said. "Don't give away who I am."

There is a detainer for the editor when his time is up in Lorton.

D. C. System Of Elevated Roads Urged

Van Duzer, Whitehurst See New York's 'Skyways.'

Similar Plan Forecast as Eventual Traffic Solution Here.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 10.—An eventual system of elevated highways for Washington was forecast here tonight as Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, accompanied by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of District highways, began a two-day survey of New York traffic conditions.

Met by Manhattan safety and traffic officials, Van Duzer and Whitehurst were escorted by New York police on a tour of Gotham's intricate system of elevated roads, Particularly interested in ramp approaches to New York's skyways, the District traffic men visited the 5-year-old West Side elevated highway and the famous Pulaski skyway.

Citing a $30,000 provision in the current District appropriation bill, Capt. Whitehurst predicted an ultimate elevated highway across Rock Creek Park and a speedway connecting downtown Washington and Key Bridge via K street northwest.

A separation of traffic grades long has been advocated by Van Duzer as the solution to Washington's highway accident problem. Where there is no crossing of thoroughfares, Van Duzer contends, the problem of intersection collisions will be eliminated.

Shown Control Units.

Van Duzer and Whitehurst were met here by Col. Harold G. Fowler, first deputy commissioner of New York Police, in charge of traffic. He provided a police escort to show the Washington officials every phase of traffic control which brought New York top honors in the 1936 "safety city" awards.

How Manhattan's endless chain of elevated highways were originally planned held the interest of Van Duzer and Whitehurst. Whitehurst asked questions about materials and construction costs while Van Duzer confined his investigation to accident prevention and vehicular control.

Chief Engineer Daniel Rochester of the New York traffic bureau conducted the visiting Washington traffic officials on a three-hour survey of the city's traffic signal light system.

A total of 7,500 intersections in New York's congested area, it was reported, are controlled by lights.

Tomorrow the Washington delegation, which also includes J. N. Robertson, chief of the construction division, District Highway Department, and Lloyd Smoot, chief of designing and planning, will visit Mayor LaGuardia.

LaGuardia, a former "Washingtonian" (he was a member of Congress from New York), is expected to outline his current highway safety program and explain how New York has shown a marked decrease in traffic fatalities since January, 1936.

Leaving New York after an extensive tour of New Jersey's "clover leaf" system of highway approaches to Manhattan tomorrow, the Washington traffic men will go to Philadelphia for a brief study of conditions there.

Following their return to Washington, Van Duzer and Whitehurst will join to compile a comprehensive report on their observations with a view toward recommending improvements for Washington.

Jordon's Fate Secret; Jaynes Sobs for Action

Widower of Gun Victim, Sure of Guilt, Hints Retaliation.

Announcement regarding the fate of Thomas Jordon, convicted here of murdering Lizzie Jaynes, was delayed at the White House yesterday, after a secret recommendation on the case was sent to the President by Attorney General Cummings.

At the same time, William Jaynes, 72-year-old husband of Jordon's alleged victim, appeared at police headquarters and with tears streaming from his face demanded that Jordon be either executed or acquitted. Jordon, diminutive dishwasher, who once before was saved by Presidential intervention, is scheduled to die in the electric chair Monday.

Jaynes, threatened yesterday to "bust things wide open" if Jordon is granted a commutation of sentence from death to life imprisonment. He will hold his tongue, he said, if a respite is granted by the President, or if death is finally imposed on Jordon, after six years.

"Why don't they kill him or acquit him!" Jaynes said to Capt. Ira Keck during a one-hour conversation at headquarters.

Says Description Changed.

"I'll blast these people to pieces if Jordon doesn't die," Keck quoted Jaynes as saying. Capt. Keck said he told Mr. Jaynes the case was out of his hands and was now entirely within the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice and the President. Saying he had worked six years to get Jordon convicted, Jaynes said he feared leniency would be granted.

"He's guilty, he's guilty," Jaynes said later. "There's not a shadow of a doubt about it. I have studied the record and the evidence. This man Holzworth, who has come to his aid, has based everything on the police broadcast the night my wife was shot. The broadcast described the shooter as being 6 feet tall. But that was only the first flash to headquarters. Later the correct description of the man was received by the police."

At his apartment last night at 1316 New Hampshire avenue, Jaynes said that when Jordon was brought to Washington under arrest, Jordon asked him to visit him at police headquarters. The elderly man narrated that he had gone to see Jordon face to face, and listened to Jordon's story.

"When he got through, Jordon said to me: 'What do you think about it now, Mr. Jaynes?' I looked him straight in the eye and told him: 'If I had my way, you would die tonight. That's what I think of it.'"

Tells of Tragedy.

Jordon, according to Jaynes, then replied, "I guess you're right, Mr. Jaynes." Jaynes also related that when his wife returned to the family apartment the night of the shooting, she told him nothing of the shooting. She merely announced there had been a robbery at the Garden Tea Shoppe where she was a cashier and added she had a pain in her leg.

It was not until the doctor examined her that the gunshot wound was discovered.

Jaynes is convinced that Jordon will receive a respite or commutation of sentence. Until official action is taken, however, he will not reveal what it is which will "bust things wide open." Reminded that it was his duty to tell everything he knew now, he shrugged his shoulders.

Co-Defendant Sentenced to 18 Years for Part in Crime.

John Thomas (Bill) Dove, colored, 36, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday at Upper Marlboro, Md., for his part in the slaying of William F. Ford, 65, a watchman in a newly built home in Chevy Chase last June.

Judge Joseph C. Mattingly pronounced sentence after Dove had entered a plea of guilty to first-degree murder. The defendant was represented by Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, and Albert R. Hassal, of District Heights.

Prior to passing sentence, the court took into consideration a leniency recommendation by James H. Pugh, State's attorney of Montgomery County who prosecuted. Defense counsel had secured a change of venue to Prince Georges County.

Pugh pointed out that William H. Parr, 28, of Charlottesville, Va., co-defendant with Dove, had been convicted in April of second-degree murder and sentenced to 18 years. He said:

"A jury from Montgomery County gave the instigator of this crime only 18 years. I recommend that the court not impose the extreme penalty."

Testimony revealed that Ford was killed when the colored man, acting on orders from Parr, assaulted and robbed the watchman of his week's wages.

D. C. Police Lauded By Justin Miller

Washington police were praised by Justin Miller, of the Department of Justice, in an address on the Boy's Club program over WMAL last night, for their efforts to curb child delinquency in the District.

Citing a large increase in juvenile crime in most big cities, he said: "Police must do something. If they have no other approach than to terrorize, they are increasing rather than decreasing child delinquency."

Auto Inspection Bill Hearings Set for Today

A public hearing will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in the Senate District Committee room on two bills to authorize periodic inspections of motor vehicles in Washington.

One of the bills was submitted by the Commissioners and provides for semi-annual inspections, while the other was introduced by Senator Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, and calls for yearly inspections.

Paramount Plans Pretentious Production Schedule; "Million-Dollar" Pictures Head List of Releases

Production Budget Has Been Increased $10,000,000 For Season of 1937-38, With Scores of Stars Signed for Leads; New Subscription Season of American Theater Society Thrives; Theater Notes and Gossip.

THERE comes to hand a seven-page telegram from Lou Smith, in New York, reporting the progress of the Paramount Picture sales convention now in session in Los Angeles. It conveys word of the most pretentious program of releases that Paramount has undertaken in many years.

BELL.

It seems that Neil Agnew, vice president in charge of distribution, made the startling statement before the assembled representatives of the various branches of his company that 22 "million dollar" pictures will head Paramount's list of between 50 and 60 releases during the 1937-38 season. To produce this ambitious program, the company has increased its production budget approximately $10,000,000 over last year's expenditures.

Story material and players for the new season's product, it is pointed out, literally come from the four corners of the earth—from the Argentine to the Arctic Circle; from Paris to the jungles of Malay.

More musical films are included in the schedule than ever before have been produced in any one season by any major company. This group boasts a wide variety of attractions, ranging from the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein operettas through pictures of the "Big Broadcast" type to an all-sepia revue, featuring Louis Armstrong and his band.

The list of productions already in work, or in early contemplation, is far too long to reproduce here, but the list of players engaged for their interpretation embraces the cream of the Hollywood crop. There are so many names in the roster that if they were printed here you probably would not stop to read them.

So, the best I can do is to suggest that the forthcoming season looks like a banner one for Paramount—without question the best it has had since the old days when it was at the top of the heap and was practically the only company to which an exhibitor could turn for a complete evening's program—newsreel, travelogue, comedies, features and all of the other usual components of a tip-top screen entertainment.

That was back in the old days when my good friends Boyd Cunningham and Ed Evans were in charge of the local Paramount branch exchange and made a fine job of it.

An interesting card comes to me from the Cosmos Club, in Washington, reading as follows: "My dear Mr. Bell—Noting your interesting article in The Post of June 9 anent Mr. Parnell, it may interest you to know that I met and was in the company of that distinguished gentleman on several occasions when he visited Washington in 1880. At that time, Mr. Parnell was the guest of the late Gen. James R. O'Beirne, whose home was on Eleventh street near G northwest. A very delightful, neighborly acquaintance between Gen. O'Beirne and my household brought about these meetings which I am highly privileged at this time to recall. With best wishes, yours, (Signed) BARRY BULKLEY.

My good friend Mr. Bulkley should be among the honor guests at Loew's Capitol Theater tonight.

With the opening of the new season of the living drama still many weeks away, the American Theater Society of Washington reports a greater number of season subscribers than ever before in its history—some 1,800 theater enthusiasts already have signed on the dotted line. They seem to have made no mistake.

Among the plays that it is expected will be presented under the auspices of the society next year are Maxwell Anderson's "The Masque of Kings" and "High Tor," although at this time of the year these things always are tentative. The present outlook, furthermore, seems to be that the season at the National Theater will open with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in their new play.

There will be other Theater Guild productions and outside attractions on the subscription list, but this should give you a fair idea. Line forms to the right.

Beginning next Sunday night, the Belasco Theater will adopt a new summer policy of operating evenings only. The doors of the playhouse will be opened to the public at 6:45 p. m., and the picture will be projected beginning at 7. Performances thereafter will be continuous until 11:30 p. m. On Saturday night, incidentally, the Belasco will offer another of its bargain, two-for-one bills. Those arriving at the theater by 8:45 p. m. will be privileged to see the last showing of "Ecstacy" and the first presentation of "Loneliness" for one price of admission.

We said something in this space yesterday about Beulah Bondi and Victor Moore's having blazed a trail for hopeless actors of the "legitimate" stage in Hollywood. The list of former stage players engaged in important roles in "Make Way for Tomorrow," opening today at the Palace, runs far beyond that.

In addition to the two featured players, the former stage luminaries appearing in this picture include Fay Bainter, remembered for her work opposite Walter Huston in "Dodsworth"; Maurice Moscovitch, Thomas Marshall, Porter Hall, who appeared here last at the National with Jack Benny in "Bring on the Girls;" Minna Gombel, Elizabeth Risdon, who played the lead in Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," and Louise Beavers, foremost of the cinema's colored actresses. Quite a cast.

Crowded-for-Time Note.

"Make Way for Tomorrow" my eye. The pressing thing at the moment seems to be to make way for today!

Beautiful But—Not a Nosegay!

Making the Trumps Count.

Making two tricks grow where only one trick seemed to be possible is one of the secrets of the expert player. Look at today's hand from the point of view of poor South. He could see all the trumps except the Queen, the three, and the two; yet two trumps were made against him!

West, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 2 ♡ | 5 ◇ |
| Dbl. | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Over South's presumptive bid of five diamonds, West had a problem. He could not be sure how strong his partner's hand was and, therefore, could neither continue with the bidding nor pass and expect his partner to take proper action. The double was the best bid available.

West opened the King of spades, East playing the encouraging ten. West decided that this was probably not the beginning of a doubleton echo, since South was less likely than East to have three spades (because of his announced length in diamonds). Instead the ten was more likely to show three to the Queen, and West hit upon a plan to make two trumps.

His lead to the second trick was the Ace of clubs, East once more encouraging with the ten-spot. A club to the King was followed by a club ruff. At this point West led a low spade! East won with the Queen and returned a fourth club. Now, regardless of South's play, West was bound to make his Queen of trumps. Thus, the defense won two spades, two clubs and two trumps, scoring 700 points.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 10.—Idol chatter: Whenever I see Sonja Henie doing a figure eight, I think of Mae West. Distinguishing marks between twins Bobby and Billy Mauch: None. Tom Brown and John Beal have that boy-next-door appeal. If Broadway is "The Great White Way," then Hollywood boulevard is "The Little Neon Byway." When Alice Faye sings, she looks like Anita Louise, and when she doesn't, she doesn't. Don't blame movie ingenues if their acting is sour; maybe they are trying to break out of the "too-sweet" class.

SONJA HENIE.

Nutshell description of Warner Oland off-screen: Unchanny. Jeanette MacDonald's personal wardrobe is the tops in utter femininity. Peas from the same pod: Joe Penner and Frank McHugh. Maybe Bing Crosby is keeping those race horses in hay, hoping that some day they will keep him in clover. Candidate for loveliest hands: Merle Oberon. If asked by a fellow tennis champion in the quiet of a locker room, I wonder if Frank Shields' praise of Hollywood racqueteers would change?

Rare birds in Hollywood: George Burns and Gracie Allen never practice their jokes on friends. Dolores Del Rio's skin is as smooth as wax. Puzzle: find more than five actors or actresses who have kept their word and quit at the top. Smilar silhouettes: Greta Garbo and Gloria Stuart. Noah Berry, Jr., has a new low-cut racer that he has named, appropriately: The Ark.

I wish I could tell you the man's name, but Bob Burns made me promise I would not. At any rate, Bob was lunching with an egotistical actor at the Brown Derby yesterday, and he soon became sick of listening to the guy rave about "trouble" he always had with autograph hunters. So Burns excused himself, slipped out a side door, and assembled all the autograph hounds. They like him, so they listened attentively to his plan.

Ten minutes later, Burns and Mr. Ego left the restaurant. Immediately, there was a hue and cry for Bob's autograph. Three dozen kids and grown-ups clamored around him, completely ignoring the Handsome Hero. Burns, pretending not to notice, got a ghoulish delight out of the situation. And it was less than two minutes before a much-deflated Mr. Ego was pompously offering autographs without so much as one request.

Walking across the lot, I watched a small-town visitor buttonhole Myrna Loy for a chat. Myrna was in make-up and costume and as I drew near, heard the visiting lady say:

The sound man on "Broadway Melody of 1937", was wailing that the last scene would have to be re-made. It seems, according to the sound man, that he could hear the far-off barking of a dog through the microphone.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

DEFEAT: The newsreel companies paid $17,000 to the Hindenburg officials to rearrange the Zeppelin's schedule so that the coronation films could be flown here via the German ship . . . After the Hindenburg disaster, they contacted Dick Merrill and John Lambie in London and offered them $2,000 to fly the films. Emil Hurja, business representative for the fliers, assured them that the sum offered was ridiculous. "But look," was the protest, "you wouldn't deprive the American people of the opportunity to see these films quickly, would you?" . . . "No, we wouldn't," Hurja replied. "So here's our proposition—let all you newsreel companies draw lots and we'll fly the winner's films for nothing." The offer was rejected!

YOUTH: Tommy Kelly, the Bronx youngster who was selected to play Tom Sawyer for Selznick-International, gave his first Hollywood interview last Friday. "We came out here, Papa and I, on Easter Sunday," he finally confessed to Paul Harrison. "Yes, that was quite a while ago, but you see they wanted to keep it a secret until they were sure I would do. It was just last Tuesday that we went to see Mr. Selznick and he said I would do." . . . Yes, that was quite a while ago, but it was no secret. That is, not after April 20, when the story first appeared in this space.

ART: Count Maurice Decker, the art dealer, was at Fannie Brice's home discussing art until 3 a. m. "Give me the old masters any time," the connoisseur argued. "I wouldn't give a poc! for the modernists." . . . "Well, I don't know enough about it to argue with you," Fannie replied, "but my son, Billy—he knows all about. Let's ask him." . . . They entered the youngster's bedroom. Count Decker nudged the sleeping Billy Brice. "Tell me," he asked the half-awake lad. "You like modern art or the old masters?" . . . "Modern," Billy answered . . . Decker patted the boy's head. "Eh," he grumbled, "go back to sleep!"

• • • •

REGRET: Dick Himber's press agent called a local radio editor and offered a story about his client. "I can't use it," was the answer, "it isn't the kind of story we like to use." . . . "Please use it," the publicist asked, "because Himber's sponsor is in town this week." . . . "I know," the editor informed, "but my sponsor is in town every day!"

• • • •

ENTERPRISE: Moss Hart has written his own lyrics to "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off." Here's the way Moss sings it at Hollywood parties: "You say Briskin, and I say Bruskin—You say Riskin, and I say Ruskin—Briskin, Bruskin, Riskin, Ruskin, let's call the whole thing off . . . You say Wurtzel, and I say Zanuck—You say Wurtzel, I still say Zanuck—Simon, Simone, Simone, Simon—let's call the whole thing off."

• • • •

SWANK: Bobby LeBranche was advised by Gabriel DeVelle to change the color of his clothes this week. "Gray doesn't look good on you," he advised, "why not try brown? That's your color, brown." . . . Tuesday afternoon Bobby walked into Gabriel's, with his Irish setter on leash. He sported a new brown suit, brown socks and shoes, tan shirt and brown-patterned tie . . . And his Irish setter, heretofore gray, had been dyed completely brown.

• • • •

FEAR: For the past few weeks laborers have been at work in the open-air room at Leon & Eddie's, converting it into a "Pego-Pego room." . . . "I thought up that name myself," Leon boasted yesterday, "because it sounds African. Look at those savage decorations, the masks and the straws. Well, if you think they're frightening—look at these weird lights, and, besides, we got jungle lightning effects, like in 'The Good Earth.' It'll be just like the customers here are in deepest Africa." . . . At one end of the room is a canopy effect. "Oh, that," Leon explained. "That's a Chupah—leftover from Sunday. Somebody rented this room from us—for a wedding ceremony!"

• • • •

TRIUMPH: Jerome Weidman's book, "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," is definitely a best-seller now. Because Jack Ellis and Charlie Tobias are bringing suit against the young author—a suit based upon the fact that they had written a song by that title in 1929.

• • • •

DEFEAT: Woolworth Donohue and John Halliday held a reunion Monday evening. They last had seen each other at the Casino in Salzburg. Halliday, who doesn't like to gamble, had been teased by Donohue into placing a £10 note on the red. He won, and let his winnings ride . . . When his original stake had been increased to £160, Halliday bet the entire sum on the red, and again he won, but the management refused payment. "We don't accept any bets with English money," they explained to him . . . "That's silly," the actor protested. "I started betting here with £10, and pyramided it into £160 here. You didn't object then." . . . "That," they apologized, "was a mistake, which we'll rectify now." They did—by taking £150 from him!

GRATITUDE: Never let it be said that gratitude and a sense of humor aren't contained in the Communist manifesto. Last week I commented upon an advertisement in the Daily Worker. Yesterday came this note from their advertising department: "Inclosed please find check covering agent's commission on advertising secured through your efforts." The letter really contained a check—for 35 cents.

Italian Prisoners of Loyalists Defy Duce, War Nurse Claims

Suspects Unrest in Italy.

"So many Italians shout 'Death to Mussolini, I wonder if there is not unrest in Italy'," she said. "Many of them came to fight for Franco in the belief that they were going to Ethiopia. They are not sympathetic with the insurgent cause. They seem glad to be captured.

"The German messages are mysterious. But they show that somewhere among the enemy there are men who realize the justice of the government in its struggle against the landowners and the decadent aristocracy of Spain."

Mrs. Fuhr is on leave to the United States, where she is raising funds for the three American hospitals in the war zones. One of these is on the Cordoba front. Another is at the front outside Madrid, and the third is the big base hospital in the shell-torn Spanish capital.

Nurses Brave Shell Fire.

Undisturbed by the shells that rain death from Gen. Francisco Franco's Fascist guns, 87 courageous men and women toil night and day in these hospitals, repairing the human havoc of the war.

The batteries in the Guadarramas thunder during the hours when the Madrilenos are marketing and about their business. But, Mrs. Fuhr said last night, the men and women of Madrid carry on with fierce bravery.

"The Gran Via is badly torn, but the telephone building still stands," explained Mrs. Fuhr. "The shells do not often fall in the aristocratic sections, where the former homes of many of the nobility stand. The working men and women are the victims."

Late in August Mrs. Fuhr will return to Spain. She is anxious to get back among the defenders of Madrid, and when the war is over she plans to open a health institute there.

"Much, oh, very much, of Madrid still stands," she said. "And the spirit of the pepole is high. They will never submit to foreign or royalist domination. The only way the rebels can win the war is to annihilate the Spanish people."

Merger of 3 Branches Within 2 Years Is Predicted.

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., June 10.—Union of the three branches of the Methodist Church within two years was predicted today by Dr. James H. Straughn, of Baltimore, president of the general conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

His work in sponsoring the unity of the churches was praised by the Rev. F. W. Stephenson, D. D., executive secretary of the church's board of Christian education.

Both were speakers at the second day's session of the 109th annual Maryland conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The following were elected to the committee on appeals: E. L. Bunce, of Baltimore; J. H. Straughn, of Baltimore; J. N. Link, of Newark, N. J.; J. J. Dodge, of Washington; N. J. Parks, of Parksley, Va., and R. S. Jett, of Baltimore.

The standing district committee, elected today, included E. C. Makosky, of Arlington, Va.; E. D. Stone, of Hampden; W. H. Litsinger, of Baltimore; J. H. Baker, of Buckeystown; W. M. Scott, of Baltimore, and F. M. Benson.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 10.

AFTER HAVING a look at little Bette Davis in her latest epic, or saga, "Kid Galahad," I am more firmly convinced than ever that the small blonde parcel of dynamite is not only one of the best movie troupers of the day, but the prize Dream Girl of the impressionable young ladies of the Nation.

ALICE HUGHES.

There's always one movie star on tap who is the idol of the younger girls, and whom they try to copy in appearance and even manner. For years it was Joan Crawford; then Ginger Rogers had her day early in her partnership with Fred Astaire. Now I think it's Bette's turn. Movie-matinee girls adore her, and I find that they watch her hair-do, especially. America will be a land of apprentice Bette Davises during the next year, or my powers of observation are totally atrophied. She's a natural-born "trend-setter!"

And she's an interesting child, this Bette. Happily married to a good-looking young man named Clifford Harman, she lives an utterly blameless, scandaless life out in Madtown. Once a colorless little creature, her studio has given her one of the grandest coats of glamour ever applied by those wizards of the cosmetic pots—and we all know what a whiz of an actress she is. And it's only a few years ago that she acted in summer stock at Ogunquit, Me., and was paid practically in peanuts. In fact, she waited on table at a small summer hotel to help along the exchequer. And now look! And mark my words, the high school girls will dote on and copy Bette this year!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The city statistics hounds have just gotten around to estimating that no less than 1,000,000 people visited us over the long Memorial Day week-end—the very time when a couple of million New Yorkers fled the baking streets for the sizzling countryside! And it's a darned good thing all those folks did drop in, for without them the town would have been left completely to the buzzards and a few policemen!

• • • •

The city fathers have just r'ared up and passed a new law forbidding the sale of air rifles or pistols in our town. Evidence was presented that more than 500 youngsters are in homes for the blind as a result of accidents with these firearms—which were requifed toys with every small boy when I was a little girl . . .

We all know Ogden Nash, the lad who writes that crazy verse and brought a new note to humorous poesy with it, and now we find the bird has a writing sister! Her name is Eleanor Arnett Nash, and her first short story has just appeared in a monthly magazine. Writing sometimes runs through families like the German measles—though it's far more painful and upsetting to the disposition . . .

Gay and Colorful for Summer Evenings

Simply-Styled Evening Frocks Are Charming

By Ethel Ehlen.

IF YOU ARE tired and weary of trying to look like a ballerina, a dressed up peasant, a Pharaoh's daughter, a belle of the Gay Nineties or a Civil War bride, and if in spite of all this defiance of trends and influences you simply must buy a new evening gown, the answer is something extremely simple in line. The mid-season collections are featuring such formal and semiformal evening interpretations, and there is enough variety available that one need not look regimented either.

Skirts Are Flaring.

For these simple and yet smart creations, chiffon is one of the most popular mediums—subtle pastels, white, black and brilliant striped and plaided patterns. If you prefer a bit of bouffancy for summer, there are the organzas, mousselines, starched laces. The one requisite (unless you are the type that prefers sleekness) is that the skirt of the gown must be full and flaring, to swish gracefully as you dance. The decolletage is low, both in back and front, unless again, you prefer to defy all trends and plan your neckline to encircle your throat.

Another interesting midseason tonic for summer evening wardrobes—try dramatizing your simple gown with exotic shoes. Toeless, heelless sandals fashioned of bright-colored fabrics in gay patterns! These may be either solid color tones or gala designs in stripes, prints or dots of varying sizes, made of cotton, silk, crepe or brocades. Evening shoes for summer are vieing with dresses for attention, and worn with a simple gown is the best method of highlighting dramatic footwear.

Contrasting Jackets.

To add a bit of newness to an evening gown purchased at the beginning of the season, add a new cape or jacket of contrasting color or material; it gives the ensemble a different air. These are available in varying lengths, stylings and novelty fabrics. Another method of revitalizing a simple gown, particularly one of white, black or pastel tint, try twining a gay-colored or striped scarf about your waist and let the ends extend down to the hemline. It changes the character of the styling from classic simplicity, to one with a bit of dash and daring.

All of these midseason suggestions are ageless, applying to young and not-so-young women alike. It is a season when originality and individuality are the guideposts to chic, and the fastidious person will take advantage of this leeway and use her own ingenuity and initiative in planning costumes that really are distinctive.

Green and Violet.

Moss green and violet, first introduced at a spring style show in Miami, Fla., make a color combination which is the very essence of spring. Such a combination also will suggest shady glens when summer suns begin to shine.

CAPITAL MANNERS

House Guests and Hostesses Should Be Included in Each Other's Social Calendars.

By Margaret Wallace

IS IT POLITE to invite a house guest to an entertainment without including the hostess? Is it proper to invite guests to an entertainment and not include the house guest? These two letters arrived in separate letters in the mail. They are closely related to each other, and therefore can be considered together.

"My house guest," one of the writers states, "arrives at my house and proceeds to make many engagements without consulting me. Many persons call her on the telephone, some of them known to me, and ask her to dinner or other entertainments, but never include me. She announces that someone is giving a dinner and that she is going without asking my plans or even thinking that I should be included. One of her friends called the other afternoon while I was serving tea. She discussed a dinner she was arranging and possible guests and never said a word about me. Finally she suggested that my guest and she leave my other callers and go to my library to make up the list. My guest went and left my callers with me, although I had invited them in to meet her. I feel that she is using my house as a free boarding house. She never pays any attention to meal hours at our house."

Guest Is Held Rude.

This guest is very rude, and so are the people who invite her to entertainments without including the hostess. If the house guest wishes to live her own social life independent of her hostess she should go to a hotel. It certainly looks as though this hostess is correct in thinking her guest regards her home as simply a free boarding house. This is a complaint many Washington hostesses make.

The house guest who has written her grievance has equal reason for complaint. She writes, "I have come to Washington to be a guest at the home of an old friend. I expected to be invited to her entertainments and to those of her friends and selected my wardrobe with this idea in mind. Although she knew I was coming for a month in advance she had a dinner party the very first night I arrived and told me that on account of the seating arrangements she could not invite me and that I could come in afterwards.

Considers Difficulties.

"All hostesses have these difficulties, and I took this with good grace and dressed and came down to the drawing room after dinner. But my hostess had arranged to take her guests to a dance of a friend. I was not invited. Ten minutes later they had all gone, leaving me at home alone. She has entertained at several theater parties and not invited me. When she is not entertaining herself she is attending some entertainment. She explained that all her engagements were made before my arrival. She suggested that I come to visit her at this time."

It is very bad form to give entertainments in one's own home and not invite guests in the household. The only exception would be that of an official hostess who might have to entertain for a certain group. Even then if she knew her guest was to be there it would be possible to arrange a place for her at the dinner. Hostesses do go out to entertainments to which their guests are not invited provided they have accepted the invitation before the arrival of the guest or there is some circumstance that makes it proper for the hostess to accept without her guests. Such circumstances might be a dinner of business associates and their wives, an organization dinner or tea or something of that nature.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"THAT'S my best color," commented Dottie Young as we admired the lovely old blue of her living-room walls. And it does bring out her eyes and makes her skin simply bloom.

She used her old mulberry twist weave rug then hunted to find curtains of a pinkish cast but verging toward a pale mulberry tinge rather than the usual peach tone. This was a rayon gauze that hangs delicately but it's not really transparent. She followed this tone through to a deep pinkish lavender which she quilted and used as a slip cover for a pair of chairs. All the other furniture she slip covered in a sprawling floral on a light beige ground but with deep purply-reds in the pattern—almost mulberry they were.

Crystal for accents, lilacs and lavender sweet peas and iris and delphinium are Dottie's favorite flowers here. She highlights them with pink flowers when she can get just the right pink. Flat silver frames for her pictures made unexpectedly distinctive details . . . and her silver tea set repeated that note.

Dottie herself is usually to be found in something trailing and creamy colored, or else in simple pastel linens that go so well with her eyes and that room.

The reason this room pleases us so much is because it not only suits dainty Dot, but it has substance enough to match her broad shouldered grey tweeded Henry. And the furniture coverings can stand a growing family since they all zip on and off for cleaning.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the writer's bulletin "Making Your Own Lamp Shades." This includes directions for making simple informal shades just meant for a season as well as handsome lined silk shades for permanent beauty.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should She Continue to See Youth With Whom She Came 'Dangerously Near Losing Head?' Girl Asks.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About three months ago I met a fine young man who is very good looking. His personality is charming and appears to have high moral principle. He seemed very much on the level in regard to me, and about three weeks ago he told me he loved me. I am not sure whether I love him, or whether I am just infatuated, but at any rate, I am deeply interested.

• • • •

I am 18 years old, considered very good looking and am a good dancer. I belong to a sorority and several clubs. Boy friends I have always had and at present I am going with three other boys besides this one. I am telling you this so you will understand it was not a case of a girl's being swept off her feet by a handsome man because she hadn't "gotten around."

• • • •

Last week on a picnic we wandered off from the others and as a result, came dangerously near losing our heads . . . The boy regained self-control just in time and brought me back to my senses as well. He said it was "all wrong," and asked me why I had permited it. I can't tell you how humiliated I felt. He said he wondered if it might have been the same with any other boy, and added that he would expect to marry a girl if such a thing happened. I had never been so nearly swept off my feet before and I told him so. He asked me never to lie to him and said what had happened had not changed his feeling for me; that he still loved me. Do you think he could still respect me?

• • • •

I am to decide whether we are to go on seeing each other or try to forget. He said to make my own decision, without regard to his feelings, and that if I decide to see him, we will have a date next week. At present I am crazy about him and would hate to give him up. What should I do? He is very sweet and I am sure he loves me. If I decide to continue seeing him, how should I act? Thanking you in advance for any advice, I am,

BEWILDERED.

• • • •

DEAR BEWILDERED: When a man tells a girl in all sincerity that he loves her, usually he is confessing, among other things, the fact that she holds the power to stir his senses profoundly. Real love, whether reciprocated or one-sided, is a blend of mental, spiritual and physical attraction. This boy's conduct in the situation described suggests that his devotion is authentic and balanced. Physical responsiveness was there; but there, also, were the spiritual concomitants of chastity, reverence, idealism and discipline, and the mental concomitants of a will to protect the beloved, even against herself, and to keep the relationship on an altogether honorable basis. In other words, love is tender, generous and unselfseeking, and that this man is capable of love he proved in averting an emotional crisis and in permitting you to make the decision as to whether you shall see him again.

• • • •

Since you are only 18, and This your first overwhelming encounter with the electric force of the physical side of love, you may be forgiven for having momentarily lost your head. You are extremely fortunate, however, to have met this experience with a boy who did not take advantage of your temporary vertigo.

• • • •

You can risk seeing the boy again only if you are willing to profit by what happened and by his sorrowful rebuke; for I am sure his reproaches were voiced more in disappointment than disgust. No youth is so lost to idealism and ethical conduct that he does not wish, deep in his heart, to find love with some girl who is invulnerably chaste. And no man ever believes absolutely that he is the special, exceptional man to whom a woman gives her favor. His only standard for judging her chastity is her conduct with him. This being true, you see how important it is to keep yourself not only above reproach, but above suspicion of reproach, in your romantic relations with a given person.

• • • •

In attemtping to restore your romance to a tenable footing, you may as well reiterate to the boy the fact that you had never before so nearly lost your head, and tell him as well that, now you know what ungovernable forces certain indiscreet situations may provoke, you are determined to see that such circumstances shall not be created in the future. Tell him as a matter of character you are determined to prove, to him as well as to yourself, that you are capable of firm self-government.

• • • •

Give your association another trial period of, say, a month. During that time, try to establish a well-rounded comradeship of association which includes wholesome gaiety in the company of others. Intelligently and purposefully investigate what interests you have in common, other than a pronounced mutual physical attraction. If no other interests exist; if every meeting leads inevitably to disturbing lovemaking; if you find you can't keep your emotions and his under control, to the extent that you may thoroughly enjoy each other's company without distressing issues presenting themselves, I would advise you to break off the friendship. M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem.

How to find out if army officer now stationed near Washington is same who was best man at friend's recent wedding, is girl's question. She says the name and ranking is the same. She will be advised here tomorrow. Another girl gives pointers to "Lorraine," who complained on June 9 that modern boys are devoid of moral principle. This column appears Sunday and daily.

Mexican Designs Transparent Heel

It won't be long before girls will be wearing their hearts on their heels, if the brain child of a Mexican inventor achieves recognition. His contribution to feminine elegance is a transparent heel containing symbols designed to express the mood of the moment, or figures appropriate to specific occasions and events. Among the novelties incorporated in his various heel designs are flowers, animals, mermaids, portraits of movie stars, and gold fish swimming about in a liquid filling. Luminous effects on some of the figures provide miniature beacons, making it easy to locate the wearers in the dark.

Helpful Hints On Selecting Summer Camps

Parents Should Check Personnel, Pools and Cabins.

By the Associated Press.

THREE gentle hints to parents of camp-going sons and daughters:

Take every possible precaution to choose a good camp.

With the constant increase in the number of back-to-nature addicts in the last few years, many assemble-by-night camps have sprung up about the country. Badly equipped, on unhealthy sites, and with inefficient managers, many of them are the scene, each year, of tragic events.

The wise parent will investigate the camp his child is to attend—and then dismiss all worries.

It's a good idea to visit the camp, talk with the supervisor and, if possible, meet the counsellor who will be in charge of Daughter Debbie.

It's also a good plan to look at the bungalow or cottage where Debbie will sleep, survey the lake or swimming pool where she will learn to do the sidestroke and glance around the dining and pow-wow cabins.

Just because Debbie's classmates are planning to go to that particular camp is no reason her mother shouldn't ask a lot of questions.

Debbie should be provided with the same kind of equipment the other campers will have. And for her own happiness she shouldn't be provided with any more or any less spending money than her colleagues will have. (Consult the camp director.)

Once Debbie has left for camp, she must paddle her own canoe. She's expected to live up to camp rules and regulations—and abide by the decisions of the camp director and her counsellors.

No whiney letters home—complaining about petty jealousies and troubles.

With Poultry Prices Down, Chicken Offers Good Food Value

Post Cooking Expert Suggests Several Up-to-the-Minute Recipes for Preparing Fowl; Batter Frying Retains Flavor.

By Rebekah Blake.

POULTRY PRICES are well under last year's figures, so take advantage of this good food value.

Halves of young chicken, browned delicately under the flame; chicken a la king, chicken salad with mayonnaise and crisp lettuce; chicken in a jellied loaf—these are summer ideas for chicken enthusiasts.

Home cooks gladly subscribe to these dishes, too—since they are made with a minimum of heat. That is something to consider when doing summer cooking.

It is a simple matter to get fresh chickens by taking a little drive out into the country or from your country market, but the spring chickens in the city markets are fresh and wholesome for they have been through a careful quick-freezing process—one that is used for many more perishable foods—that keeps them safe for the consumer for hours after they have left the market. In this process nothing has been left undone to assure the consumer of a superior product and all of the fresh goodness and food value have been retained.

And of course, at picnic time, fried chicken will be one of the things to go into the hamper. It will be fried the naw way—in batter. This method keeps all of the juicy goodness of the chicken from dripping out of the batter before it is fried. It sort of steams inside its tender golden-brown crust. It stays crisp when packed—and is much neater to eat on a picnic.

Chicken Fried in Batter.

Salt
1 egg
1 cup irradiated evaporated milk
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
Fat for frying.

Clean chicken and cut in pieces for frying. Beat egg and add milk. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with baking powder and salt. Add egg-milk mixture and mix quickly. Sprinkle chicken with salt and dip in batter. Fry in deep fat (325 degrees F.) until brown, about 10 minutes. If chicken is very large and not too tender, put in casserole after frying, cover and set in hot oven for about 20 minutes.

The back, neck and wings of the chicken are not such choice pieces for frying in batter. It is better to stew them for use in sandwich, salad or creamed mixtures. It is important that the batter be smooth and just heavy enough to leave a good, but not thick, coating on the chicken. By using undiluted irradiated evaporated milk, it is possible to produce a batter of perfect smoothness and consistency. For an added flavor note, try a dash of nutmeg in the batter!

A summer sandwich to lend the party touch to any Sunday night supper is cleverly concocted with just the right amounts of chicken and ham and American cheese. Like all the rest of the world of food fashion, sandwiches must keep abreast of the newest mode—and the chicken sandwich de luxe is the latest summer note. More than a mere sandwich, this chicken-cheese specialty is well qualified to become the main dish of any fashionable luncheon. Its delectable cheese topping is its chief claim to fame—and though it looks like the most difficult of chef's specialties, it is quite simple to prepare.

Chicken Paprika.

Temperature: simmering
¼ cup fat
1 young chicken cut up, 2½ to 3½ pounds
1 teaspoon salt
¼ to ½ cup chopped onion
Time: ½ to 1 hour
½ to 1 teaspoon paprika water
1 cup or more sour cream
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon lemon juice

Cook onions in the fat until soft and slightly tinged with golden brown. Lift out onion and place chicken pieces in fat. When chicken is lightly browned, return onion, add paprika, salt and a little water. Cover and cook gently until tender (½ to 1 hour depending upon chicken.) Add water from time to time if necessary to prevent burning. Meanwhile blend the flour with enough water to make a smooth paste, then stir into the cream. Add to meat and simmer about 5 minutes longer to cook the flour thoroughly. Taste and add more seasoning if desired. Add a few drops or more of lemon juice.

Jellied Chicken Loaf.

First soften 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin in 1-3 cup cold water. Then dissolve it in 2 cups hot chicken stock or bouillon. Next add ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon celery salt, and let cool. Then rinse a loaf pan (about 8 by 3 by 4 inches) with this gelatin mixture, so as to leave a thin coating of it over the inside of the pan. Let this get firm. When the rest of the gelatin mixture gets about to the consistency of unbeaten egg-white, fold in 2 cups diced, cooked chicken; ½ cup chopped blanched almonds; ¼ cup each chopped pimento and green pepper. Then arrange some cooked asparagus tips (about 3 inches long( tips down, along sides and ends of pan. Between these, place thick slices of hard-cooked eggs. Then very carefully (so as not to disarrange eggs and asparagus) turn in the chicken mixture. Chill till firm. Then unmold on watercress or crisp lettuce, and serve with mayonnaise.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Fresh Fruits Desirable.

Not long ago I saw an old picture of a street in New York in 1895, in which was shown an ice wagon making its regular rounds. When the picture was published it was called "Summer Luxuries." Yet there is no one today in even moderate circumstances, who cannot have plenty of this luxury.

We naturally turn to cool things in the summer, and our enjoyment has been greatly enhanced by modern methods of refrigeration.

Egyptians knew that evaporation would cool liquids. Frescoes dating back to 2500 B. C., show slaves fanning jars with palm leaves for this purpose. Caves and primitive food cellars were used up until a short time ago. Home refrigeration is a comparatively recent development.

We naturally turn to fruits in the summer time, and the fresh frozen fruits and vegetables which can now be obtained in packages are delicious and healthful. The packer of fresh frozen fruits waits until the fruit, or vegetable, is dead ripe on the tree, vine or bush before picking it. At this point of growth, nature has put the best of everything into it. It is then immediately frozen fresh, usually within a few minutes, by the modern quick-freezing method, which completely stops all further chemical and enzyme development. Thus we have retained all of the flavor, color, tenderness and health giving values just as they were the moment it was hanging ripe on the tree or vine.

The shipper of fresh fruits must pick slightly on the green side and permit the fruits and vegetables to ripen in transit.

Fruits are desirable as summer food because they contain a large amount of sugar in a form that is easily absorbed, and because they furnish sufficient energy rapidly without necessarily heating the body. Their "specific heat" is not as high as protein, which is one of the reasons for their popularity.

Fruits contain fruit acids, but these immediately turn to alkaline salts in the body, and the effect of eating fruits is to make the body alkaline rather than acid.

Wholesome Food Can Be Provided In Corn Sticks

Of the variety of hot breads—which add a touch of elegance to any meal—those made with corn meal have long been favorites. Here's a new recipe for corn sticks that you'll want to try—and whether you use meal as snowy white as a field of cotton or as yellow as a patch of spring dandelions, you'll find the corn sticks superb.

Corn Sticks.

1 cup corn meal
1 cup flour
4 tsp. baking powder
2 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 egg
½ cup irradiated evap. milk
½ cup water
3 tbsp. butter.

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with other dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Beat egg until light and foamy and add milk, water and melted butter. Stir liquid quickly into dry ingredients. Pour batter into well greased corn stick pans. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Menus For Today

BREAKFAST.

LUNCHEON

Omelet julienne
Biscuits Butter
Plum sauce
Tea Cookies

DINNER.

Chilled fruit juice
Creole Shrimp.
Fresh green peas
Spring vegetable salad
Honey rolls Butter
Iced coffee
Baked chocolate custard

CREOLE SHRIMPS.

1 pound cooked shrimps
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onions
2 tablespoons minced green peppers
2 tablespoons minced celery
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Wash and clean the shrimps

Melt the butter in a frying pan. Add and brown slightly, the onions, green peppers and celery. Add the flour and, when mixed, add the milk and salt. Cook until a creamy sauce forms, stirring constantly. Add the shrimps and pour into a shallow, buttered baking dish. Cover with crumbs.

A Cold 'Tip.'

If a large piece of ice is necessary for the punch bowl, remove the racks from the largest cube tray, fill the tray with water and, when it is partially frozen, add slices of lemons, oranges and candied cherries. Green mint leaves, too, lend a colorful note.

Sprays for Insects Treated With Perfume

Insect sprays, such as are used in the home for killing flies, mosquitoes and other pests now are being treated with perfume to dissipate their disagreeable odor.

Chemists have developed various aromatics which, when introduced into the spray, attract flies and other insects through the sweet odor. The insecticides retain all their deadly characteristics.

Change Keeps Meals From Being Humdrum

Many a humdrum meal can be given a festive air. Try using an unusual centerpiece, a change of china or a surprise eating place, such as a table drawn up in front of a crackling open fire, set with bright cover and centered with a lighted candle. This will make a cheery close to a busy day.

Good Cleaning Weekly Urged for Refrigerator

The refrigerator should have a weekly cleaning. Remove all food, take out trays and shelves and wash the latter thoroughly in hot water and soap suds. Wash the inside of the refrigerator with warm water and soap suds and rinse with a solution in which one tablespoon of soda is added to each quart of water. Rinse again with warm water and wipe with a soft cloth. Then leave the box open for five minutes or so to allow the insides to dry.

Ham, Bacon Dripppings Good for Seasoning

Bacon, ham and sausage drippings make excellent seasonings—providing they are not burned. Pour off the drippings as soon as they collect.

Cover and store them in the refrigerator and use them for seasoning vegetables and meats—or for browning such foods as croquettes or sliced vegetables, meat or fish.

The JUICE BUY of the WEEK!

This has been an extraordinary season on Grapefruit products. One of the largest Grapefruit crops in history was produced. Similarly, one of the greatest distribution and sales-promotion campaigns on any food product was successfully concluded, resulting in much higher prices in the primary markets toward the end of the season. Hence the cost of canning juice was greatly increased as the season advanced, due to the higher prices fruit growers were receiving for their fresh fruit.

Early in the season we contracted for deliveries of canned juice at the then existing prices. The unsold portion of our contract is now arriving.

We believe you will appreciate the opportunity to share in the low prices of the early season.

Ethel duPont's Gifts Are Pouring in Daily

Valuables Stored in Father's Study, With Special Guard of Detectives; Franklin Roosevelt's Fiancee Writes Own 'Thank You' Notes.

By Hope Ridings Miller,

Word comes from Wilmington that wedding gifts for Ethel duPont and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., are arriving so thick and fast at the duPont home that the father of the bride-to-be has given up his study as a storeroom for them.

Formerly, this was a museum of sorts, where Eugene duPont's prized collection of stuffed animals and birds was on display. These have been shelved temporarily to make room for chests of silver, huge boxes of linen and loads of crystal.

As protection for these treasures, detectives have been stationed all over the estate on Owl's Nest road, and the duPont servant staff is being gradually enlarged as the wedding day approaches.

Among presents recently received was a mammoth chest of silver containing a dozen pieces each of each table-service section in the Gorham "Covington" pattern—a gift of Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President. Extremely plain in style, the silver may one day bear the crest used by other feminine members of the bride's family. This forms the center of the duPont family crest—a pillar over the inscription "Rectitudine Stuo," which means "Be Upright."

Writes Own Notes.

Just like girls of moderate means, Miss duPont has to write her own "Thank you" notes, and she is sending them out as soon after each gift arrives as possible. Disobeying Emily Post's precept that "the type of wedding present must be specified in letters of thanks," Miss duPont is taking a short cut and making her notes as brief as possible.

"Thank you for your lovely gift. We appreciate it very much"—written and signed by her is the context of a note recently received by a Washington resident.

Meanwhile, plans for the wedding seem to be shaping up nicely. The wide, white roadway circling the little church, Christiana Hundred, where the wedding will take place, is almost finished. The road is being built especially for the wedding and will replace the quaint, narrow gravel path that has led to the church and around it for many years. This road and the highway leading into it—also built with duPont money—will be open on the wedding day only to cars bearing persons with invitations.

Organist Declines.

While Mr. Eugene duPont is busy supervising this work, Mrs. duPont has her hands full looking after final arrangements for the wedding. Even with the help of a huge staff of workers and a high-powered publicity man to take care of the press, the problem is bigger than it might seem.

Mrs. duPont found it would not all be smooth sailing several months ago when Firmin Swinnen, Belgian-born organist at Longwood, the estate of the bride's uncle, Pierre S. duPont, declined to play at the famous wedding. Although he is official organist at Christianna Hundred, Mr. Swinnen sweetly but firmly told the duPonts the wedding would interfere with his vacation, which he spends in Belgium every other year.

"I could not miss my vacation for all the Roosevelts in the world," was the way he put it. Another Belgian organist, Charles M. Courboin, of Philadelphia, was engaged to play.

There are others, it seems, who also are not disposed to change vacation plans in order to attend the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Pierre S. duPont will be among those missing at Christianna Hundred on June 30. They are sailing for Europe before the wedding.

Miss Overton Gives Luncheon

Among the luncheons on the Shoreham Terrace yesterday afternoon was that given by Miss Ruth Overton, daughter of Senator and Mrs. John H. Overton, who entertained in honor of Miss Caroline Hughes, daughter of Senator and Mrs. James H. Hughes. Miss Hughes will be married to Dr. Jack Martin, of Dover, Del., on June 26.

Guests at the luncheon were Senator and Mrs. James H. Hughes, Senator and Mrs. John A. Overton, Mrs. Camden McAtee, Miss Cuyler Schwartz, daughter of Senator H. H. Schwartz, of Wyoming; Mrs. Prew Savoy, daughter of Senator John G. Townsend, of Delaware; Miss Margaret Boyce, of Dover, Del.; the Misses Betty and Jean Richards, Miss Jane Holt, sister of Senator Rush Holt; Miss Annabel Essary, Miss Kay Overton and Miss Mary Elizabeth Overton.

Another was that given by Mrs. J. J. Mack, who entertained for a few friends whom she wished to see before going to her summer home in northern Maine. Mrs. Mack will leave for Rockwood Monday morning.

Hathaway-Train Ceremony Held At Bride's Home

Marriage of Interest to Navy Circles Is Performed Here.

Another wedding of interest to Navy circles in the Capital took place yesterday at 4 o'clock when Miss Marian Langdon Train, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Cecil Train, of Chevy Chase, Md., was married to Ensign Amos Townsend Hathaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Amos Hathaway, of Bakersfield, Calif. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Chaplain Edward Duff officiating.

An improvised altar had been set up before the fireplace, which was banked with palms and ferns. A profusion of white flowers, including snapdragons and stock, decorated the drawing room.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Irish crochet over chiffon, with a chiffon train with five pleated ruffles. The gown was shirred at the neck and a long veil of illusion fell from an Irish crochet cap trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Cecil Train served as her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Katherine Brown, of Montana, was bridesmaid. Little Jane Bullen Train, another sister of the bride, was flower girl. Miss Train and Miss Brown wore French mousseline frocks shading from ivory to orange, with capes and tricorne hats of ivory color. They carried talisman roses. The little flower girl chose a pale green frock over taffeta.

Freeny-Cole Nuptials Yesterday

The Sacred Heart Church was the scene of the wedding yesterday morning at 10 o'clock of Miss Maria Alice Freeny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Morris Freeny, to Mr. James Omar Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Omar Cole, of Peru, Ind. The Rev. Michael Hyle performed the ceremony, which was followed by a small breakfast for members of the family and bridal party.

The bride wore a white satin gown with an antique rose point lace collar and a Queen of Scots veil. She carried a prayer book with a shower of gardenias. The maid fo honor, Miss Margaret Josephine Freeny, chose a printed chiffon frock with cornflower blue accessories and leghorn hat. The bridesmaids were Miss Martha Davenport Freeny and Miss Mary Jo Cole.

Mr. Joseph Henry Regan, of Bridgeport, Conn., was best man and the ushers were Mr. John Wolfe, of Boise, Idaho, and Mr. Hugh Lynch and Mr. Thomas Slattery, of Washington.

James Tumulty, Jr., Married Here

Miss Isabell Wamsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wamsley, of Sparkill, N. Y., was married yesterday morning to Mr. James Tumulty, jr., of Jersey City, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tumulty, of that city, and nephew of Mr. Joseph Tumulty, of Washington, formerly secretary to the late Woodrow Wilson.

The ceremony took place in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, the Rev. Maurice J. Sheehy officiating, and was followed by a breakfast at the Shoreham Hotel. The bride wore a beige crepe ensemble with a cape, a natural baku straw hat and a corsage of green orchids. Miss Margaret Durand, her only attendant, chose a navy blue frock with a cape and a gardenia corsage. Mr. John Tumulty, of Jersey City, served as his brother's best man.

After a wedding trip to Panama and South America, Mr. Tumulty and his bride will make their home in Jersey City.

Engagement Told; Wedding Tomorrow

MR. AND MRS. J. FREDERICK ESSARY announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annabel Forman Essary, to Mr. Samuel Tilden Ansell, jr., son of Brig. Gen. Samuel Tilden Ansell (retired) and Mrs. Ansell, of Washington. The wedding will take place at 11:30 tomorrow morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Essary, on Newark street, and will be witnessed only by members of the two families. Miss Peggy Essary will serve as her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Helene Essary, another sister, will be bridesmaid. Mr. Burr Tracy Ansell will act as best man for his brother.

The bride-to-be, who is descended from a distinguished family—members of which were prominent in the American Revolution—attended the Chateau de Boulogne in Paris, St. Paul's School in London, and Sweetbriar College. She was presented to Capital society a few years ago. Her father is Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun and her mother is a widely-known columnist for a Washington newspaper.

Mr. Ansell attended Mercersburg Academy, Harvard and George Washington University, and recently received a law degree from the National Law School. He is a descendant of Samuel Tilden, one-time Governor of New York.

The couple will reside in Washington.

Parties Honor Miss Jackson

Gay Events Planned Here to Precede Wedding on June 19.

A number of New York and Washington friends of Miss Hope Jackson are planning a series of gay parties in honor of her approaching marriage to Mr. Patrick Garvan, of New York. The ceremony will take place on Saturday, June 19, at Green Court, the Brookville (Long Island) estate which Mrs. W. Forbes Morgan, sister of the bride-to-be, has leased for the summer.

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, will give a dinner for members of the wedding party on Thursday evening at the St. Regis Hotel, in New York. Mrs. Morgan will entertain at another dinner the following evening after the wedding rehearsal. Mrs. Carl Tucker, aunt of Mr. Garvan, is giving a party on her yacht on Tuesday, and Mrs. James F. Curtis, who leaves Washington shortly for her Long Island estate, will also entertain in honor of the couple.

Miss Jackson's attendants will be Misss Mary Louise Marsh, Miss Elinor Ryan, Mrs. Milliard Farrar West, and Mrs. William Barron Kerkam, jr., all of Washington. They expect to leave on Tuesday for the festivities. Her sister, Mrs. Morgan, will be matron of honor.

Dr. Kurt Hetzel, of Washington, who plays the organ as well as he plays the piano, will leave next week to act as organist at the wedding.

• • • •

Dr. William Gerry Morgan has returned from Atlantic City, where he attended the annual meeting of the American Therapeutic Association, the American Gastro-enterological Association and the American Medical Association.

Tea Planned By Sorority Unit June 20

Mrs. Lila Cramer and the National Heads to Receive.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,

GAMMA CHAPTER of Kappa Gamma Sorority will have the honor of entertaining at the first large function to be given in the newly established national headquarters of the organization in the Raleigh Hotel. The affair will be a tea June 20 from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Lila Cramer, president of the chapter, will have receiving with her Mrs. Helen McChesney, national director of the sorority; Miss Mercedes Galbraith, national secretary, and chapter officers, Mrs. Louise Ferrell, vice president; Miss Stella Bryant, secretary, and Miss Frances Taylor, treasurer. Mrs. Mary Malone Moore will make the introductions.

Kappa Gamma, a cultural, noncollegiate sorority, moved its headquarters from Chicago to Washington a little over a year ago. Miss Galbraith, who has been its secretary for three years, and Mrs. McChesney had their offices in the National Press Building and the meetings were held in the Grafton Hotel at local headquarters of the League of American Pen Women.

Three chapters have been formed in the District since last autumn—Alpha, of which Miss Mary Lee Vincent is president; Beta, which is headed by Miss Helen Mobberley, and Gamma, with Mrs. Cramer at its head. A fourth, Delta, is to be formed in the fall.

The membership has grown steadily during the season. Mrs. Vincent, who is a graduate of Strayer Business College and now secretary to Mr. R. W. Rigsby, executive officer of the Farm Credit Administration, has 66 in her chapter; Miss Mobberley, assistant sales manager of the National Broadcasting Co., has 114 members in her group, and Mrs. Cramer, 120. Most of the sorority members are business women.

Kappa Gamma, which was formed in 1907, originally devoted itself exclusively to social activities. For ten years, however, a cultural program has been carried out. During the past season the Washington chapters have studied applied psychology under Dr. Jesse Sprowls, dean of the department of psychology at Maryland University, and Dr. Weston Clark, assistant, who gave lectures twice a month.

The class work will be discontinued during the summer, but social gatherings will continue.

The new headquarters includes an executive office and a large reception room with divans, chairs, desks and a piano. It is open to members from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily, and also will be used for chapter meetings and parties.

The committees in charge of preparations for the affair include the social committee, of which Miss Kate Hulsey is chairman; publicity, headed by Mrs. Moore; entertainment, Mrs. Theodore Tiller; refreshments, Miss Mae Lothan; table committee, headed by Miss Margaret Hummer, president of the Dental Assistants' Association; decorations committee, in charge of Mrs. Olive Risdon, and the music committee, headed by Miss Gladys Bell.

Mrs. McChesney is a native of Alabama and a graduate of Brenau College in Gainesville, Ga. Since coming to Washington she has taken graduate work toward her master's degree at George Washington University. In addition to belonging to Kappa Gamma, she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. Miss Galbraith is a native of Missouri and a graduate of the University of Texas.

A. P. V. A. Tour Rouses Interest

Much interest is manifest in the pilgrimage tomorrow to Pohick Church, the gardens of Gunston Hall and to Rippon Lodge which is being arranged by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

This association was formed years ago for the purpose of restoring and preserving valuable old documents and landmarks. Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, who are active members, have invited all making the tour to have tea with them at their lovely old estate, Rippon Lodge, which was formerly owned by a member of the Washington family.

The pilgrimage is not only for members of the association but also for others interested in the historic landmarks to be visited, Miss Laura Dorsey, of Calverton Apartments, is in charge of reservations, and buses and private cars will leave the Willard Hotel, Pennsylvania avenue entrance, at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Everard Robinson Todd is directress of the association, with Mrs. William O. Owens, Mrs. William Cabell Moore and Mrs. Henry St. George Tucker, as vice directresses.

Mrs. Harold D. King To Give a Tea for Unitarian Women

Mrs. Harold D. King will open her home in Wesley Heights this afternoon for a tea in honor of Mrs. Eugene F. Mueller, newly elected national vice president of the General Alliance of Unitarian Women, and Mrs. Edward H. Horton, newly elected director.

Mrs. King will be assisted by Miss Florence Bingham, president of the Washington Alliance, who will pour.

By Suzanne.

MRS. THEODORE D. PEYSER, treasurer of the District Women's Golf Association, may be an officer of a children's swimming association before the summer's over. She has just had completed, at her home in Chevy Chase, a new pool, which is full size so grown-ups may swim there, but is at present largely devoted to the aquatic activities of her two children, Natalie and Teddy, and their friends, who play there almost from breakfast to dinner time.

THE DISTRICT LEAGUE DAY banquet which had been planned for tomorrow night by the Democratic League of the District at the Shoreham has been postponed. There was a conflict in dates and it was decided the party should be held in the fall instead.

• • • •

MISS CORINNE T. REARDON, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria, devised a way of pepping up the usual program of convention reports presented at the meeting of the club last Tuesday night. It met at the George Mason Hotel and a feature was an account of the annual State convention of the B. and P. W. Federation, held last month in Staunton, Va.

Reports of what happened at a meeting nearly a month after it occurs are never too exciting no matter who gives them. They are necessarily rather matter-of-fact reviews of the proceedings. Miss Reardon assigned the task of serious reports to Miss Lelia Thompson, Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson and Miss Edith Whitton, each of whom injected a bit of humor into her talk; but it was not until they had finished that Miss Reardon played her neat little ace. They told about the convention; she told about them. Making the delegates the subject of her discussion, she gave an account of what they did, where they went and all the amusing details of the trip which had nothing at all to do with the convention itself, but was delightfully entertaining to the club.

'Y' Singers End Season At Banquet

Final Concert Includes Nature, Love and Opera Songs.

Theme of Sky Blue With Silver Stars Deck the Tables.

A SEASON OF SONG was closed last night by the Elizabeth Somers Glee Club of the Y. W. C. A. with its annual banquet in the fourth floor dining room of the "Y" attended by members and a few additional guests.

The theme of the club's final concert was carried out in the banquet program. The musicale, given last week, included a group of nature songs, followed by love songs and opera airs. Last night, after the dinner, the girls sang an impromptu program of the same kind of songs although different selections from those they presented for their concert audience.

The decorations were in harmony with the motif of the nature group as were the toasts with which the music was interspersed. The table covers were sky blue, decorated with stars of different sizes and the dinner programs also were silver stars. The center piece was a mirror arranged with white candles in silver candlesticks.

Miss Drake Presides.

Miss Gladys Darke, president of the glee club, presided at the opening of the affair and later turned the program over to Miss Lucy Garton, chairman of the banquet. Miss Darke wore lavendar chiffon and Miss Garton, a flame colored frock.

Business Women Meet.

The businesswomen's group of the Y. W. inaugurated its season last night with a program of music and motion pictures on the roof garden at 8 o'clock. Invitation to join in the summer programs was extended to all members of clubs in the business girls' department and activities for those of varied interests were planned.

Frances Darlington Simpson, Dr. Hayden Kirby-Smith Wed

Close Friends and Members of Two Families Are Present at Ceremony in the Home of the Bride's Parents Here.

In the presence of close friends and members of the two families, Miss Frances Darlington Simpson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Simpson, of Washington, was married at 8 o'clock last evening to Dr. Hayden Kirby-Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kirby-Smith, of Mexico City. The ceremony took place in the apartment of the bride's parents, 2101 Connecticut avenue, the Rev. Henry Snyder officiating.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room, before a long Florentine mirror flanked with palms and ferns. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of pale pink organdie made with a full skirt and fitted waist and carried pale pink roses and delphinium. Her only attendant was Mrs. Farmer Vanderbilt, of New York, who wore a frock of blue chiffon and carried spring flowers. Mr. Edward D. Skidmore, of Mexico City, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, served as best man.

The bride made her debut in Washington in 1933. She attended Holten-Arms School and Miss Barry's. Dr. Kirby-Smith studied at Sewanee University and the George Washington Medical School.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Maria Kirby-Smith, sister of the bridegroom, Mr. Stuart Skidmore and Miss Katherine Skidmore, all of Mexico City.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Randolph Saal, of New Orleans, announce the engagement of their daughter Marie Saal to Mr. Horace I. Pack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Pack, of Washington. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Bar Association Takes Cruise To Marine Base

Spring Outing in Honor of Jurists of Washington; Quantico Inspected.

Laying aside judicial worries, the District Bar Association, 572 strong, cruised down the Potomac yesterday and inspected the Marine Base, at Quantico, Va. Leaving at 10 a. m., the expedition returned on board the S. S. Potomac in the early evening.

The association's sixty-sixth annual spring outing was in honor of the justices of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District, justices of the District Court and judges of the Police and Municipal courts.

After luncheon on board the Potomac, the parrty arrived at Quantico at 1:30 o'clock, where they were officially greeted by Maj. Gen. Charles H. Lyman, commandant of the Marine base. They reviewed the First Marine Brigade, Fleet Marine Force, commanded by Brig. Gen. R. P. Williams.

Following the review, the association and its guests witnessed the presentation of a captain's commission in the reserve to Representative John M. Houston, of Kansas. Representatives Melvin J. Mass, of Minnesota; Lawrence E. Imhoff, of Ohio, and Robert L. Mouton, of Louisiana, all enlisted men in the Marine Corps during the World War, were on hand in their wartime uniforms.

Following a bombing exhibition, the association, and 1,500 residents of the Marine post witnessed a series of boxing bouts in the post gymnasium. Between bouts a group of entertainers, under Leon Brusiloff, dedicated various songs to judges in the party.

In the party were Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee; Associate Justices Charles H. Robb and Harold M. Stephens, of the United States Court of Appeals; Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat and Associate Justices Jesse C. Adkins, Joseph W. Cox, Peyton Gordon, James M. Proctor and Daniel W. O'Donoghue, of the District Court; Judges John P. McMahon, Isaac R. Hitt, Walter J. Casey and Edward M. Curran, of Police Court, and Judges George C. Aukam, Robert E. Mattingly and Nathan Cayton, of the Municipal Court.

Also, Assistant Attorneys General Golden W. Bell and Carl McFarlan; Julius C. Martin, director of war risk insurance litigation; United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal; Register of Wills Theodore Cogswell, United States Marshal John B. Colpoys, Charles A. Stewart, clerk of the District Court, and Auditor A. Leftwich Sinclair.

Two Girl Babies Left in Farmyard Baffle Policemen

Clarence, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—The discovery of two unidentified girl babies, alone and crying in a farmyard during a thunderstorm at 4 a. m. baffled State police tonight.

A housewife who heard their faint cries found them lying in water-soaked cardboard boxes, each pinned in blankets and nestled against a milk-filled nursing bottle.

State police who took them to a hospital in Buffalo and began a search for their parents at first believed they were twin sisters. Later today a doctor said they might not be twins.

"They look different," Dr. Maurice Gordon said. He added that except for the possibility that they would develop colds the babies, about two weeks old, were in good condition.

Scores Enlisted As Blood Donors To Reduce Deaths

Augusta, Ga., June 10 (AP).—Enlisted in a projected national campaign to reduce accident and maternity deaths, scores of persons signed up here today to give their blood free to hospital patients in need of quick transfusions.

The volunteers, their blood listed in one of the four types, will be speeded to operating rooms in radio patrol cars when emergencies demand.

Pat Rice, Red Cross chairman, said the arrangement, if successful, would be introduced in chapters throughout the United States.

Spotted Fever Is 'Disturbing,' Public Health Official Says

Dr. Oleson Denies Cause for Local Alarm, but Warns of Ticks.

While not alarming, the prevalence of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in the District and nearby States is great enough to be "disturbing," Dr. Robert Oleson, assistant surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, said yesterday following report of two deaths from the peculiar disease in the area so far this season.

Since the fever became noticeable in the eastern part of the country in 1931, there have been 501 cases of it in Virginia, Maryland and Washington—or almost 100 each summer. Seventy-eight deaths have resulted, the last two reported Wednesday—that of Carl Dorr at Emergency Hospital and that of Eppa Rookwood, of Water Fall, Va., at Alexandria Hospital.

"I would certainly advise everyone to be careful when hiking and camping, although I would not advocate vaccination in this part of the country. There is nothing mysterious about how the fever is caused, and I would just caution against ticks," Dr. Oleson said.

Although caused by the same type of tick, the Eastern variety of the fever is much less virulent than that in the Rocky Mountain regions, where it is a major health problem.

Taking its name from the irritating rash which accompanies it, spotted fever is a disease for which there is no specific remedy.

"It is probably a self-limiting disease. We can only treat symptoms of it," Dr. Oleson said.

For several years the Spence-Parker vaccine has been used extensively in the West and has brought the mortality down to 85 per cent of the cases reported to about 26 per cent.

In an effort to study effects of the malady on the human body, Washington doctors will ask permission to make an autopsy on the body of Dorr, who was connected with the Music Educators Association and who presumably became infected while picking flowers in Prince Georges County, Md., last month. Last night the doctors had not yet gained the consent of Mrs. Dorr, who was in East Orange, N. J.

Clinically, according to the Public Health Service, spotted fever closely resembles typhus fever and is characterized at first by chills, continued fever and severe headache. Within a day or so, red spots appear. The disease develops in from three to ten days after the tick's bite.

Flagg Gives Poster To Aid Fight on U. S. Forest Fires

A reception was given yesterday afternoon at the Raleigh Hotel by the Forestry Service in honor of James Montgomery Flagg, who earlier in the day presented to President Roosevelt a painting entitled "Your Forests—Your Fault—Your Loss." The first free poster the Government has received since the World War, it is to be reproduced and circulated throughout the country as part of the campaign against forest fires.

The painting, which was on display at the reception, depicts Uncle Sam as a forest ranger pointing toward a burning forest. Flagg's familiar conception of Uncle Sam originated in his war cartoon, "I Want You." It was one of nearly 50 posters which Flagg contributed during the war.

Six CCC boys from the Beltsville, Md., camp have been chosen to act as a guard of honor for the painting, in recognition of the Civilian Conservation Corps' work in combating forest fires.

Nazis Jeer Pope's Talk to Pilgrims

Berlin, June 10 (AP).—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff took sarcastic notice today of Pope Pius' talk to German pilgrims in which the pontiff lamented the treatment of Catholics in the Third Reich.

"It has become gradually a regular custom for the holy father, when visited by pilgrims from Germany, to tell them with great emotion what a terrible predicament they are in," Der Angriff said.

"The holy father again has said * * * the predicament of the Catholic church in Germany is deplorable—most deplorable. This time we can only agree with him. What the monastic trials have brought to light as certainly deplorable * * *"

Trials of priests and lay brothers, on immorality charges, to which Der Angriff referred, were resumed in Coblenz, where two brothers were sentenced, one of them to two years and the other to two and one-half.

Masquerades as Man.

Harrogate, Eng., June 10 (AP).—Miss Joan Coning pleaded guilty today in police court to posing as a man and "marrying" Miss Ruth Parker in a fashionable church ceremony. The 21-year-old "bridegroom" was placed on probation for three years.

Odor of Wood Hearing Drives Inquirers to Sweeter Setting

Take it from the persons who have been in attendance, there is a definite odor clinging to the hearing of charges brought against William R. Wood, superintendent of garbage disposal for Washington.

It is the odor that comes from your discarded orange peels and from the spinach Johnny left on his plate. When it is hauled out to Cherry Hill, Va., and turned into soap grease, it is worth $100,000 a year. But down at New Jersey avenue and K street southeast, things are different and the Capitol dome gleaming in the distance doesn't help a bit.

When the board of inquiry began its all-day sessions, the garbage receiving plant was considered a fit and proper setting. But, somehow, the smell gets worse with each succeeding witness. Yesterday, Stanley DeNeale, assistant corporation counsel, heard the thirty-sixth witness—and decided it was time to "do something."

"We hadn't planned to stay all summer, but now the defense has about ten more witnesses and the prosecution wants to present several more in rebuttal. LETS MOVE," said DeNeale.

The hearings will be continued, therefore, at the offices of William A. Xanten, supervisor of city refuse, at 462 Indiana avenue, Room 610, at 9:30 a. m., June 23. "It doesn't smell so bad at police headquarters," Xanten allows.

Charges were brought against Wood by a group of garbage collectors who claimed he influenced them to contribute to a fund raised for his benefit and worked them on his garden at La Plata, Md., without extra pay, and on the city's time.

Especially, they alleged, were they asked to donate to the support of "Aunt Mary"—an aged colored woman who lives just across the street from the receiving plant and who years ago became one of the "pet charities" of the garbage employes.

The eleven defense witnesses yesterday testified that all contributions were voluntary; that "Aunt Mary" had received money from the employes before Wood became superintendent; that they believed she really received the money—although the superintendent sometimes held the collection box—and that they worked in La Plata garden only on their days of leave and because they could earn fresh vegetables in that manner.

In addition to DeNeale and Xanten, J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, is a member of the board of inquiry—which will present its recommendations to the District Commissioner as soon as the testimony is completed. Wood is represented by James McCabe. Prosecuting attorneys, hired by a union of employes, are William H. McGrath and Robert W. McCullough.

Negotiations Are Completed to Bring Steele East for Variety Club's Fight

Fred Coming For Williams Battle Here

Charity Show Is Set for July 20 at Griffith Stadium.

By Bill McCormick.

Negotiations were completed yesterday to bring to Washington the ring's greatest champion—Freddie Steele—in what should prove the Capital's best fight at Griffith Stadium July 20.

Steele, who is undisputed holder of the world middleweight championship, will swap swats with Charles (Hobo) Williams, "the Alexandria Assassin," who is a prime local favorite and undefeated as a middleweight in Washington rings.

The bout will be promoted by the Variety Club, an organization of showmen and those in the show business, and sponsored by The Washington Post.

All profits, and the fight is being promoted on a strictly nonprofit-making basis, will go into the Variety Club's Welfare Fund to establish a summer camp for underprivileged children and their mothers.

One Trip to East.

Steele, who was born and reared in Tacoma, Wash., has been lured from the Pacific Coast only once before. Last year Mike Jacobs, the country's No. 1 promoter, induced Freddie to come East for a highly successful series of bouts in New York.

Only four other champions have ever been seen in action in Washington. In a Washington Post-sponsored bout against Phil Furr last summer, Welterweight Titleholder Barney Ross drew a gate of $15,000. Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, battled Frankie Klick here in 1935 before a crowd that paid $25,000.

Freddie Miller dropped his featherweight championship to Pete Sarron here, and the bout drew $30,000. Other than in those bouts, Washington rings have been destitute of world champions.

Won Four by Knockouts.

Grove immediately corrected a glaring error in Williams' form, an error which gave him lack of balance. Then began the rise to the top here.

After defeating five middleweights—four of them knockouts—Williams took on Russell (Buddy) Scott, considered the best light-heavyweight in the District. They worked to a draw. In a return bout, Scott won the decision, but in Williams' last fight he again held Scott to a draw, although most observers thought the Hobo had won.

Williams knocked out Sonny Stout and Eric Lawson and was matched with Eddie Mader, a ranking heavyweight. He held Mader to a draw, but in a return bout over a longer distance, Mader's weight advantage served him well and he defeated the "Alexandria Assassin."

Tickets for the big bout, which are being handled by Theater Impressario Sidney Lust, will be placed on sale within a few days in ticket offices throughout the city.

Astor Clarke Voted City's Best Bowler

Astor Clarke, kingpin of the city's duckpin bowlers, retained his No. 1 ranking last night when the leading 10 pinspillers were named at the annual Washington City Duckpin Association banquet. Clarke's choice was unanimous and marks the third time he has been honored with the top position.

Bill Krauss, youngest member of a famous bowling family, was awarded the No. 2 ranking by another unanimous vote, while Perce Wolfe was selected as third best and Wayne (Hokie) Smith, fourth.

Browns Win From Nats; Bunch Hits

Huffman Is Star in Rally Which Erases Griffs' Lead in Fourth.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—Benjamin Franklin Huffman, who was a college kid in Virginia six months ago, swatted a two-base hit with the bases full this afternoon, sent three runs clattering across the plate and the unfashionable St. Louis Browns beat the Nats, 6 to 3.

Young Huffman, who was taking one of those $50 courses at a Hot Springs, Ark., baseball school last winter when Rogers Hornsby noted his talents and took him South with the Browns as a batting-practice catcher, leaned heavily against one of Jimmy DeShong's pitches and the Browns had the ball game.

Actually, the Browns owe their victory today to the good president of Bridgewater College, near Harrisonburg, Va., who virtually drove young Benjamin Franklin Huffman into organized baseball. That was last year when Huffman, who was captain-elect of the Bridgewater College team, was forced out of school by a new athletic policy which deprived him of the scholarship that was helping him through college.

Bereft of his free tuition, young Huffman couldn't continue at college, and, taking his meager savings, enrolled in the baseball school where Hornsby discovered him in the name of the Browns.

It was rough on DeShong, though, losing that ball game today. He held the Browns to seven hits, two less than the Nats made against the left-handed Russ Van Atta, and, save for an error by Buddy Myer, DeShong would have been out of the Browns' big 4-run fourth inning without damage.

"Buddy Myer's single and Al Simmons' double gave DeShong a 1-0 lead in the first inning and these were the figures when the

Special Dispatch to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 10.—Three Washingtonians and a Baltimorean today entered the semifinals of the Maryland State Women's Golf tournament at Five Farms.

Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, will meet Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of this city, tomorrow, while Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring, the defending champion will match strokes with Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase.

Another Baltimorean, Mrs. M. Louise Bell, almost made the grade as she rounded the turn 3 up, on Miss Dettweiler today, but she lost 2 and 1. Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg was one of four local golfers to be eliminated today. She lost to Mrs. Meckley, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Morrow conquered Mrs. Charles D. Warfield, 7 and 6, and Miss Houghton defeated Mrs. Alexander Gordon, 3d, by 5 and 4.

Mrs. Schluderberg was 2 down to the defender after the ninth. With a par 4 on the tenth, Mrs. Meckley went 3 up. She stymied herself on the eleventh green, but played the ball to the left and let the wind blow it in to halve it.

The twelfth and thirteenth were shared. The defender's long game was a big advantage on the fourteenth, which she took. She lost the fifteenth when her approach settled under a tree, but halved the sixteenth.

Quarterfinals.

Helen Dettweiler (Congressional) defeated Mrs. M. L. Bell (Hillendale), 2 and 1; Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow (Elkridge) defeated Mrs. Charles Warfield (Green Spring), 7 and 6; Elizabeth Houghton (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. Alexander Gordon 3d (Elkridge), 5 and 4; Mrs. Betty Meckley (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. Theodore E. Schluderberg (Baltimore), 3 and 2.

Consolations.

Second flight—Mrs. A. F. Pierce (Hillendale) defeated Mrs. J. T. Powell (Congressional), 4 and 2; Mrs. W. R. Straus (Suburban) defeated Mrs. G. F. Goetzman (Congressional), 5 and 4.

Mel Almada Gets Post in Centerfield

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—Manager Bucky Harris tonight ended all speculation concerning the Nats' new outfield lineup when he said:

"Mel Almada will be the Washington club's centerfielder."

Thus Harris passed up Jesse Hill and Freddie Sington who were aspiring to the outfield post left vacant by Ben Chapman who went to Boston in today's five-player swap.

Almada, rated an equal with Chapman, defensively, has long been a favorite with Harris despite the Mexican's mediocre batting average. "But I've seen him get those hits when they count—and that counts with me," said Harris.

Tigers Defeat Macks, 4 to 3, In Last Frame

2-Run Rally in Ninth Puts Game on Ice; 2 Passed Runners Score.

Detroit, June 10 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers put on a two-run rally with one out in the ninth inning to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics in the series finale today, 4 to 3.

Billy Rogell singled with the bases filled to provide the margin of victory.

Charley Gehring led the Tiger attack with a home run, a double and a single. Outfielder Wally Moses hit a circuit blow for the Athletics.

State Golf Play Paced By Burnett

Overton, Harry Pitt Are Also Winners, Fuchs Victor.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Medalist Volney Burnett, Washington, and defending Champion Spencer Overton, of Baltimore, paired in opposite halves of the draw, advanced to the round of eight in the Maryland State golf championship at Manor yesterday, each accompanied by a trio of contestants from their respective cities.

Joining Burnett, whose card of 68-72 today was even better than his previous medal-winning total of 143, was Louis Fuchs, Indian Spring; Bobby Brownell, schoolboy champion from Manor, and the veteran host club star, Harry (Moose) Pitt.

The invading Baltimore contingent numbered Harry Parr 3d, Baltimore C. C.; E. G. Barnes, of Hillendale, and Charles Beeler, Mount Pleasant, in addition to Overton.

Again today, and for the fourth consecutive tournament, the field played second fiddle to the blazing pace set by the golfing fireman. In the morning round Volney won over Martin McCarthy on the thirteenth green, needing par for a 67 at that point, and he completed the round, going over on the seventeenth hole, and finishing with a 68.

Greiner Bows.

Otto Greiner, the 18-year-old Baltimorean, recent Maryland Scholastic Baltimore C. C. Invitation winner, bowed to the D. C. star in the afternoon, Volney winning the last hole with a par 4, playing the 18 in 72 strokes, two over par, and the 36 holes even with perfect figures. He holed every putt en route.

Harry Pitt was given a scare by Gillie Young, who played the woods nine in 36 strokes, the lowest nine of his short career, and holding a 1-up lead, but Harry's consistent play ended the match by a 3 and 2 margin. In his second match against Don Miller, Harry won the first three holes after turning all even and closed the issue on the seventeenth with a par three.

Bobby Brownell ended the hopes of a pair of Mound City contestants, defeating David Womer 3 and 2 and was outfumbled by Nathan Kaufman in the afternoon, winning on the last hole.

Fuchs, also a 3 and 2 victor in the morning, over W. R. Parker, nearly blew a 4-up lead in the afternoon, finding himself on the last hole to score a much-needed par for a 1-up victory over Harris Jones. Fuchs was 4 up leaving the woods 9, increased it to 5 and 6 to play, and finally won, although blowing a foot putt on the seventeenth.

Beeler Wins 2.

Buddy Bowie, who was called from the grillroom in the middle of his lunch to play an extra hole against Ken Lafferty in the morning after a disputed hole, bowed to Charles Beeler in the next round. Beeler was easy winner over A. W. Reid, of Sparrows Point in the morning.

Harry Parr 3d snuffed out a fellow Baltimore player, Edgar Lucas, 7 and 6 in the afternoon, after Eddie Bean defaulted in the morning, due to a painful foot injury received after his qualifying round Wednesday night.

Overton struggled to win a 1-up decision over Billy Dettweiler in the morning, after leading by 3 holes at the eighth, and defeated Fred Savage in the second round by winning the seventeenth hole

Rip 3 Shots Off Par To Lead Fine Field

Five Others in Deadlock at 70 in First-Round Play at Oakland Hills; Wiffy Cox Hangs Up 74 Score.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Birmingham, Mich., June 10.—As the climax to an unexpected shellacking administered to old man par today at the very outset of the battle of Oakland Hills, Slim Denny Shute, of Boston, the two-time Nation P. G. A. titleholder, shot his way through the stretch to tie Slammin' Sam Snead, West Virginia freshman pro sensation, for the first-round lead in the U. S. Open golf championship.

Shute, who has held most every major honor in golf at the age of 32 except the National Open crown, bagged a birdie on the home hole with an 11-foot putt to match the 3-under-par 69 that Snead had posted a short time before as the consequence of an eagle 3 on the eighteenth.

Two shot-making products of old West Virginia, where Shute got his early golf experience and where the 24-year-old Snead now represents White Sulphur Springs, thus took over the pacemaking role during a wild opening day scramble that saw 20 of the 166 starters equal or surpass par, a flock of "dark horses" running wild through the bunkered field, and the defending champion, Tony Manero, trailing by seven shots with an erratic 76.

Lead By One Stroke.

Snead and Shute enjoyed only a slender 1-stroke lead over a quintet of rivals in this superheated scoring tussle, but they came through to the top by the hard route.

Making his first start in the National Open with the distinction of being the first freshman favorite in history, Slammin' Sam overcame a bad case of the tournament jitters to finish like a War Admiral. Two over par after four holes and obviously nervous, Snead pulled himself together so successfully that he negotiated the last 14 holes in 5 under par.

A gallery of nearly 2,000 spectators gave Snead a terific ovation as he got home with a drive and No. 4 wood in the 537-yard eighteenth hole and tapped down the 4-foot putt he needed for an eagle three and the 69 that broke a long-standing deadlock in the pacemaking class.

Every Shot Clicking.

Hardly had the tumult subsided before Shute, one of the strong, silent men of golf, same striding to the finish with every shot in his bag clicking. Denny just missed a birdie on the short seventeenth, but got down his putt for the fifth birdie of his round on the last hole. The leaders each went out in 35 and back in 34. Their totals set a new competitive record for Oakland Hills, which has been slightly revised and lengthened since the home pro, Al Watrous, hung up the old low mark of 63.

Snead's dazzling finish under pressure shook off his playing companion, Omaha's Johnny Goodman, 1933 Open champion, who joined two other amateur sensations in a five-way tie for third place at 70.

Goodman led Snead right up to the wire, but his one-stroke margin was wiped out as the Nebraskan took a regulation five on the last green. Goodman made a brilliant recovery from a trap, 100 yards off the home green, and barely missed his try for a birdie from 15 feet.

Long Shots Shoot.

Goodman's sterling comeback shared scoring honors with the exploits of two of the day's long shot surprises, sprung by "Trailer Bill" Holt, the Syracuse (N. Y.) automobile salesman, and 21-year-old Frankie Strafaci, of Brooklyn, public links champion of 1935. These simon-pures joined Big Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, and Frank Walsh, of Chicago, a pair of professional cracks, at the 70 mark with Goodman.

Holt, who wagered $5 on his chances "across the board" at the fantastic pre-tournament odds of 500 to 1, was one of the main reasons why operators of the two betting books at Oakland Hills were taking double portions of aspirin in the clubhouse tonight. Another was Strafaci, who wagered on himself at 200 to 1.

Holt, putting sensationally, bagged five birdies and with a little more luck on the greens might have shaved several strokes from his tally. He rimmed the cup on three holes, besides three-putting the eleventh. Strafaci, likewise in dazzling form, just missed an ace on the short third when his tee shot struck the pin and dropped only an inch from the hole.

Filly Takes Feature Race In Fast Time

Margaret Jones Wins the Mercer Purse at Charles Town.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town Race Track, June 10.—In contrast to the avalanche of long shots and the mountainous $1,278 daily double of yesterday, the program today brought the favorite players into their glory. The Mercer Purse serving feature purposes proved little more than a romp for Margaret Jones, a speedy daughter of Broadway Jones. The 3-year-old filly drew out in the stretch to win by a length and a half over a fast-closing Locomotive which nosed out Miss Troy for the place money.

It was in the role of a $5.20 favorite that Margaret Jones made good. She was ridden by Jockey C. F. Simpson and the boy made no mistakes. While Miss Troy burned the pace-setting oil, Simpson was content to sit with a grip on his charge. As the pair banked for the stretch Simpson asked Margaret Jones for speed and she responded to charge to the front never to be headed thereafter.

Those who tried to make yesterday's fortune daily double repeat were disappointed. Instead, the twin wager produced one of the smallest pay-offs of the meeting, $9.40 to be exact. The combination of Easter Herald and Halloo, both favorites, accounted for the mutuel.

The program, which began in the bright sun and was being conducted under sagging skies as the horses went to the post for the feature, was witnessed by some 4,000 customers.

The program opened with an easy victory by Schley Goree, a $3.80 favorite, which led seven other two-year olds to the wire. Can Bloom was second two and a half lengths behind the winner, owned by G. G. Waugh, jr. Third money went to Two Aces. Schley Goree, ridden by Jockey Herbie Laugh was clocked in 0:51 2-5.

The second straight odds—on favorite of the day made good when Easter Herald, brought the colors of Mrs. C. M. Feltner, across the line four lengths in advance of Running Water, one that headed Turn Up out of second money. The winner, much the best, paid $3.40.

Sammy Palumbo gave Halloo an excellent ride to win the third race and once again it was a victory for the favorite players. The By Pass II filly won by four lengths over Sea Finn with By Surprise third in the field of eight. Halloo paid a $5 mutuel.

Channing, a 4-year-old gelded son of Singlefoot, graduated from the maiden ranks in the fifth race under good handling by Jackey R. Root. Forging to the front in the early stretch, Channing held the favored Canynge safe in the closing stages. Backers of the winner collected a $19 mutuel.

At The Post . . . .

Dear Al.

One of the worst horses on the grounds, as regards records, is one of the most sought after by prospective buyers. The filly, Flag Raising, is owned by Michael Seth, of Baltimore, and, strange as it seems, he has turned down several huge offers, including one reputed to be $5,000 from Samuel D. Riddle. If War Admiral had not turned out to be the sensation of the 3-year-old ranks this year, Flag Raising might have gone on to the glue factory practically unnoticed. However, the close relationship of Flag Raising and War Admiral makes the filly fashionable for breeding purposes. She is a three parts sister to War Admiral. She is out of the same mare, Brush Up, and her sire is American Flag, a son of Man o' War. Big Red, of course, is the father of War Admiral. Mr. Riddle would like to take the daughter of Brush Up to Kentucky for breading purposes. She obviously has little in the way of speed and has won only $250 in her two years of racing. She accounted for that winning purse in a maiden race at Hagerstown. Owner Seth hopes to make a deal whereby he will get a half interest in Flag Raising's foal in the event that she is bred to an outstanding sire.

BILL.

First Race—Tuleyries Lin, conditioned here on the grounds, seems capable of turning back the opposition here. Miss Bones had some trouble last out and showed a fair effort. She may be close. Scout Allow for the show.

Second Race—Wise Money has some class and is in good form. Breaks off the rail and may make every post a winning one. Wise Review is said to be better than rated and ran some good races last winter. Could surprise here. Justa Canter and Petee Lad may need mud.

Third Race—Crushed Ice appears to stand out in this company. Needs only to take care of White Sweets to gain the purse. Dun Lucky for the minor award.

Fourth Race—Lady Dunlin, with Palumbo to do the riding, should take the measure of the ancient Whiskora in this field. Both are at the top of their form, but Whiskora has bad legs. Pageantry, with a change of riders, would be dangerous.

Fifth Race—Tody West came out of retirement to score an easy victory over a field of cheap ones. He indicated that he is back in form and will be at home if the track is off. Sheknows and Wise Sister to fight it out for the place and show.

Sixth Race—Surry ran a fair race last out and will have Machade up.

| Alice Byrd, 110 (James) | | | 2.60 |

Bombastic, Bistrita and Flying Cherokee also ran. Time, 2:00 4-5.

This is a cheap field and anything can win. Holland has some speed and is dangerous. Christine Adee, a winner at Hagerstown, is due some respect.

Seventh Race—Never Idol has shown some improvement of late and has a shift of riders. Canteret is dangerous, but there is some doubt about her going this distance. Dash In for the show.

Best bet—Crushed Ice.

Charts of Yesterday's Charles Town Races—By Walter Haight

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1937.
WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:28½. Off at 2:31. Winner, G. G. Waugh's ch. c. (2), by Ed Crump—Luce. Trained by A. S. Bowman. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:51 2-5.

| Horses | Jockeys | Wgt. | Post | Start | ¼ | Stretch | Finish | Straight |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| SCHLEY GOREE | (Lauch) | 112 | 1 | 4 | 2nk | 1½ | 1½ | $0.90 |
| CAN BLOOM | (Garrett) | 109 | 6 | 1 | 4½ | 3½ | 3½ | 2.80 |
| TWO ACES | (Root) | 112 | 3 | 2 | 1h | 4½ | 3h | 12.10 |
| BRAIN CHILD | (Machado) | 109 | 5 | 5 | 5½ | 6h | 4h | 33.20 |
| ANNEKE | (Palumbo) | 109 | 4 | 6 | 6½ | 5h | 5½ | 9.10 |
| O'TEEBEE | (Munoz) | 112 | 7 | 8 | 7h | 5½ | 6h | 9.80 |
| BROKEN RHYTHM | (Laurin) | 110 | 8 | 3 | 3h | 7h | 7h | 46.80 |
| HAGERSTOWN BOY | (Wisner) | 114½ | 2 | 7 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 66.70 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCHLEY GOREE, $3.80, $2.80, $2.40; CAN BLOOM, $3.00, $2.60; TWO ACES, $4.80.

SCHLEY GOREE, rushed into thick of contention at the break, disposed of TWO ACES to take command, opened a lead and easily held away to end. CAN BLOOM had good speed from start and closed willingly, but was no match for the winner. TWO ACES, hard ridden throughout, showed a good effort. BRAIN CHILD was pinched back at first turn and came between horses to finish willingly. ANNEKE loomed menacingly entering the stretch, but weakened. BROKEN RHYTHM had brief early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:59½. Off at 3:03½. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Feltner's b. g. (7), by Easter Belle—Announciation. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:20 3-5.

| OLD HOP | (Verbus) | 111 | 5 | 8 | 7½ | 8 | 8 | 8 | 114.40 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EASTER HERALD, $340, $2.60, $2.20; RUNNING WATER, $3.00, $2.20; TURN UP, $2.40.

EASTER HERALD, under steadying restraint while close to pace of TURN UP, took command easily when called upon and was put to a drive through the stretch. RUNNING WATER went forwardly, could not seriously threaten, but was up in time to nip TURN UP for place. TURN UP had good speed from start, but was weakening at end. SITTING PRETTY saved ground. The others were not prominent.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:39. Winner, S. A. Stone's b. f. (4), by By Pass II—Cackle. Trained by O. H. Pearce. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21 1-5.

| ROLLING ALONG | (Lauch) | 108½ | 1 | 2 | 4nk | 6½ | 7½ | 8 | 41.50 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HALLOO, $5.00, $2.60, $2.40; SEA FINN, $2.80, $2.40; BY SURPRISE, $2.60.

HALLOO, taken back when in tight quarters going to first turn, went up on the outside of SEA FINN'S pace to take command leaving the backstretch and was drawing out at the end. SEA FINN saved ground while setting the pace and continued gamely, but was no match for the winner. BY SURPRISE went forwardly and showed a good effort. JUSTA TOWN went evenly. POVEL saved ground and had no excuses.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $9.40.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:07. Off at 4:09. Winner, Potts and Lotta's b. f. (3), by Broadway Jones—Princess Margaret. Trained by W. N. Potts. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:17 4-5.

| LITTLE PERCY | (Garrett) | 113 | 9 | 8 | 8 | 9 | 8 | 8 | 34.90 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARGARET JONES, $5.20, $2.80, $2.60; LOCOMOTIVE, $3.40, $2.80; MISS TROY, $4.20.

MARGARET JONES, steadied along within striking distance of the pace of MISS TROY, took command when placed to drive and was drawing out at finish. LOCOMOTIVE closed with a rush on the outside. MISS TROY set a good pace, but weakened suddenly inside the sixteenth pole. TROSTAR closed well, but was not a serious factor. GLOSS was through early. MISS ADELINE broke better than usual, but was bumped at the first turn and failed to rally thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:36½. Winner, Mrs. C. E. Willson's b. g. (4), by Single Foot—Brandon Beth. Trained by C. E. Willson. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANNING, $19.00, $6.20, $3.20; CANYNGE, $2.80, $2.60; MISS TOUCAN, $6.00.

CHANNING, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, moved up sharply approaching the final bend and drew out to be taken in hand at end. CANYNGE had to be jerked up at first turn when bothered, was taken to outside, gained gradually and closed courageously. MISS TOUCAN set the pace under hustling tactics and tired. DARLING PAT showed a good even effort. LILTEEN had speed for three furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:07. Winner, G. G. # Harris Faces Problem Getting Wes Ferrell Into Nat Uniform

This Morning

Neither Nats, Redsox Gained by Trade.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—To be utterly frank about it, the business that was transacted between the Nats and the Red Sox today evokes a laugh. Nobody got hoited much, as they say in our set.

* * * *

Washington gave up a pitcher who didn't win any of his last five starts (Buck Newsom) and an outfielder who was batting only .260 (Ben Chapman) for a pitcher whose record is even worse than Newsom's (Wes Ferrell); a catcher who has a busted throwing hand (Rick Ferrell), and an outfielder who never batted more than .290 in the big leagues (Mel Almada).

POVICH.

* * * *

Thus, it required no great courage for either club to make the deal. There isn't a solid man in the lot.

* * * *

Both Managers Joe Cronin and Bucky Harris are apparently banking on the change of venue to restore to some of the guys in the deal the ambition and skill they once owned. A change of scenery has been known to work wonders with rutted players.

* * * *

If any particular good comes to either club in the deal, then the Nats are likely to be that club, and Rick Ferrell is likely to be the man around whom the advantage will revolve. For the catching end of the Ferrell battery is unquestionably the most valuable player in the lot.

* * * *

There never has been any doubt of his catching skill nor of his hitting talents. The Nats are gambling that his broken hand will heal. If it does, Bucky Harris will have big-league catching protection, and the cost will not have been much.

* * * *

Because Newsom apparently has outlived his usefulness with the Nats and Chapman, with his lowly batting average, has been a sore disappointment. Newsom couldn't hold a 7-0 lead at Detroit the other day and he hasn't won a game since May 15.

* * * *

Rick Ferrell was the hub of the trade as far as Harris was concerned and anything that the Nats receive from Wes Ferrell in the way of pitching victories and Mel Almada in the outfield will be pure gain. It was not Ferrell's lack of will to win that enabled the last three teams he faced to knock him out of the box. It was, apparently, the lack of stuff on the ball.

* * * *

Paradoxically, Ferrell's pitching has suffered since he recaptured this season some of the speed on his fast ball which once was the scourge of the league. When his sore arm forced him to resort to slow, curve-ball pitching three years ago, he became a master of that art and continued as one of the league's leading pitchers.

* * * *

But this year, finding himself able to pitch with some of his old speed, he has not been getting the same results. The guys who used to pop up his slow balls or beat 'em into the ground, are hitting those fast ones on the nose and beating Ferrell.

* * * *

That is an item that Harris has promised to take up with Ferrell. The Nats' manager has said he will ask the temperamental right-hander to revert to his slow curves over which he used to have superb control.

* * * *

"We'll let 'em hit Ferrell's slow stuff," said Harris. "In that big Washington park, they can't knock it anywhere, anyway. A fellow with his control can get away with slow-ball pitching."

* * * *

Harris has no fears over his ability to handle the hot-headed Ferrell whose antics on the mound have earned him a reputation of being a sore-head and once brought down a $1,000 fine by Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox.

* * * *

"I always got along well with Ferrell at Boston," declared Harris, "and there will be no trouble with him in Washington."

* * * *

Harris forgives Ferrell for most of his antics. When he tears his glove to bits out there on the mound, or tosses it high in the air in disgust at somebody's base hit, or stomps it in anger, Harris excuses him on the ground that he is sore only at himself. He never blames it on his teammates, as do other pitchers around the league.

* * * *

He's a good-looking guy, this Wesley Ferrell. There's a movie contract waiting for him in Hollywood whenever he thinks he's through with organized baseball. He's already taken the screen test and his voice has met with approval. He spent six week in Hollywood last winter and his classic facial features and curly locks made a terrific hit.

* * * *

He admits he's a hot-head. He couldn't very well deny it after some of the things he's done. He averages tearing up a half dozen gloves each season and last month in Washington when Al Simmons' home run beat him in the last inning, Ferrell went back to the bench, took off his cap and tore it into a shredded-wheat affair.

* * * *

There was the time he was playing golf with Paul Waner in Florida for two bucks a hole. He had a chance to get even on the last hole, but topped his drive. Whereupon he laid down on the tee and proceeded to bump his head against the iron-tee marker. He was serious, too.

* * * *

Lying there, he got a thought. "Say, listen, Waner," he said. "If I kill myself here, you can get what I owe you out of my hip pocket."

* * * *

Big Pitcher Believed to Dislike Club

Voiced Objections Last Year; Traded Trio Still Unreported.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—The Washington Club gained title today to Wesley Cheek Ferrell, temperamental Boston Red Sox pitcher, in a five-player swap, but getting him into a Washington uniform is a task that still faces Manager Bucky Harris.

Harris tonight painfully recalled Ferrell's aversion to playing with the Washington Club after Owner Clark Griffith telephoned him this morning from Chattanooga that he had traded Outfielder Ben Chapman and Pitcher Buck Newsom to Boston in exchange for Ferrell, Ferrell's catching brother, Rick and Outfielder Mel Almada.

It was last season when, in a huff at being fined $1,000 by Manager Joe Cronin, that Ferrell demanded to be traded. On that occasion, he said, emphatically:

"I want the Red Sox to trade me to any club except Washington or Philadelphia."

The inference was that the big, handsome-looking pitcher did not like the salary scale at Washington and Philadelphia nor his chances to cash in on the World Series spoils with those two teams.

Ferrell, who is supposed to report to the Nats at Chicago tomorrow along with Brother Rick and Almada, had not checked in at the Washington Club's Chicago hotel tonight despite the shortness of the trip from Cleveland, where the Red Sox had been playing.

Both Chapman and Newsom were elated at the trade which sends them to Boston. Newsom was particularly gleeful.

Chapman liked the idea of playing in Fenway Park. "If I can't hit .350 with that short left field fence staring me in the face, I'm a bum," he said. "The trade ought to do both clubs some good."

The Nats were motivated in making the trade chiefly because of the inclusion of Rick Ferrell in the deal, said Harris.

The deal was announced as an even swap, but reports here relate that Griffith wangled some cash out of the Red Sox, as has been his habit. He hit his high mark when he got $250,000 for Joe Cronin in 1934.

Rick Ferrell will not be immediately available for catching duty with the Nats. He is still suffering from a fractured bone in his throwing hand, sustained in Washington a month ago, but according to the Red Sox he will be ready for action "within a few days."

Wes Ferrell, who was a sensation from the moment he entered the big league in 1928, one year before his brother Rick joined the Browns, was originally a fast-ball pitcher. But he abandoned his speed after hurting his arm with Cleveland in 1933.

He was the prize rookie of the 1929 season when he joined Cleveland, winning 21 games and losing only 10 and in only 2 seasons has he failed to win as many as 20 games. Last year he had a record of 20 wins against 15 losses. When he had a record of 14 wins and 5 losses with Boston in 1934, he did not join the club until mid-season, after being a salary hold-out with Cleveland.

Young Almada, who at 22, is playing his fourth season in the big leagues, is the only full-blooded Mexican in major-league baseball. His best season was 1935, when he batted .290, but his hitting deficiences are partly offset by his speed and cleverness in the outfield. He also doubles at first base, being used in that post by the Red Sox early in the season when Jimmy Foxx was incapacitated.

Chapman, particularly, was a favorite in the Capital, but his play in recent weeks caused Harris to revise estimates of the outfielder's value to the club. Chapman, who has been hitting only .260 this season, has also been off in his fielding.

Newsom has a record of three victories against four defeats this season, but has been "in the doghouse" with Harris as a result of his last two performances—in Detroit, where he couldn't win with a 7-to-0 lead, and in Cleveland, where he came in as a relief pitcher and made one throw—a two-base hit, that put the tying run on.

Chapman, who came to the Nats from the Yankees in a midseason swap for Jake Powell last season, justified that trade by hitting .315 in 1936, but Newsom never did live up to the promise he showed when the Nats bought him from the Browns in May, 1935, for $40,000.

Latonia, Ky., June 10.—Mrs. R. J. Murphy's Blessed Again, a daughter of Blue Larkspur, proved that her recent decisive victory was not of the fluke variety when she "spread-eagled" a good band of overnighters in today's headline attraction.

'Bonecrusher' Casey Defeats Davis (Didn't You Expect It?)

By Jack Munhall.

Steve (Creampuff) Casey, Paul Bowser's latest mat importation and world title claimant, outgrowled, outgroaned and finally outlasted Wee Willie Davis, the reformed referee and wrestler, in the feature match of the town's' first outdoor wrestling show at Griffith Stadium last night.

The customary 1,500 rassle addicts saw the homely hero record another victory in a string which now allegedly exceeds 250. Davis, billed as a "villain's villain," forgot that Casey was supposed to win or else forgot his cue and gave the favorite a number of uncomfortable moments in the opening minutes of the "torrid" bout.

The preponderous Virginian drew forth every trick from the proverbial bag but it was the artifice which he extracted from his baggy trunks to which everyone in general, and Mr. Casey in particular, objected. Midway in the match, while the recipient of a series of Casey's choice rights, the Virginian tripped Creampuff, and, while astride his manly chassis, dipped deep in said trunks and emerged with a handful of pepper with which he gently massaged the big blue eyes of our unsuspecting (?) hero. The well-seasoned Casey strenuously protested—he expected salt!

What happened next? You guessed it. The ever-present baldpated fan, who is always situated so he can protect the "mistreated heroes," was seen climbing over the new creations of the fair damsels. They objected on the old lady-before-gentlemen basis. Then, bedlam really tore asunder.

Blue-coated figures blended in an unharmonious confusion with Davis, who emitted a few Tarzanic yells, and Benny Bortnick, of course, by this time was reposing peacefully on the mat, the victim of strong winds caused by said Tarzanic yells. He lay with his trim 36 protruding like a misshapen balloon.

Finally, Davis explained he thought he was playing Baltimore, and it was all in the spirit of clean wrestling. When Willie finished, peace was restored and the match continued.

Amid the wild cheering of the public, who sensed the turning of the worm (which way, they were not choosy), Creampuff bounded from his cove. (Incidentally, his eyes had been cured by the flash of a few greenbacks.)

Soon the wee one's vast bulk was beating a veritable tattoo on the paper-littered mat. Steve tossed him from pillar to post, and, not content with that, dumped him tenderly in the laps of several brave fans.

A lamb tossed to the lions would have had a better chance. The still enraged fans hopped on Davis. And, before the gendarmes could rescue the Virginian, he resembled a badly ground hamburger.

Once again in the ring he was easy for Casey, and Bortnick, who had been revived with a bottle of pop, counted the customary 1—2—3.

(Sports editor's note: Mr. Munhall's thesis is an account of what would have taken place at Griffith Stadium last night had not the wrestling matches been postponed by rain.)

Chevy Chase Play Led by Lewis' 303

Reeve Lewis completed his four rounds in the Chevy Chase Club championship yesterday, scoring a final 74 for a 303 total; C. Ashmead Fuller added an 83 to a previous 164 total for three rounds while Frank Reeside totaled 244 and Beverley Mason totaled 230 for a like number, aided by a 75. Kent Legg returned no card.

Trainers Are Admitted To Olympic Contests

Warsaw, June 10 (AP).—The International Olympic Committee, at its session today, cleared the way for the admission of trainers as competitors in the Olympic games. The I. O. C. inserted a clause in the Olympic rules barring persons engaged in training as a gainful occupation but admitting teachers of sports as part of a general curriculum, such as those in primary schools.

Sutter Beats Senior In Southern Tourney

Nashville, Tenn., June 10 (AP).—Ernest Sutter, national intercollegiate champion, of New Orleans, eliminated Walter Senior, fourth seeded, of San Francisco, today to continue his steady march toward his second successive Southern amateur tennis championship.

Foreign Runners Outstanding In Marathon Run Saturday

The possibility that the United States' marathon crown may pass into an alien's hands was expressed last night by officials of the Evening Star-National A. A. U. marathon championship to be run here tomorrow afternoon.

In the field that will get away from Mount Vernon when the starter's gun barks at 2 o'clock will be four Canadians and a South American who are capable of capturing the title vacated when Bill McMahon, of Worcester, Mass., married and retired from racing.

The Canadians will be headed by Dave Komonen, of the Frood Mine A. A., Sudbury, Canada, who won the national title here in 1933 and '34, and Percy Wyer, Forest Hill A. C., Ontario, the smallest adult athlete in the world, but with a string of titles a block long.

Bartlett Good Too.

Capable support will be offered Komonen by Jim Bartlett, Oshawa, Canada, who led throughout the greater part of the 1935 race and then dropped back, but who still finished well up among the leaders. Another stalwart from Canada is Dick Wilding, of the Gladstone Club, a consistently good performer over long distances.

Jose Rios, of Peru, winner of the marathon in the continental games at Chile and first South American to finish in the Olympics at Berlin, will represent South America and is regarded as one of the favorites in the race. He is en route here by airplane, hopping off from Rio de Janeiro Monday on a 4,000-mile flight to Washington.

Members of the race committee declared last night any one of the five from Canada and South America are capable of taking the title away from the United States stars they will meet in the 26-mile 385-yard race that will end at the Zero Milestone behind the White House about 4:30 p. m.

Officials are inclined to pin the United States' hopes in Mel Porter, Millrose A. A., New York, star who has been among the first three in the race for the past four years, or his teammates, Bill Steiner, Jewish marathon champ of the world, and Fred Ward, who joined with Porter in winning the national team title in 1936.

Gun Club to Shoot.

Over its traps near Benning, the Washington Gun Club will hold its regular weekly shoot Saturday, June 12, with tropnies given on the first 50 and an added 25-target event. The added-target system will be used as a basis for handicapping in the first 50 targets, with the 25-target a distance handicap contest. Added targets on the first 50 will be based on club averages brought up to June 1, thus covering the first five months of this year.

No Need to Choose between CIGARS and KISSES

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath . . .

LIKE TO SMOKE CIGARS? Then try a Vintage White Owl and enjoy real fragrance. Kisses? Don't worry . . . there's no prolonged "hangover" of tobacco breath after smoking this mild cigar.

New scientific discoveries show that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is very low in substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Ask for White Owls the next time you want a fresh, smooth cigar. Be good to yourself—and avoid offending, too!

Phillies Blast Pirate Hurlers for 15 Hits to Win Game by 5 to 4 Score

Cubs Wallop Dodgers by 9-to-3 Count; Rain Keeps Giants Idle.

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP).—The Phillies made it two in a row over the slipping Pittsburgh Pirates today by pounding Bill Swift and Joe Bowman for a 5-to-4 victory.

Late Pittsburgh rallies in the eighth and ninth innings just missed tying the score as the Phillies caught the potential tying run off third base with one out in the ninth inning to save the victory for Bucky Walters.

Walters was pounded freely, but the Bucs were unable to do any hitting with men on the bases. Although they collected 15 hits to 11 for the Phils, they left 16 runners stranded.

Cubs Beat Dodgers By Count of 9 to 3

Brooklyn, June 10 (AP).—Billy Jurges and Augie Galan teed off on Brooklyn pitching today and paced the Chicago Cubs to an easy 9-to-3 victory over the Dodgers.

The win was the Cubs' third straight and boosted them to within half a game of the National League pace set by the New York Giants, who were idle today.

Jurges connected for four singles and drove in three runs. Galan clouted two singles and a homer and also sent three runs across. Between them, they made things easy for Bill Lee, who coasted to his sixth victory of the season, although touched for ten hits by the Brooklyns.

The Cubs began their 16-hit attack off Harry Eisenstat in the second inning, with a 4-run splurge, and followed it up against Freddy Frankhouse and Tom Baker, who were called from the Brooklyn bull pen before the game ended.

With today's win, the Cubs rounded out a record of 11 victories in their last 13 starts, a drive that has carried them up from fourth place.

Reds Even Series, Beat Bees, 6 to 5

Boston, June 10 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds evened their four-game series with the Boston Bees today by coming from behind with a two-run rally in the ninth to register a 6-5 victory over Ira Hutchinson, who, as usual, had to overcome a wobbly start.

The Reds pounded Hutchinson for four runs in the second, but the Bees overhauled them by clicking off three runs against Johnny Vander Meer in the third and single tallies off Al Hollingsworth in the fifth and sixth frames.

Upperville's Famous Horse and Colt Show Opens Today

By Grace Brooks.
A Staff Correspondent.

Upperville, Va., June 10.—The Upperville Colt and Horse Show, believed to be the oldest organization of its kind in the United States, will stage its annual exhibition at Crafton Farm tomorrow and Saturday.

Twelve breeding classes in the hunter improvement division and 18 events for 3-year-olds are listed on the program.

The Upperville show was organized 84 years ago for the purpose of judging colts and its exhibitions are regarded as among the outstanding in the East.

First money for thoroughbred yearling fillies and colts is $100. The Corinthian hunters carries a $50 first prize, with other purses of $20, $10 and $5. The hunt team purse will be $60.

A handsome bowl will be awarded in the half-bred 3-year-old division, to be won three times by the same exhibitor for permanent possession.

The Founders' Cup, replica of the cups given when the show was inaugurated, will be offered to the winner among the Fauquier-Loudoun bred hunters competing in the usually closely contested family saddle hacks division.

Crafton Farm, scene of the show, is located on part of the Dulaney land where the first Upperville colt judging was held.

W. G. Fletcher is president of the show; John C. Butler, vice president; R. S. Reach, secretary-treasurer; Joshua Fletcher, manager, and W. F. Peach, assistant manager.

The show grounds in its setting of century-old oaks, presented an active and busy scene this morning as huge vanloads of fine horses arrived for the annual exhibition. As horses finish their classes tomorrow they will be taken home to make room for the large number scheduled to compete on the closing day, Saturday. With the 600 entries listed and the interesting program of 45 classes in the two-day events, prospects are for the best exhibition ever staged on these famous old grounds.

Leading Stables Here.

Some of the horses that have already arrived are from the stables of Ray S. Shoemaker, Pennsylvania; Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Hunter's Choice, Dress Rehearsal, Merry Prince and Brown Bruin; Dr. L. M. Allen's Clifton Farms' hunters; Miss Wilhelmina S. Kirby's hunters, which came over from Keswick with those of Mrs. Cary Jackson and the entries of Mr. and Mrs. John Ames, of northeastern, Massachusetts.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's dapple gray heavy drafts will be brought over in the morning for the opening classes of the program. Later her hunters will be brought to the grounds. The Peach Brothers' stables nearby will house their string, which will be brought to the grounds for their events. L. C. Leith has Mrs. George P. Plummer's King Dominant in his care, and other nearby stables will van to the grounds the entries for each day.

The program for the first day is as follows: Heavy draft mares and foals, heavy draft yearlings, heavy draft 2-year-olds, heavy draft 3-year-olds, heavy draft 3-year-olds and over, draft stallions, hunter improvement class, yearlings; heavy draft pairs, 4-year-olds and under; remount class for yearlings, hunter improvement class, 2-year-olds; heavy draft pairs, 5-year-olds and over; half-bred mares, half-bred foals, four-horse teams, 3-year-olds, mare or gelding, lightweight, suitable to become hunters; 3-year-olds, mare or gelding, middle and heavyweight, suitable to become hunters; recess; registered half-bred 3-year-olds, mare or gelding; 3-year-old hunters, light-weight hunters, half-bred road hacks, hunters, 4-year-olds and under; the Founders' Cup class, middle and heavyweight green hunters, half-bred hunters, handicap hunters.

The second day's program follows: Thoroughbred brood mares, thoroughbred foals, thoroughbred stallions, pony saddle class, under 12 hands, pony jumping class, under 12 hands, middle and heavyweight hunters, lightweight hunters, thoroughbred yearling fillies, thoroughbred yearling colts, thoroughbred 2-year-olds; recess; pony saddle class, 12 hands and up to 14.2; thoroughbred road hacks, pony jumping class, 12 hands and up to 14.2; touch and out, thoroughbred hunters, family class, ladies' hunters, Corinthian class, hunt teams and championship of the show.

The judges will be James Butler, of New York, and Frank Bowditch, hunters; Humphrey S. Finney, thoroughbred classes; Col. W. W. Whiteside, remount; T. I. Marshall and Harry N. Russell, heavy drafts.

Burnett's 140 Sets Pace in Golf at Manor

with a fine chip shot and halving the dog-leg finishing hole in par.

J. W. Harvey and Billy Shea were both morning extra-hole victims, to Harris Jones and Fred Savage, respectively. F. M. Goodwin, Congressional, was upset by Edgar Lucas, also in the first round.

First Round.

Volney Burnett (Indian Spring) defeated Martin McCarthy (Columbia), 6 and 5; Otto Greiner (Forest Park) defeated J. V. D. Tweedy (Elkridge), 8 and 7; Donald Miller (Baltimore C. C.) defeated Charles Dunning (Baltimore C. C.), 4 and 2; Harry Pitt (Manor) defeated Gillie Young (Congressional), 4 and 3; W. W. Wagner (Baltimore C. C.) defeated R. C. Jewell (Indian Spring), 1 up; E. G. Barnes (Hillendale) defeated J. C. Stonebraker (Fountain Head), 6 and 5; Bobby Brownell (Manor) defeated David Womer (Sparrows Point), 3 and 2; Nathan Kaufman (Suburban) defeated bye.

Louis Fuchs (Indian Spring) defeated W. R. Parker (Forest Park), 3 and 2; Harris Jones (Baltimore C. C.) defeated J. W. Harvey (Manor), 1 up, 20 holes; Buddy Bowie (Indian Spring) defeated Ken Lafferty (Indian Spring), 1 up, 19 holes; Charles Beeler (Mount Pleasant) defeated A. W. Savage (Elkridge) defeated Bill Shea (Congressional), 1 up, 19 holes; Spencer Overton (Rolling Road) defeated Billy Dettweiler (Congressional), 1 up.

Second Round.

Burnett defeated Greiner, 2 up; Pitt defeated Miller, 3 and 1; Barnes defeated Wagner, 2 and 1; Brownell defeated Kaufman, 1 up; Fuchs defeated Jones, 1 up; Beeler defeated Bowie, 2 up; Parr defeated Lucas, 7 and 6; Overton defeated Savage, 1 up.

Hal Surface Wins.

London, June 10 (AP).—Hal Surface, of Kansas City, defeated C. M. Jones, of England, 5—7, 8—6, 9—7, in the quarter-final round of the Beckenham tennis tournament today.

Browns Beat Nats, 6 to 3; Huffman Star

DeShong got the first hitter out, but then he pitched a single to Joe Vosmik. He apparently had gotten rid of the dangerous Beau Bell when Cecil Travis scooped up Bell's grounder and tossed to Myer for a force play on Vosmik, but Myer dropped the wet ball and both runners were safe. Then DeShong walked Knickerbocker, filling the bases.

Then it was that young Mr. Huffman stepped up and rapped that brisk two-bagger between Al Simmons and the foul line and the Browns had a 3-1 lead. They made it 4-1 when Huffman scored on Carey's single that Travis barely knocked down.

At one point, in the fifth, the Nats cut that lead to 4-2, when Jesse Hill doubled and Johnny Stone singled, but when the Browns came up with two runs in the seventh on three hits and Johnny Stone's error the Nats were a beaten ball club.

They weren't getting far with Van Atta and they didn't get far with old Sheriff Blake, who relieved the Browns' southpaw in the ninth when Van Atta hurt his elbow while pitching a curve to Jesse Hill. They pried a ninth-inning run out of Blake on Stone's single to center, but it was as useless as those paper panties they insist on serving with your lamb chops.

DeLand Gets Johnson.

Deland, Fla., June 10 (AP).—The Deland Reds of the Florida State League today announced Walter Johnson, jr., son of the former American League pitcher had joined their hurling staff. Young Johnson was farmed out to Delano by the Cincinnati Reds.

Miss Grimes Is Defeated In Net Play

Bows to Anne Harrison; Latter to Meet Mrs. Robinson for Title.

Baltimore, Md., June 10.—Anne Harrison is the first Baltimorean to reach the finals of the Maryland State Women's tennis tournament since Eleanor Cottman won it in 1931 and the youngest—she is 17—ever to get that far. She will meet Mrs. Stanley Robinson, of Washington, No. 1, in the Middle Atlantic area for the crown on Saturday.

Today's semifinals were the most interesting in the State event in several years. Miss Harrison staged an upset by nipping the championship chances of Frances Grimes, of Morgantown, W. Va., 1—6, 9—7, 6—4. The former was the only Baltimorean seeded No. 6, and the latter was ranked No. 4.

Mrs. Robinson did not get her advancement any too easily either, needing 9—7 and 6—4 matches to eliminate the impulsive style of play by Edith Clark, of Washington. Mrs. Robinson was ranked second and Miss Clark third.

Singles.

Semifinals—Mrs. Stanley Robinson (Washington) defeated Edith Clark (Washington), 9—7, 6—4; Anne Harrison (Baltimore) defeated Frances Grimes (Morgantown, W. V.), 1—6, 9—7, 6—4.

Doubles.

First round—Mrs. Marion Prichard and Anne Ellis, Washington, defeated Mrs. A. W. Morton and Mrs. Robertson Griswold, 6—3, 6—2.

Quarterfinals—Mrs. Robinson and Miss Clark defeated Mrs. A. R. Stewart and Mrs. Charles O'Donovan, 6—0, 6—1; Anne Vernon-Williams and Eleanor Colston, defeated Winifred Bloodgood and Evelyn Bonsal, 7—9, 6—4, 6—4. Mrs. Prichard and Miss Ellis defeated Mrs. Barry Wood and Miss Harrison, 8—6, 6—4. Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sarah Moore, Washington, defeated Mrs. J. E. Howard and Isabel Xanders, 6—0, 6—3.

Consolation, First Round.

Second Round.

Welsh Losing When Rain Halts Play

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 10.—Rain washed out half of the quarter-finals in the Maryland State Men's tennis championship singles today at the Baltimore Country Club, but not before two good matches had been played.

In these Doug Imhoff, of the University of California, provided the major upset of the tournament thus far by eliminating Dick Bennett, State champion of his home State, 6-2, 6-4.

In the other match two students from the University of California met, the result being the elimination of George Tanaka by Paul Newton. This test required three sets, the scores being 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

Western Clinches 2d In School Golf Play

Western High School clinched the runner-up honors in the Dawes Cup golf play by trouncing Central, 6 to 3, yesterday, at Bannockburn. It was the Georgetowners fifth victory in eight matches. Roosevelt won the title early in the week.

Brothers Sell $2,359 Doubles Ticket for $60

Toronto, June 10 (AP).—Baby Yack, Toronto bantamweight boxer, and his brother, David, coupled King Bob and Circulet in the daily double at Long Branch today, but they didn't collect when the combination won and paid $2,359.25 for $2.

After King Bob had won the first race and paid $101.60 for $2 in the mutuels, the brothers lost confidence in the second half of their double and sold their ticket to Basil Wolfe, of Toronto, for $60. When Circulet, a $17.40 for $2 shot, won the second race, Wolfe went to the cashier's window and collected one of the largest daily double payoffs in Canadian turf history.

Yanks Stop White Sox to Regain Lead

New Yorkers Win, 10-3; Break Chicago's Ten-Game Streak.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 10.—The New York Yankee clouters ruined the White Sox winning streak and first-place hopes today by pounding out a 10 to 3 victory before 20,000 fans.

The defeat ended the White Sox run of ten straight victories, longest streak in the big-time this year. It also dropped the Sox back into second place and left the world champions in undisputed possession of the American League lead again.

Although held to seven hits by Vernon Kennedy and Sugar Cain, while the Sox were belting Bump Hadley for nine, the Yanks made every safe blow count.

It was their first victory in four starts and left them with a mediocre record of three wins and five defeats since they left Yankee stadium for their current Western whirl.

For a time it looked as though the Sox would add another victory to their run, for Kennedy pitched hitless ball through the first three innings, while Hadley gave up two runs in the first frame on successive hits by Rip Radcliff, Mike Kreevich, Dixie Walker and Zeke Bonura, and another in the second on singles by Radcliff and Kreevich and Bonura's fly.

In the fourth, however, the Yanks tied it up with a three-run splurge with the bases loaded on two walks and Joe DiMaggio's single. Rookie Tom Henrich stepped up as the day's hero with a double, clearing the sacks.

Post Notes on Fishin' . . . . By Bill Ackerman

There seems to be little doubt that this week-end will bring the catches that have so noticeably been missing for the past two weeks.

The blues have been taking hold far better along the lower Virginia bay shore, and hardheads, from Sharpes Island to Love Point are there for the catching. Capt. Bob Lee's boats, out of Shadyside, have been returning with, from 45 to 60 each, all this past week. Rather on the small side, two pounds the largest, but still good enough to make the trip worthwhile.

Capt. Bob also reports the rockfish shoaled up on the Hilltop, near the entrance of Eastern Bay, in greater numbers than he has seen in many years. These shoals are probably made up of the small fingerlings (now weighing from 1 to 3 pounds) that have been overrunning the bays and rivers of this section during the fall months for the past several years. According to Talbot Denmead, United States Bureau of Fisheries, the direct result of the banning of the fishing of the deep nets. Keep your eye on this section, for it is always worth a try. There is generally plenty of dead shrimp to be had for baiting for hardheads but check on it as you make your reservation.

Thinking that Capt. Walter Cheseldine might be getting some rock at River Springs, a call was made to check on it. Nothing doing. One 4-pound rock caught last Sunday, the sum total for the season. His advice is to wait for a week or two.

The report of blues on Tuesday at Southwest Middles proved to be nothing more than a story, but the hardheads are biting good and weighing up to 4½ pounds. This seems to be the most likely section to produce big catches of big fish over the coming week-end. Take your shrimp with you, as there is none to be had from the boatmen. There are plenty of peeler crabs, but as yet, few weakfish to use them on.

Solomon Island boats have been getting from 40 to 60 hardheads to the trip, but small. That holds for the boats fishing this side as well as those fishing under the eastern shore.

Capt. Harry Woodburn seems encouraged as to the possibilities of good catches of rock in the Patuxent, under Town Point and in the deep water at Point Patience. Several nice catches were made this week of fish that weighed from 3 to 4 pounds.

The Potomac has been so riled this week that it looks like coffee.

A strand of wire, twisting over the hills, will make the West Virginia State-owned game refuges definitely marked-off areas where game animals and birds may live and increase, safe from encroachment of their greatest enemies, the poacher and the out-of-season killer. Some 272 miles of wire will be used for this purpose, that is held to be a distinct step forward in making game refuges really refuges.

Three new refuges in the Monangahela Natoinal Forest, consisting of more than 23,000 acres, turned over to the State by the United States Forest Service, will be used as breeding grounds for wild turkeys, deer and other game.

Six Pennsylvania fishermen, convicted of having 74 undersize brook trout, taken from Tangascootic Creek, were fined $2,965. The same amount used in fishing legally would have supplied far more sport than they could have used in a year.

"The most typical lady angler present"—who will she be, and what will she look like? September 18 and 19 at Solomons will tell. Mrs. John J. Raskob has offered a fine trophy for the lady who will set the style. Just how the judges will decide who this "anglerette" will be is also more than we can tell at this time.

Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, Commandant at Washington, has signified his intention of sending the Coast Guard cutters Apache and Pamlico and it is hoped that President Roosevelt might be induced to attend the 1937 Chesapeake Bay fishing fair.

The gradual decrease of quail in south Jersey has been attributed to several causes: the severe winters of 1934-35 killed off many; foxes are becoming more numerous all over the State due to removal of bounties and several fox-hunting groups; cats are rampant and better roads have made it easy for hunters to get quickly to favorite covers and to hunt over more acres of fields and woods than was ever possible before.

The State fish and game commission is doing its best to stock the country with game of all kinds and, while successful to a marked degree, it is very difficult and expensive to keep pace with the depletion.

Taking into consideration the size of the State, number of hunters and fishermen taking out licenses and the amount of money received from them to do all the things necessary to the propagation, distribution and protection of the game and fish, by comparison with other States, it is plainly to be seen that New Jersey is far ahead of most of them in its efforts to provide better and more sport.

Their experiment in raising quail in captivity on the State farm near Lakewood has passed that stage into an established accomplishment far beyond their fondest hopes. It has really been a phenomenal success—so much so that last year they raised and liberated over 15,000 birds. This spring, many hundred mature pairs were released all over the State.

Former Screen Stars in Army As Film Extras

Hollywood Reporter Finds 69 Old-Timers in the Ranks.

By John Peere Miles.
By the United Press.

Hollywood, June 10.—The trouble with most of the players in Hollywood is that they are unprepared for the rapid successes that come their way. In other businesses ascendancy is obtained through a period of apprenticeship.

But a picture player may, with reasonable luck, attain a salary of $5,000 a week within the period of a year. This sudden affluence weakens most cinematic brains, and perhaps there is some excuse for this. The flattery of opulence, as exhibited here, breaks a neat 50 per cent of the stars in the higher brackets.

It may be accepted that players of 10 and 15 years ago were more susceptible to success than those of today. The old-timers improvidently considered themselves gods and they spent accordingly. This was the era of gay parties and irresponsible acts—a stigma which the motion picture colony has been unable to blot out.

That period was characterized by intemperate and unwise gestures, and not all of them the result of excessive success and flattery. There was the case of Theda Bara to lend its mild tragedy to the parade.

Popular as Garbo.

Miss Bara, who at one time had a popularity as great as Garbo's today, earned hundreds of thousands of dollars as the first "vampire" of the screen.

After years of successful "vampiring," during which she earned over a million dollars, she began to take to heart the recriminations hurled at her by various church and women's societies. "But I'm not that kind of a woman," she protested. "I hate these roles."

Her friends and business associates, alarmed at this attitude, advised her that renunciation of her character as a "vampire" would mean professional ruin. But Miss Bara considered herself important enough to rise above difficulties. She hired a press agent to exploit her love for little children and her fidelity to the church with the result that thereafter none of her fans could believe her sincerity either as a "vampire" or a home-loving person.

A somewhat similar fate befell Clara Bow. This vibrant youth aflame, whom D. W. Griffith wouldn't interview because her abundance of sex shocked him, tired of the lurid life.

Babies and Cooking.

She wanted to fondle babies, and the professional mistake this "hottest" of all cinema creatures made was to be photographed with babies and in the act of cooking.

"She's trying to hide her real character because the censors are after her," said her million fans. And this was the end of Clara Bow professionally and the beginning of a new and better life tending babies and cows on a lonely Nevada ranch.

There are, no doubt, scores of similar examples—all of them caused by overconfidence and an unwise challenging of the luck which raised them from comparative nonentities to prominence. But all failures were not from this one cause. Close to 90 per cent of the old-timers whose names are now difficult to remember were improvident. Dynamited into big salaries overnight, they spent accordingly and saved nothing for the future. Practically every cent they earned went into useless extravagances, parties, art collections and houses.

For that reason 69 actors and actresses who 10 to 15 years ago were making in excess of $1,000 a week, today are pathetically regimented in the army of extras.

Says He 'Bought' Her for $20

Roosevelt Names 2 District Judges

Charles Harwood, 57, of Rye, N. Y., was named to the Canal Zone bench, succeeding J. R. Thomas, whose term expired June 1. For the last year he has been a special assistant to the Attorney General and took part in cases against officers and directors of so-called guaranteed mortgage companies in the New York area. Prior to that he served as a special assistant in the antitrust division of the Department of Justice and participated in the defense of the constitutionality of the Guffey coal act in the Supreme Court. He has been a member of the firm of Jenkins & Harwood, of New York, for 20 years. He is married and has three children.

Louis Le Baron was nominated to be first judge of the First Circuit Court of Hawaii, succeeding Judge Norman D. Godbold, who died on July 16, 1936. He has been serving as senior judge of the District Court at Honolulu, is married and has two children. He is about 35 years of age.

Cork and Bottle Lounge Draws Many Patrons

By Chanticleer

Right here and now, to assure peace for the next few months from incoming telephone calls to this department, we're going to make a statement. It concerns the Cork and Bottle cocktail lounge. The other day in speaking of this rendezvous, mention of the locality of the Cork and Bottle was omitted. Thus, the Cork and Bottle cocktail lounge is located in the Commodore Hotel, which is located at 8 F street northwest.

Speaking of the Cork and Bottle (this makes four mentions), one notes from crowds that frequent this new spot that they always come back for more. This must make Johnnie Melrose, manager, feel good, indeed. Johnnie says, "We're just crowded to the gills."

Out at the Boulevard Farms, our scout reports, the chicken dinners have never been better. Seems like we'll relieve the scout after a spell. Then there's the two comely lasses, whose dancing figures also grace this page, who not only do that swell dance number but rhumba, too. They are Joan Heath and Peggy Owens. The star of the entertainment bill is a local young miss. Miss Howard . . . Virginia Howard. She features an Oriental dance that is executed with a grace that is very enjoyable to watch.

New Spot to Open.

Washington nite-clubbers will have an additional spot to visit very soon. Located on the Richmond highway, about 3 miles the other side of Alexandria, this new roadhouse will be named the Nightingale. It will be of the log-cabin type and will boast of a dance floor of approximately 1,800 square feet. Now, that's some size. Inside the structure a rustic atmosphere will prevail. There will be a floor show every night, including Sundays, and none other than Ralph Garren will conduct the band. Watch for the announcement.

Benzo, the man in dog's clothing, is quite a problem at the Shoreham Terrace. He pops around the place with his kangaroo skin outfit that is bedecked with large white and black spots making him resemble a St. Bernard. The point is he flirts with all the beautiful women in the audience. However, one will have to forgive Bonzo because he is only a dog, but a lucky one at that. Hidden beneath the guise is one Alfred Latell, who has played the role of the dog in Peter Pan, and Alfred believes that the dog has special value as an entertainment medium because of the basic naturalness of his habits and reflexes. Whoops.

Patrons Like Helen.

Southeast Washington's pride and joy in the way of night clubs is none other than Brinkley's, and if you haven't paid Brink's a visit by now, you owe it to yourself to do so. Carl Gunther and his dance band, who moved into this spot recently, have made a host of friends.

Helen Forrest, vocalist with Johnny Shaw's swing band at the Madrillon, is establishing some sort of a long-time record for herself at this favorite Washington night spot. Seems like the Madrillon patrons like Helen and her style of blues singing, because the place is always crowded with pleased customers. Methinks Helen is going places.

You still have a chance to see the "Al Norton Dance Cocktails" at the Lotus. The girls have made a hit with everyone who has chanced to see them, and we urge you not to miss their performance. Then, too, the Lotus has one of Washington's largest and most complete air-conditioning units, and a place to dine and dance is yours for the visit. Brinson and Hart, the girl rhumba team, still are one of the most popular features. These two young ladies do some hot stepping in the approved rhumba fashion. Vincent and Norma, dance stylists, are introducing some different ballroom dances this week.

Mabel Jackson, the former Mary Lou of the networks, is supplying the songs to the patrons of the King Cole room at the Claridge Hotel at this time, and already she has completely captured the fancies of the visitors. Eddie Alexander, who fingers the ivories for Mabel's accompaniment, plays all of your favorite hit tunes. Eddie is the boy, you know, who never took a lesson on the piano in his life. He's one of the "play-by-ear" fellows, and from the way he plays those songs we'd say, "why a piano teacher, anyway?"

Girl Dies of Lockjaw.

Chambersburg, June 9.—Joyce Arlene Cooper, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Cooper, of Chambersburg, died yesterday at the Chambersburg Hospital after a day's illness with lockjaw. She was accidentally struck on the head with a hoe with which a younger brother was playing in the garden.

Wheat Output To Reach Peak For Six Years

By the Associated Press.

Government crop experts predicted yesterday the United States wheat harvest this year would be between 825,000,000 and 850,000,000 bushels—the largest in six years.

Not since 1931, when 941,674,000 bushels were harvested, has there been such a crop.

The estimate was based on June 1 conditions ascertained by the Federal Crop Reporting Board from 40,000 farmers. It was somewhat below earlier predictions of private grain trade experts, who forecast 875,000,000 bushels.

Recent rains and warm weather greatly improved crops and pastures, the Federal board reported. It said conditions were near average, except in the Great Plains area.

"So far as can be judged from the acreage planted and reported condition of the crops now growing," the board said, "the outlook is for about average production of the principal food, feed and forage crops."

Prospects for fruits were reported "slightly better than usual for this season of the year."

The board estimated winter wheat production at 648,597,000 bushels. This compared with last year's crop of 519,013,000 bushels, and the five-year average of 623,220,000 bushels.

Byrd Hits Moving Of Park Families

Richmond, June 10 (AP).—Senator Harry F. Byrd, severe critic of the Resettlement Administration's plan to move approximately 250 families in the Shenandoah Park to model farms, said today a majority of the families may be left in the park with prift to themselves and the Federal Government.

The Senator pointed out that in his criticism of the "too costly" Shenandoah homesteads project, he had not opposed the extension of adequate aid to the park residents.

Flood Projects Delay Opposed

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, of the House Flood Control Committee, expressed belief yesterday that Congress should authorize, at its present session, some of the projects which President Roosevelt wants delayed.

He said there is little chance that the proposal of Army engineers for $800,000,000 of reservoirs and levees in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys will be authorized in its entirety this session.

But some of the most essential of these proposed projects, he contended, should be added to a $36,122,000 program which Secretary Woodring has asked Congress to approve immediately. The outlay urged by Woodring would provide floodwalls and levees for 12 cities on the Ohio, where a disastrous flood occurred last winter.

Vote Officials Sentenced.

Chicago, June 10 (AP).—County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki sentenced five election officials in the 1936 April primary to one year each in the county jail today for contempt of court. The State charged three Republican candidates who polled 723 votes received no votes in the returns.

Two Prisoners Escape From Roxbury Farm

Hagerstown, June 10.—Lloyd Turner, 23, serving three years for assault and battery from Montgomery County, and William Seymour, 30, serving 15 months for larceny, from Talbot County, were still at large today after having escaped last night from the Maryland penal farm at Roxbury, near here.

On the Air Today

A rather interesting bright yellow booklet greeted us at the radio desk yesterday morning. The title read, "Time and Tied, D. C. Penal Institutions, Lorton, Virginia, May, 1937." It was a thin pamphlet, containing no more than 16 pages, counting both sides. This was something new, especially for this department. So we sat down and started reading. The table of contents listed, "An Eye for an Eye: An Impression," "Reporters' Nosegays," "Radio Dial," "Columnists," "Editorial Page," "Wharf, Women's Dept., D. C. Jail," "Play Ball," "Recreational Activities," "Random Ramblin's" and "Exchanges."

Now, we know that this point of departure is a bit varied from the usual procedure, but let's see what the inmate has to say about radio programs. To the boys at Lorton, radio and its benefits are of such tremendous importance that a full page of radio news finds a prominent place in the booklet. They want a local commercial sponsor to feature a certain entertainer, despite the fact that the sponsor could realize little in return for this program from the inmates—at least temporarily. Yet, you feel like something should be done about it. And who do you think is their favorite radio personality? Kate Smith. Here's their word to Kate:

"When you get to Washington, Kate, come up and sing for us some time. But the gossip has it that you don't go for cons. We're shut-ins, too, Kate, and perhaps some of us ain't as bad as we're painted."

They're at it again. Feuding, which has come to be recognized as the ultra in radio activities, has found two perfect participants in Arch McDonald and "Country Lad" Godfrey. They keep insulting one another on their respective programs, and Arch says that the "Sun Dial" program would be soup for him, and Art says that he could do a better description of the Nats' baseball games while standing on his head and eating peanuts than the "Pine Tree" boy ever hopes to do. So, the blow-off is Sunday. On this day the Senators engage the Chicago White Sox in a doubleheader. Godfrey, who has McDonald's permission, will describe the first game, and Arch will handle the second one. Everyone is invited to the WJSV studios, where the games are broadcast, and the audience will be the judge as to who is the better baseball announcer.

Groucho, Harpo and Chico, the three bad Marxes return to the Hollywood Hotel broadcast tonight, WJSV, at 8 o'clock for "A Day at the Races," their new film. With the three brothers will be Weber and Fields, Al Jolson and George Jessel. Weber and Fields, who are celebrating their fiftieth year on the stage, will receive tributes from Jolson and Jessel. Jerry Cooper, Frances Langford, Anne Jamison and Raymond Paige's orchestra complete the show.

Cities Service presents Lucille Manners, soprano, and Robert Simmons, tenor, as soloists tonight over WRC at 7. Miss Manners will sing Massenet's "Manon Gavotte." Foster's "Old Folks at Home" and Herbert's "Land of My Own Romance."

Irene Rich stars in "Brother Jim," WMAL, at 7 p. m. The story concerns Nan Bates, whose brother Jim, a convict, returns from serving his sentence to find Nan engaged to be married to the detective who had sent him to the penitentiary.

The Baron Munchausen—Jack Peral Himself—plays the role of a notorious pirate on his program tonight, WMAL, 9 o'clock. It's a play with the blood-curdling title of "The Plankwalk" or "The Life and Adventures of Captain Kidd as They Should Have Been." Also in the playlet are Cliff (Sharlie) Hall, Tommy Dorsey, Morton Bowe and Edythe Wright.

Other features:

WRC, 9 p. m.—"Anything Can Happen in Hollywood," a playlet on the First Nighter program.

WJSV, 9:45 p. m.—Merwin K. Hart tells of private enterprise's struggle to regain ground lost in the last depression.

Here and There . . . Clyde Lucas, known as "the most versatile band on the air" opens today at the Earle . . . when Kay Kyser comes to town Sunday, his boys will be all slicked-up with brand new white suits . . . says he wants to stay at one of Washington's leading hotels and doesn't want the boys resembling our good farm neighbors . . . Little Jackie Heller has replaced Johnny Johnston as male vocalist on the Club Matinee program Tuesdays and Thursdays . . . Johnston will still be heard on the other days.

Japan Ousts U. S. as Largest Rayon Maker

This Country Had Held First Place as Producer Since 1915.

Japan moved into first place among the ranks of the world's largest rayon producers during 1936, gaining this position for the first time in the history of the rayon industry according to figures compiled by the Textile Economics Bureau and published today.

Through its speeding up of production in 1936, according to the bureau's records, Japan takes from the United States the record of the world's largest producer, a record which this country has held consistently since 1915. Prior to that time, when the rayon industry was in the stage of infancy, Great Britain was the world's largest producer, excluding the experimental years from 1890 to 1912, when France was the chief producer.

1936 World Output a New Record.

World production of rayon aggregated 1,303,165,000 pounds in 1936, an all-time high, and compared with 1,072,795,000 pounds produced in 1935, a gain of 230,370,000 pounds or 22 per cent.

Of the total 1936 world output Japan manufactured 320,850,000 pounds a new high for all time or 25 per cent of the world output, according to the compilation. This compares with an output of 237,945,000 pounds reported for 1935, or 22 per cent of the world total for that year.

The United States in 1936 produced more rayon than in any other year in its history, but, because of Japan's sharp gain, its percentage of world output was less than reported in 1935. United States' rayon production last year aggregated 290,025,000 pounds or 22 per cent of the world total. In 1935 this country produced 25 per cent of the world total for that year with an output of 262,760,000 pounds.

Brokers' Loans Rise $28,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,168,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $28,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Excess Reserves Rise $70,000,000

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reporteed last evening that excess reserves of member banks had increased $70,000,000 during the week ended June 9 to $930,000,000. The increase in these lendable funds followed an $80,000,000 decline last week.

The increase for the week ended June 9, was attributable in part to a $52,000,000 decline in money in circulation to $6,435,000,000. This decline resulted from a back-flow of currency to banks following the Memorial Day holiday. The board left unchanged its holdings of Government securities during the week, these standing at $2,526,000,000.

It was the third successive week in which the board had permitted the Government market to seek its own level.

Gold stocks, standing at $12,118,000,000 on June 9, advanced $91,000,000 during the week. The total gold hoard, largest in the world, was $1,638,000,000 over the same week last year.

General Motors Lists 359,630 Stockholders

New York, June 10 (AP).—In comparison with slightly under 3,000 stockholders at the end of 1917, General Motors Corporation, at the end of the first half of this year, had 359,630 common and preferred stockholders, the company announced today. There were 358,080 stockholders in the first quarter of 1937 and 345,265 in the second quarter of 1936.

Of the 1937 second quarter total, 339,130 were holders of common stock and 20,500 of preferred, compared with 337,620 common holders and 20,460 preferred holders for the first quarter.

Wheat Prices Recede After Early Climb

Reports of Heavy Damage by Black Rust Are Denied.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 10.—Failure to confirm reports current that black rust had attacked spring wheat nullified late today 2½ cents a bushel upturn of the Chicago Wheat Market.

More than four cents jump of Minneapolis wheat values took place, but was also largely wiped out. The black rust reports, which were to the effect that for the first time this season the pest had been discovered in spring crop territory—namely, North Dakota near Grand Forks—brought only denials from responsible authorities.

Wheat futures in Chicago closed unchanged to ⅝ of a cent higher, July, 1.10@1.10¼; September, 1.09¾@1.09⅞; December, 1.11½@1.11⅝; corn, ⅛@3⅛ down; July, 1.13⅛@1.14; September, 1.02⅝@1.02¾; December, 75⅛@76; oats, ⅜ off to ⅛ up; July, 39⅝, and rye varying from ⅛ setback to ⅛ advance, July 86⅝. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 7 cents dearer.

The Market

Stocks Close Irregularly as Trading Volume Continues to Shrink; U. S. Bonds Dip.

New York, June 10.—Financial markets have not yet found an elixir to lift them out of their recumbent position, especially as regards sales volume. Stock turnover was lower around 550,000 shares and trading in bonds was duller than ever. Stock prices were well divided on the upper and lower sides of the line at the close. Government bonds were a shade easier. Commodities were mixed. September wheat rose ⅝ of a cent to 109⅛ cents a bushel.

Strike news was as bearish as ever, even though the C. I. O. decided to call off a power strike in Michigan, possibly on the idea that some day, somewhere, some policeman or national guardsman might shoot, if driven into too tight a corner. Anyhow, the strikes at steel mills continued, and the net change of strikes and settlements in motor and other industries was slight. Strikes have been so numerous that they finally are having some effect in taking the edge off business recovery, but so far the principal damage has been intangible but none the less important.

Anxiety.

Affairs are rapidly reaching the stage at which a more determined test of strength on the issue of where control of industry is going to lie will be had. The mere prospect of such a fight, and the danger that, because of Government support of violence, the outcome will be unfavorable to industry and capital, is creating an atmosphere of discouragement among businessmen. If that long continues the effects will appear in reduced production, lower employment, smaller profits and a bear market in stocks, bonds and commodities, in spite of all the inflammable material of inflation lying about.

If the tension lifts on labor, the markets before long will feel the stimulating effect of inflation as induced by a Government deficit and excessive ease in money. Outside strikes and the foreign developments, today's contribution to the scenic splendors of the market were a lower Pennsylvania Railroad dividend and reduction in shipments as reported for May by the United States Steel Corporation. Steel's shipments, while below those for April, were the highest for any May in several years, and even the Pennsylvania dividend was regarded in the nature of a warning.

Abroad the Spanish war news drifted, but signs again were seen of the approach to a new crisis in French politics and finance. The franc continued to slide and probably would have done worse except for the suport of the British equalization fund and, in all probability, a little help from our side as well. Dollars rose against sterling and Francs.

It Happens There.

In some respects France has prove to be a more conservative country than the United States. At least the French held to the gold standard until the bitter end—too long, many believe. Now that a change to a new deal has been made, progress has been more rapid than in this country, and the Blum administration is more openly Socialist than is our Administration. France has copied our floating gold standard, our budget deficits (but on a much more modest scale, as becomes a smaller and poorer country), and has gone a short step or two ahead of us with shorter hours for workers. Notwithstanding the experience of France, many persons on this side seem to think there will be no parallel between the course of prices in both countries, the value of the currencies and the market for Government obligations. Frenchmen are being pinched by high living costs, their currency is in a rather precarious position, and 4 per cent government bonds are selling below 60. Capital which had flown the franc devaluation and the socialistic measures refuses to be reconciled and go home. Both countries are traveling the same road and at about the same pace; the Socialistic measures refuses to be one of comparative strength.

First to Report.

As usual the Alton Railroad was the first to report its monthly revenues. Net railway operating deficit was smaller than for the corresponding month of a year ago, but the difference was not so great as it should have been with the higher revenues. Since freight carloadings in May were 16 per cent above last year and 32 per cent greater than for April, the May reports of Class I railroads are expected to disclose gains in profit, but, as was the case in April, the higher maintenance and operating costs are likely to show that a smaller proportion of gross revenues was converted into operating income.

Dissatisfied.

A holder of Motor Products is dissatisfied with the terms of merger voted by directors of that company for joining Briggs. Probably the opportunity will be taken by protective committee formers to oppose the plan. The objection is based on the assertion that "the equity for Motor Product shares is larger than that for Briggs, and earning power also higher." It is becoming increasingly difficult to consummate mergers, reorganizations, or even recapitalizations of corporations these days.

Interest Rates.

An all round hardening of interest rates took place in April, as shown by the Federal Reserve Board's compilation of average rates charged customers by banks in principal cities. Last year, and in most recent years, interest charges have sagged a little in April, after rising in March. This year the course was reversed, and the reduction in excess reserves, as the higher requirements went into effect on May 1, had its effect. In New York City the rise was from 2.50 to 2.53 per cent, bringing the rate to only a point lower than that of a year ago. In other Northern and Eastern cities the climb was from 3.34 to 3.36 per cent, and in Southern and Western cities the advance lifted the average rate from 4.15 to 4.21 per cent.

Puts and Calls.

The stock market is too dull to stimulate much business for the option dealers, but a little strip teasing has been done. Fractions and points have been taken from the price of puts and put on the call list. In virtually all cases now calls are quoted further from the market than puts. Electric Bond, Crown Zellerbach and Columbia Gas have puts quoted at the market, and the latter also has that price for calls. Steel is 5½ points down and 7 up. Central is 1 and 2½. Chrysler is 5½ and 8. General Motors is 1 and 3. It doesn't cost much, in other words, to protect a long position with a put, and dealers apparently do not expect much of a setback.

Copper 47% Higher Than Price Year Ago

THE PARKER CORP GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., June 10.—Significant is the fact that the United States Navy recently purchased over 1,000,000 pounds of copper at slightly more than 14 cents a pound. Copper was 17 cents when the Administration proclaimed it too high. Copper is nearly three times what it was in 1932 and up 47 per cent from a year ago.

Local Banker Talks to A. I. B. At Convention

Banking a Business of Human Relations, Says I. J. Roberts.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Addressing the annual convention of the American Institute of Banking, at St. Paul, Minn., this week, on "Personnel Training for Better Public Relations," I. J. Roberts, an assistant cashier of Riggs National Bank, said that banking is essentially a business of human relationships. He declared the measure of a bank's success is determined by the extent to which it recognizes its obligations to society, and the sincerity and intelligence of its efforts to merit the good will of the public.

Mr. Roberts, a member of Washington Chapter's delegation to the convention, emphasized the word "merit" because, as he explained, public confidence cannot be purchased, but must be earned, and it cannot be attained rapidly or by artificial methods.

In recognizing these facts, he asserted, banks have been behind public utility and merchandising organizations, which for many years have stressed the value of developing scientific methods for handling their public relations problems.

He reminded the meeting that the bitter experience growing out of the depression aroused the banking profession to the necessity of dispelling public misunderstanding of the proper functions of banks and of their methods and policies. In outlining the development of a practical course of procedure he described in detail methods employed by his institution in the past two or three years in creating among the personnel a sense of the importance of the problem.

He also gave an outline of the ways by which a program in public relations has already been brought about by the bank, saying that meetings of its entire staff to hear talks by bank officers and other experts have proved so beneficial that the present plan will be made a permanent one.

Seltzer and Blaiklock Honored.

Word received from convention headquarters yesterday announced appointment of Paul J. Seltzer, American Security & Trust Co., to a place on the institute's national membership committee and Edward M. Blaiklock, Washington Loan & Trust Co., to its national publicity committee. Mr. Seltzer is immediate past president of the local chapter, and Mr. Blaiklock has been in charge of its publicity.

Crowley to Speak.

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, will address the joint session of the Virginia and West Virginia Bankers Associations opening at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 26. Approximately 800 members of the two State groups are expected in attendance at this convention. Mr. Crowley will speak on "Banking Problems."

Gov. Homer A. Holt of West Virginia will welcome the delegates and Gov. George C. Peery, of Virginia will respond for them. E. C. Otey, president of the West Virginia Bankers Association, will preside at the opening session and Philip A. Benson, second vice president of the American Bankers Association, will discuss "The Human Side of Banking."

President Milton R. Morgan of the Virginia Bankers Association, will preside at the second day's session at which a customers' relations clinic will be held. An address on "Loans" will be made by A. G. Brown, president of the Ohio Citizens Trust Co., of Toledo, and one on "Bond Investments in a Changing World," by William R. Biggs, vice president of the Bank of New York & Trust Co., New York.

"Profitable Bank Management Policies," will be the subject of an address by E. S. Woolsey, vice president of the First National Bank of Louisville, on the third day of the convention.

Lincoln Service Branches.

Charles Delmar, president of Lincoln Service Corporation, has announced that it has recently opened subsidiary branches at Newport News, Va., and Martinsburg, W. Va. The corporation now has 12 companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Mr. Delmar reported that for the first five months of 1937, business has shown an increase of 33 1-3 per cent in volume over the corresponding period last year.

"Dollars and Sense."

The latest issue of Dollars and Sense, official publication of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, is a most interesting one. Edited by A. E. Henze, of W. B. Hibbs & Co., George Dagenais, Riggs National Bank, and Kenneth Birgfeld, American Security & Trust Co., and distributed by Eldridge Kendrick, it is replete with accounts of chapter activities for the past three months. The issue contains sketches of the newly-elected officers of the chapter and a message from the new president, William H. Laughlin of Washington Loan & Trust Co.

The Paper Industry.

A comprehensive review of the paper industry entitled, "The Recovery in Paper," has been issued by Shields & Co., 44 Wall street, New York, members of the New York and other leading stock exchanges. Physical aspects of papermaking from raw material to finished product, including pulp, chemicals, power, water, labor and equipment are explained in detail. Demand and supply, new developments in the South, prices and the future of the industry are fully and authoritatively covered. The operations and finanial status of 16 leading manufacturers are included.

A unique feature of the 54-page book is the fact that it is printed on six varieties of paper manufactured from different pulps, permitting ready comparisons of the finished products.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, June 10 (AP).—U. S. Dept of Agri.).—Grades Ohio fleece wools received some demand today at firm to slightly advanced prices. A number of houses have had call for combing three-eighths blood at 43@44 cents in the grease and for clothing lengths of similar wools at 39@40 cents. Graded combing quarter-blood Ohio and like wools were sold at 41@42 cents in the grease. Several houses advanced asking prices to 43@44 cents. A limited amount of half-blood Ohio wool was sold at 42@43 cents in the grease for staple combing lengths and 38@39 cents for clothing lengths.

$1.50 Special Voted By Lehman Corp.

New York, June 10 (AP).—Directors of Lehman Corporation, an investing firm, today declared a special dividend of $1.50 and a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, both payable June 23 to holders of record June 14. On May 28 the shares of the corporation were split 3-for-1. The last previous payment prior to the split-up was a quarterly dividend of 75 cents and a special dividend of $4.25 on April 7, 1937.

American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. announced today an interim dividend of 75 cents on common stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 21. A dividend of 50 cents was paid on March 31. Company specializes in railway equipment and has plants throughout the country.

Directors of American Potash & Chemical Corporation today declared a dividend of $1.50, payable June 22 to holders of record June 15. On December 18, 1936, $1.25 was paid, while a year ago $1 was paid.

Penn R. R. Votes 50 Cents.

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad today declared a dividend of 50 cents a share payable July 22 to stockholders of record June 21. The company stated the dividend would amount to $6,583,848 and would be paid out of the profits of the company.

Foreign Buying Rallies Cotton

New York, June 10 (AP).—Foreign buying in cotton today caused early rallies, but later fluctuations were irregular. October reacted from 12.18 to 12.06 and closed at 12.10 with final prices 4 to 10 points higher.

Foreign Markets.

London, June 10 (AP).—Stock prices were generally lower in today's quiet stock market. The oil group and German bonds were heavy and home rails which opened firm also reacted with the general list. Transatlantic securities remained quiet and steady, while easiness prevailed in the gold mining shares, especially Kaffirs and Rhodesian issues. Gilt-edged shares and other European bonds sold lower.

Paris.—Industrial securities closed generally firm in a mixed market today. Rentes finished unchanged to 50 centimes up and Suez Canal gained 250 francs. Royal Dutch lost 13 francs on the day and Bank of France issues declined 163 francs.

Liverpool.—Private reports of rains in parts of Canada and improved European crop reports were responsible for a further setback in wheat futures, which closed 1¼d to 1¾d lower. Cotton futures steadied at the close and finished unchanged to 3 points lower. Short covering was influenced by reports of rain in Oklahoma, after the early market had sold off on hedging and liquidation.

Bank Clearings Decline 1.8% From Year Ago

New York City Leads With a Decrease of 8.8 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 10.—Influenced to some degree by the drop in trading volume on the securities and commodity exchanges, bank clearings for the latest period again fell below those of a year ago and the gain over the preceding five-day week was small.

Total bank clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States for the week ended Wednesday, June 9, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., amounted to $5,552,249,000, as compared with $5,652,302,000 for the corresponding week of last year, or a decrease of 1.8 per cent.

New York City bank clearings aggregated $3,464,132,000, against $3,799,813,000 in the same week of 1936, a decline of 8.8 per cent. The outside centers furnished a total of $2,088,117,000, which contrasted with $1,851,489,000 last year, giving an increase of 12.8 per cent.

Bank clearings this week were larger by $275,953,000 than the aggregate for the preceding week. Between the two similar weeks of 1936, the gain was only $100,363,000.

SEC Tabulates Stock Dealing Of 'Little Man'

Optimistic This Week.

On Monday these odd-lot transactions comprised 4,632 customers' orders to buy 121,958 shares of stocks and 4,111 orders to sell 100,923 shares. Thus on that day the small investors and speculators bought more than they sold, indicating a belief on their part that the market would go up. The total shares sold on the New York Stock Exchange on Monday was 584,780 shares.

On Tuesday participation of the "little fellows" in the market was less than on the day previous, although the total of shares traded on the New York Exchange was larger. On that day odd-lot transactions comprised 4.167 customers' orders to buy 106.044 shares and 4,314 orders to sell 103,440 shares. The total volume of trading on the New York Exchange on that day was 597,990 shares.

Thus, although the number of selling orders was larger than the orders to buy, the volume of shares bought was greater than the total sold. Incidentally, on each of the two days brokers collected more than $40,000 daily from small investors in commissions, since a minimum charge of $5 is made on each odd-lot order.

Available Daily.

The SEC proposes to make these figures available daily approximately 48 hours after the close of each day's trading. The figures will be published in a mimeographed release, however, only weekly.

The purpose of the survey is not only to make available figures regarding the participation in the stock markets of the "little fellows," but also to give the public generally a picture of what is transpiring daily on the New York Exchange. The SEC already makes public weekly the volume of transactions of the specialists or professional traders.

Such information has a value to those who seek to appraise price trends on the exchange. It also is valuable for those charged with the duty of maintaining stability and equilibrium in the financial markets. In the past, statements of the extent of small-investor participation have been based in large part on guesswork.

Tabulation of these figures is an added barometer to warn of approaching financial storms or continued tranquillity in the markets. Along with such other barometers as price trends, professional trading, brokers' loans and the volume of foreign investments, this new tabulation increases the SEC check over the security markets and enables corrective and preventive steps to be taken promptly whenever the situation appears to be getting out of hand.

3 Doctors Called For Queen Marie, Ileana Discloses

Vienna, June 10 (AP).—Archduchess Ileana of Austria disclosed tonight three specialists had been summoned to examine her mother, Dowager Queen Marie of Ruamia, in her summer residence at Sinaia, Rumania.

The 61-year-old queen was seriously ill in March when an attacle of grip was followed by gastric hemorrhages. Physicians announced May 28 she needed a long rest to recover from a deficiency in her blood.

"Mother's condition is believed not to be serious," the archduchess said. "The royal family, however, was worried because the queen mother was recuperating too slowly, so we called the best European specialists to re-examine her."

Among the three physicians called were Prof. Hans Eppinger, of Vienna, and Prof. Aldo Castellani, noted Italian specialist in tropical diseases.

Roosevelt Court Bill Nears Senate Debate

By the Associated Press.

The Roosevelt court bill neared the Senate floor yesterday after more than four months of controversy when a majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee approved the draft of its report recommending rejection of the legislation.

After three hours' study of the draft prepared by Senators King (Democdat), Utah, McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, and O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, the committee majority announced it would be filed in the Senate Monday. This will make it possible thereafter for a single Senator to move to take it up for discussion.

Steel Pickets Routed by Gas In Michigan

200 Police Smash Way Into Plant; Women Join Rioting.

Attacked from the front and rear, the 250 pickets—20 of whom were women—were dispersed in 15 minutes. At least eight persons were treated in hospitals for minor injuries.

The surprise attack from the rear, by 75 special police hiding around a highway curve, left the pickets only two lanes of retreat. To the south lay the River Raisin. To the north lay Detroit avenue, and down that highway they fled, hurling bricks at their pursuers as they fled.

Picket's Shelter Burned.

A few were trapped in the swampy land between Elm avenue and the river. They were taken into custody. Some of them bled from cuts on their faces as they were marched back past the picket post.

The special police set fire to the canvas and wood lean-to the pickets had used as a shelter and commissary during the 12 days they guarded the highway leading to the plant.

Seven automobiles left behind the fleeing pickets were dumped into the river, which flows beside the picket post. Five other automobiles were overturned. Uniformed police stopped men wearing the white armbands of the special police from dumping an eighth motor car into the river.

Gas Barrage Fired.

The picket line actually stood its ground only during the first two minutes of fighting, which followed two hours of tense but futile peace maneuvers.

During those two hours, the pickets and special police stood or lounged face to face, never more than 150 yards apart. Fred Mayberry, a spokesman for the pickets, and Police Chief Jesse Fisher talked repeatedly by long distance telephone with Gov. Murphy at Lansing.

Later in the negotiations, Mayberry acceded to the Governor's appeal that the pickets permit the non-strikers to pass unmolested. The pickets, however, greeted the suggestion with cries of "Over our dead bodies!" and Chief Fisher waved his men forward.

The advance started at 6:07 (Eastern standard time).

Special policemen armed with gas guns laid down a barrage of tear gas. They were followed by a dozen vigilantes who hurled bombs releasing nauseating gas.

At the same time the 75 men composing the hidden police force advanced from the rear, also hurling gas bombs.

The strikers, however, had their own strategy.

As the special police approached the deserted picket line, 40 strike sympathizers who had stood undetected in the crowd of spectators opened fire with gas bombs in an unexpected flank attack. The advance was halted until the officers returned the fire. Not only the harassers, but scores of spectators, were routed by the gas.

The advancing police removed ropes, benches an overturned scow and automobiles the pickets had used as barricade and the line of automobiles bearing the non-striking workmen rolled unmolested toward the steel plant, a mile away.

Mayberry, who had failed to persuade the pickets to permit peaceful passage of the nonstrikers, was taken into protective custody by uniformed police. S. J. Sloan, secretary of the C. I. O. union local, and his wife also were taken into custody. Mrs. Sloan said she was struck on the arm with a club.

The special policemen, marching eight abreast, reached the intersection of Detroit and Elm avenues—the scene of hostilities—shortly before 4 p. m. They were halted 200 yards from the picket line—over which flew an American flag, to await word from Lansing, where Gov. Murphy had been in conference since noon with representatives of the strikers, the nonstrikers, Harry H. Holloway, vice president of the company, and Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs.

Conference Breaks Down.

Word came from Lansing that the conference had broken up when Holloway rejected the Governor's proposal that the opening of the plant be deferred until Monday.

There was further delay, however, while Andy Rabcak, strike captain, responding to a telegram from the Governor, called him by telephone.

Then a telephone line was opened between the Governor's office and the residence nearest the picket line. Chief Fisher, Mayberry and Sheriff Joseph Bairley talked in turn with the Governor.

Mayberry finally agreed to recommend peaceful passage for the nonstrikers, provided Chief Fisher would withdraw the special police, agree to the arrest and prosecution of 15 men who beat and drove a C. I. O. organizer from Monroe today, and guarantee protection to the strikers for the duration of the labor dispute.

Neither side, however, was in a mood for compromise and the advance was ordered.

Tonight, police said they were guarding highways into the city, on the alert for any evidence that C. I. O. reinforcements were moving in.

Tension which has increased steadily since strikers closed the Newton plant at midnight May 28 flared into violence shortly before noon, when a group of men seized a colored organizer for the C. I. O., dragged him from an automobile and forced him to walk a mile out of the city.

The organizer was Leonidus McDonald, formerly of Hammond, Ind. His face was bleeding from several cuts when four other men in an automobile picked him up and drove away.

McDonald, who came to Monroe a month ago from Ecorse, Mich., where there are large steel plants, was seized on Monroe's principal street. He was dragged for a block before he began his involuntary march from the city. His captors warned him not to return.

Battle lines for the clash began to form even before the plant was closed when the Steel Workers Association of Monroe was organized in opposition to the C. I. O. Ivor Powell, president of that association, was the leader in today's back-to-work movement.

Sentiment for forcible reopening of the plant, in the event the pickets should resist, crystallized this week when Mayor Knaggs announced a referendum among the 1,322 workers resulted in a vote of 782 to 32 for returning to work.

Mayor Knaggs appealed to all able-bodied citizens with previous military service to volunteer for special police duty. Today the volunteers were armed with riot clubs, which are twice as long as police night sticks and much heavier.

Ohio Strikers Gassed.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 10 (AP).—Cries of violence and pleas for caution mingled along the picket lines of the Great Lakes steel strike tonight on the eve of a peace conference called by Ohio's Gov. Martin L. Davey.

In Cleveland, where the Republic Steel Corporation has a food base for its foodflying operations into plants at Warren and Niles, Ohio, additional police were ordered to the air field as Mayor Harold H. Burton cancelled the field's flying permit effective tomorrow night.

Samuel Handelman, C. I. O. attorney, asked that the permit be revoked. He declared continued flying operations were a menace to residents in the neighborhood. Company attorneys said all regulations were being observed.

A few hours earlier Youngstown police and sheriff's deputies swung their night sticks and released tear gas in a scramble of several hundred strikers and sympathizers aroused by the entrance of a food truck into a Republic plant. Fourteen strikers were gassed, a spectator was wounded by a tear gas shell and two policemen received head injuries.

The pickets claimed and police denied that a police car "escorted" the food truck to the plant. The melee developed after the strikers placed a car across the road and police tried to remove it.

Officials of Republic and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. agreed to send representatives to the Governor's conference tomorrow to meet with Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, and John Owens, Ohio strike leader. In calling the parley Gov. Davey said "the present developments and proposed actions by both sides are laden with grave responsibilities, with the ominous chance of rioting, bloodshed and loss of life."

Harry Grimm, of Cleveland, chairman of the central council of Republic employes, in a message to Gov. Davey, asked that members of the council be permitted to attend his steel strike peace conference tomorrow "so that they can give you first-hand information relative to the present situation and the attitude of Republic employes relative to the strike called by the C. I. O."

Martin Andrews, president of the Youngstown Truck Drivers Union, No. 377, disclosed his union had voted to support a general strike in the city "if deputy sheriffs use or attempt to use war materials in the steel strike."

Andrews said the strike would not be a sympathy effort, but "a strike to prevent bloodshed here in Youngstown." The Truck Drivers Union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

C. I. O. Wins Steel.

Pittsburgh, June 10 (AP).—The Steel Workers Organizing Committee won an overwhelming 91 per cent vote today from nearly 2,000 workers in the Allenport plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Co.

The men balloted on whether they wanted the committee, affiliate of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, to represent them exclusively in negotiations with the company.

Of 1,934 ballots cast, 1,751 were "yes," and 155 "no."

Rare Strike Called.

Senator Lewis Takes Plea for Federalized Aid to Doctors.

Government in taking care of citizens.

It would be absurd to resist, he asserted. Nothing, he said, is escaping some form of "encroachment" on previously established ideas.

The term "patient," he declared, is the doctor's creation. The new view is that the doctor is caring for a "citizen," with a voice in government.

Cites New Trend.

Senator Lewis repeatedly appealed to his medical audience to take charge of this new trend, and to keep politics out of medical care, choice of physicians by patients, payment for medical services and out of administration of these services.

The Senator's appearance today was looked on as a speedy reply of the Federal Government to a new policy adopted yesterday by the house of delegates of the American Medical Association.

The House turned down New York State's plea that those too poor to pay for medical care be aided by State funds. It substituted a proviso that it would consider all medical questions on "direct request."

These two words were looked on by the doctors as an important change in attitude toward State and Federal payment of medical costs.

The stenotype text of Senator Lewis' talk was given out after the meeting.

"You gentlemen of the profession hesitated to touch this subject," he said in part. "There was within you a resentment against that thing called Government assuming to dominate you.

Patient Demands Voice.

"I beseech you to pause and realize there is nothing whatever that the mind can conceive that is not now undergoing some form of encroachment.

"Doctors, the question for you is not whether you like, or whether you don't. The question for you is what is to be done about it.

"I want you to recognize that I am one of those who recall that all your past has been that of the doctor and his patient, and that won't do. The patient steps up and says nowadays, 'I have a voice unto myself. I am the subject of this treatment, and I am either to be the beneficiary or the victim of your procedure.'"

After Senator Lewis' speech, the delegates referred the President's message to the board of trustees of the American Medical Association. It was indicated that a prompt reply would be made.

The delegates elected Alvin Abell, Louisville, Ky., surgeon, as president-elect to take office next year. They selected San Francisco for next year's meeting and adjourned.

In a biting denouncement today the Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guilds termed the action of the American Medical Association in recognizing birth control as "paganistic."

The association in a report of a special committee had declared the use of birth control devices to be proper medical procedure which should be employed as needed for the protection and care of the health of patients.

Hugh L. Kerwin Dies; Director Of Conciliation

First and Only Man to Head Mediation in Labor Department.

Hugh L. Kerwin, 64, director of United States Conciliation Service, Department of Labor, died suddenly at his home, 632 A street southeast, last night of a heart attack. He had been ill several days previous to the final attack, which came on his forty-first wedding anniversary.

Twenty-four years as a one-man mediator in labor problems had earned him Nation-wide reputation as a Capital labor referee. Serving under Republican and Democratic administrations alike, he was the first and only director of conciliation in the history of the Labor Department.

Active in the settlement of strikes and labor disputes up to the time of his death, he had talked on the phone to one of his field directors about a strike in the Midwest just ten minutes before his death.

He and Mrs. Kerwin, the former Angie Dickinson, of Middlebury, Pa., were married June 10, 1896. They were the parents of two sons and one daughter.

Worked His Way.

Born in Blossburg, Pennsylvania, February 18, 1873, Mr. Kerwin was educated in the local high school and attended business college while working at various times in the coal mines, a glass factory and a shoe shop. He was married at the age of 23, and served four years as auditor of Tioga County.

As a newspaper man he gained experience when he was hired as country correspondent for a Philadelphia paper. He was a bank clerk in his home town before coming to Washington in 1911.

He came to this city as secretary to William B. Wilson, Representative of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania District, and when "Uncle Billy" became chairman of the Committee on Labor in the Sixty-second Congress he made his first step toward becoming a "career" man.

Kerwin is given credit for having assisted in the drafting of many important labor bills during that session of Congress. Just before Woodrow Wilson's inauguration in 1913 President Taft signed the law establishing the Labor Department and his successor appointed Kerwin's boss and boyhood hero as the first Secretary of Labor.

Appointed in 1919.

He remained in the same capacity as Wilson's secretary, gathering experience in the uncharted field of labor relations until 1915 when he went to San Francisco as secretary of the first Federal, State and Municipal Employment Conference.

When war was declared he was named Assistant Secretary of Labor. He was appointed in 1919 to the job he held at the time of his death. His organization was developed through close association and help of Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt. He is listed in Who's Who.

He was a past dictator, Washington Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose and member of Association of Government Labor Officials of the United States and Canada. He was the author of reports and addresses on Government mediation and conciliation.

Labor Ills Blamed On Outside Forces

Thomas G. Spates, New York personnel expert, told the Society for Personnel Administration last night that management must "do something constructive toward cooperation with labor."

In an address at the Harrington Hotel, Spates said the crisis in industrial relations today is really "a question of competition by management against outside agencies for the loyalty and confidence of their employes." He blamed employers for failing to take advantage "of the accumulative experience of the past century."

The speaker is industrial relations director for the General Foods Corporation and is vice president in charge of personnel division of the American Management Association of New York. W. W. Stockberger, president of the society, presided.

Wagner Lynch Bill Near Senate Fight

By the Associated Press.

A favorable report from a Senate judiciary sub-committee on the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill sped another major controversy toward the Senate flood yesterday.

Chairman Van Nuys (Democrat-Independent), of the sub-committee, said he hoped to win approval of the bill by the full committee Monday. This would send the controversial measure to the Senate, where Southern Senators have filibustered against such legislation in the past.

Van Nuys said the sub-committee approved the measure as a substitute for the Gavagan bill recently passed in the House.

Pittsburgh Baby Girl Weighs 8 Ounces, Lives

Pittsburgh, June 10 (AP).—A baby girl weighing but 8 ounces was born tonight at Mercy Hospital to Mrs. Marie Burgman, 35. Several hours later the infant was still breathing in an incubator, but hospital attendants said they could not hazard a guess on its chances to survive.

Physicians said the child was four months premature. It was being fed with an eye dropper. The father, Herbert Burgman, is a construction firm employe.

'Thin Gray Line' Votes To Continue Reunions

Jackson, Miss., June 10 (AP).—In peace as in war, soldiers of the Confederacy will "carry on to the end."

The suggestion disability will prevent another reunion was hooted by the meager remnant of Confederate veterans attending the forty-seventh annual U. C. V. reunion here today. They shouted their "rebel yells" and voted unanimously to meet again next year.

Miss Armistead Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

Retired District Teacher Served in Schools for 50 Years.

Miss Martha Armistead, 85-year-old retired school teacher, who was beloved by the thousands of Washingtonians she taught during her half-century in the classrooms here, died yesterday at her home, 213 Third street southeast.

Educated in the public schools here, Miss Armistead was a child during early days of the War Between the States, and remembered the period well. She graduated from normal school here in 1870.

Her first post was in the old McCormick School. She taught at Cranch, Brent, Carberry and other institutions and at the time of her retirement, 18 years ago, was at Gales School.

She taught at various times all the elementary grades. Officials of her time praised her particularly for her kindness to the children, and her efficiency in teaching history and geography. She made frequent trips to Europe and was a deep student of poetry.

Upon her retirement, Miss Armistead lived quietly at her home. But frequently the students of former years, some of them old and gray, visited her and talked over the times when she taught them in the "three R's."

Miss Armistead was a member of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, the Women's City Club and the Society of Natives.

Funeral services will be held at Padgett's undertaking establishment tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by burial in Congressional Cemetery.

D.A.R. Gives Copy Of Constitution

In accepting a reproduction of the Constitution, given them by Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, about 100 students of the Americanization School participated in a brief program at the Webster School yesterday.

Presentation was made through the D. A. R. Americanization committee to the Americanization School Association, Mrs. Howard E. Middleton, regent of the chapter, representing the donors.

Principal speaker of the occasion was Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, director general of the Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission, who asserted foreign-born students do not have to be lawyers, teachers, historians or professors to understand the Constitution.

N. Y. Artist to Do Interior Murals

Louis Bouche, New York artist, has won the national competition for a mural painting to be used in the new Interior Department building auditorium, it was announced yesterday by the section of painting and sculpture of the Treasury procurement division.

The work of Bouche was unanimously chosen over 300 entries, and he will receive $5,000.

3 Pedestrians Hurt As Trucks Collide

Three men were injured early yesterday when two trucks collided in the 400 block of Decatur street northeast, and one of them knocked down the victims, standing at the rear of a third car.

Social Agencies Plan Field Day Tomorrow

Approximately 250 children over 7 years of age are looking forward to the annual play day which will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at Blair-Jesup Park, at the end of the Georgia evenue car line. The children are from the private homes and institutions affiliated with the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies.

Miss Maude Parker, of the Playground Department, and her assistant, Miss Virginia Neilson are planning events and games for this field day. This event is held under the auspices of the Playgrounds Department, and the children in homes committee of the Council of Social Agencies. The children will be transported in buses provided by the Calvert Club, Rotary, Kiwanis, American Red Cross and private individuals.

War Pictures Shown To Cosmopolitan Club

Actual pictures of American troops in battle during the World War were shown at yesterday's meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club by Dr. John F. Branzinsky. The pictures were taken by the U. S. Signal Corps to which Dr. Branzinsky was attached during the war.

President Arthur W. Defenderfer announced that Thursday June 24, would be devoted to an appropriate farewell to the Rev. Calvert E. Buck, superintendent of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital and chaplain of the club. Dr. Buck has been called to a church in Chicago.

Funeral Rites Today For Mrs. J. T. Robbins

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine T. Robbins, 76, who died Tuesday, will be held at 4 p. m. today at her late residence, 1215 Rhode Island avenue northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs Robbins who was the widow of Moses A. Robbins, lived in Washington nearly 25 years. She was born at Hillsboro, Ohio. Four sons, Cecil A. Robbins, of Findlay, Ohio; Orland E., Carlton H. and Kenneth E. Robbins, all of this city, and four grandchildren, survive.

Smith Defense Scores.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—Defense attorneys for 19-year-old Tommy Smith scored today when a witness testified that she saw pretty, blonde Mary Ellen Babcock, 18, alive almost three hours after the State contends Smith said he killed her.

Rightist Assails Blum Plea for Tariff Powers

Reynaud Foresees Damage to Monetary Accord, Fears Catastrophe.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 10.—The Rightest Paul Reynaud, former minister of finance, demanded today that Socialist Premier Leon Blum alter the financial and commercial policies of his People's Front government lest catastrophe fall upon the nation.

"The existence of the regime is at stake," Reynaud declared in an attack against a measure before the Chamber of Deputies which would empower the government to raise or lower tariffs by decree.

He charged that the Blum government planned to use the decree to raise tariffs, and that tariff increases would have two effects:

1. They would weaken the tri-power monetary stabilization accord with the United States and Britain, because higher tariffs would discourage free movement of foreign exchange.

2. They would raise the cost of living thereby protecting French industry at the expense of the consumer.

"When the government signed the tri-power accord," he said, "it engaged itself with the United States and England to lower tariff barriers progressively and facilitate exchanges among the three great democracies."

He referred to a recent speech by the Labor Confederation leader, Leon Jouhaux, and declared that that speech showed "the fall of the Blum cabinet will be the signal for revolution."

Moving Plant Held Unfair to Labor

By the Associated Press.

The National Labor Relations Board declared yesterday that removal of a plant from one community to another to avoid collective bargaining is an unfair labor practice under the Wagner act.

The board found the S. & K. Knee Pants Co., Inc., had followed this procedure—closing its two Lynchburg, Va., plants and arranging to open another in Culpeper, Va.—and ordered the company to give employment to its Lynchburg employes if it opened another plant in Culpeper or anywhere else.

The order directed that the company pay the transportation expenses of employes and their families from Lynchburg to the new plant.

The labor board declared that the operators of the pants factory, Emanuel, Monroe and Mrs. Isabel P. Schechter, first had operated in New York City as a union shop, but in 1930 moved to Virginia "in search of unorganized and cheap labor."

Wendel, Kidnaping Linked by Parker

Newark, N. J., June 10 (AP).—Ellis H. Parker, 65-year-old country detective, charged with plotting the abduction of Paul H. Wendel to enhance his reputation, firmly denied the charges today and quietly accused Wendel of connection with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

Shoe Workers Protest Czechoslovakia Treaty

Boston, June 10 (AP).—John J. Mara, president of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union, tonight announced he had been instructed by the general executive board to telegraph all United States Senators and Congressmen in protest against reciprocal trade treaties with Czechoslovakia.

The board protested against treaties with Czechoslovakia or other nations which would permit any increase in shoe importations and urged an increase in the present tariff rates on shoes, Mara said.

'Mistake' Wife-Murder Brings Death Penalty

Santa Cruz, Calif., June 10 (AP).—A jury today convicted Allan D. Boggs, 54, wealthy former Army officer, of wife murder. The jury failed to recommend life imprisonment. Under California law this makes the death penalty mandatory.

The trial grew out of what the prosecution contended was the "mistake" shooting of Mrs. Boggs when he found her in a bedroom with her young son and thought the boy was "another man."

Pennsylvania to Get 20 Million From PWA

By the United Press.

The Public Works Administration announced last night that it will make a grant not exceeding $20,000,000 toward the $65,000,000 program of the Pennsylvania State authority.

Half of these funds will be an outright grant with no restrictions as to relief labor while additional grants, not to exceed $10,000,000, will be the wages paid for direct relief labor.

Conspiracy Trial Faces New Delay

Additional technicalities introduced by defense attorneys yesterday threatened to delay further the trials of the nine men under indictment in Prince Georges County on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

In a conference with Judge Joseph C. Mattingly and prosecuting attorneys at Upper Marlboro, Md., the defense counsel asked for a more detailed bill of particulars and filed demurrers to certain of the indictments.

The court took the requests under advisement, but did not announce when a decision would be made.

A delay of "at least a week" was announced several days ago because of the fact that one of the defense counsel, Frank Hall, is suffering with a leg ailment, which may necessitate an operation.

Awaiting trial on the conspiracy charges are Herbert J. Moffat, former justice of the peace; Elmer Pumphrey, a bondsman; Frank Bell, former desk clerk at the Hyattsville substation, and Arthur Brown, Maurice Hampton, Warren Peak, Claude Reese, Howard Slater and Albert Anderson, all former policemen.

Funeral Here Today For Isaac Mostow, 50

Funeral services for Isaac Mostow, 50, who died yesterday at his home, 16 Todd place northeast, will be held today at 2 p. m. at the chapel of the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in the Southeast Hebrew Cemetery. Born in Russia, Mr. Mostow came to America and Washington in 1905 and had lived here since. He was in the grocery business at 1803 Ninth street northwest.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mollie Mostow; a son, Melvin, and two daughters, Sadie and Sarah, all of Washington.

Jewish Anti-Fascists Plan D. C. Mass Meeting

The Jewish Peoples' Committee against Fascism and Anti-Semitism yesterday announced its intention to stage a mass demonstration and open air meeting at the Polish Embassy, Sixteenth and Euclid streets northwest, tomorrow at 3 p. m. in protest of the increasing anti-Semitism in Poland generally, and the recent program at Brest Litorsk.

A permit for the mass meeting in front of the Embassy, has already been secured, the committee declared.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Bekefi Institute presents its students in Josef Bayer's "The Fairy Doll," the third act of Aleksandr Glazunov's "Raymonda," and divertissements in Wardman Park Theater Thursday night.

With a zest which recalled one's own childhood and the never to be recaptured absorption in fantasy, the younger dance pupils of Theodor Bekefi had a merry time last evening in their performance of Josef Bayer's "The Fairy Doll." The scenario, which goes about under many aliases, including "La Boutique Fantasque," is the familiar one of the toy-shop wherein mechanical dolls perform for the approval of purchasers, and come to life for a midnight revel after the shopkeeper has gone home.

The queen of the revel on this occasion was Patsy O'Rourke, who assumed her royal prerogatives with all the seriousness of her five years. The technique of ballet steps is not yet her concern, but the rhythm of the dance already guides her movements. The most skillful of her liege subjects were Boofie Barry, who has lightness sur les pointes; Audrey Rands, who shows an aptitude for the ballerina's lot, and Carol Horton.

To the music from the third act of Glazunov's "Raymonda," 14 of the more proficient students went gracefully through the routine of the ballet steps and gyrations. The solo dancers were Lila Zalipsky, who is soon to appear professionally with the Mordkin troupe; Ronnie Cunningham, Betty Raymond, Virginia Barry and Ethel Mevay.

Crimes Increase In 65 U. S. Cities

Crimes, ranging from murder to automobile theft, showed a marked increase in 65 American cities, having a total of 18,722,602, inhabitants, or nearly one-sixth of the Nation's population, statistics released yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed.

Figures, obtained from police departments, disclosed generally that for each classification the number of serious crimes increased during the first four months of 1937, as compared with the first four months of 1936.

Automobile thefts increased from 14,651 to 16,533, or 13 per cent; robberies from 3,799 to 4,529, or 19 per cent; murders from 322 to 395, an increase of 73; burglaries from 19,347 to 22,207, or an increase of 14.8 per cent.

Simpson to Get Slander Apology

London, June 10 (AP).—Ernest Aldrich Simpson's slander action against Mrs. Joan Sutherland will be settled in court tomorrow, it was indicated today.

The case officially was scheduled for "mention" before Lord Chief Justice Hewart in the King's bench division. This was interpreted to mean that counsel will explain the remarks on which the slander action is based resulted from misinformation, apologies will be tendered, and the case settled.

Simpson's writ was based on remarks Mrs. Sutherland, wife of Lieut. Col. A. H. C. Sutherland, was alleged to have made at a West End restaurant anent the Simpson divorce case.

Mrs. John Dewhirst Dies Here at 58

Mrs. Sophie Anna Dewhirst, 58, 428 Manor place northwest, died yesterday at the George Washington Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Havana, Ill., she came to Washington in 1917. She was a member of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church.

Besides her husband, John Mark Dewhirst, an employe of the Internal Revenue, she is survived by four sons, Thornton, of Stewart Manor, Long Island; Howard, of Washington; Earl, of Bethesda, Md., and Ralph, of Silver Spring, Md.; one daughter, Dorothy L., of this city, and six grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements, which are pending the arrival of two brothers from Illinois, will be announced later.

Nazis' 'Overt Acts' Cited by Coffee

Representative John M. Coffee, of Washington, last night told the National Lawyers' Guild that the United States should enforce its neutrality act against Germany because of that country's "overt acts" toward loyalist Spain.

As a basis for his contention, Coffee cited the shelling of Almeria by German warships and the bombing of Guernica by German Fokkers.

The lawyers, meeting in the Interior Department auditorium, voted to support the Committee Against False Economy in opposing any blanket reduction of appropriation bills.

Einstein Gives Answer To Examination Query

Princeton, N. J., June 10 (AP).—Mathematics students at Princeton Country Day School were certain today of the right answer to at least one examination question.

They had been perplexed whether two consecutive odd numbers, the difference of whose squares would be —56, could be positive or negative.

Bradford Chambers, 14, was chosen to put the matter up to a noted authority. Dr. Albert Einstein gave him the laconic answer: "Both."
